

South Jersey Republican

Hoyt & Son, Publishers.

Independent
Phone — No. 532

Terms, $1.25 per Year; $1 in Atlantic County

VOL. 44

HAMMONTON, N. J., MAY 12, 1906

NO. 19

NATURES HEALTH RESTORER

Composed Entirely of Roots and Herbs.

Is considered by thousands of users

The Best and Cheapest Family Remedy on Earth

Because it has been proven by actual trial

A most satisfactory Laxative,
Blood Purifier, and Liver Regulator!

Pure blood will prevent you from catching all those diseases, such as smallpox, yellow fever, cholera, typhoid fever, etc.,
which cause so much suffering and death.

KEEP THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS IN GOOD ORDER by taking Natures Health Restorer and you will lessen your chances of becoming sick a great many times. Health means happiness to you and yours. It is therefore your greatest blessing as well as highest duty to keep well when you can do so, simply by keeping your blood pure with this meritorious remedy, a product of Nature's own laboratory, prepared from the roots and herbs which Nature alone has provided for the "healing of the nations."

NATURES HEALTH RESTORER is perfectly harmless and is good not only for mother and father, but also for the old people and children as well. Natures Health Restorer will help to keep every member of the family well, from Grandpa in his easy chair down to baby in the cradle. So positive are we of the beneficial results of Natures Health Restorer that we positively guarantee to refund the money paid for it in all cases where the patient is not benefited by its use. Could any offer be better or fairer than this?

Send postal for Free Sample and Circular.

Charles A. Vollstadt, - Hammonton, N. J.

Queen Quality and Walk-Over
Shoes possess workmanship by hands of skill and fit, wear and style, made possible by years of study.

T. B. PAULLIN.

Cor. Bellevue Avenue and County Road.

We carry a line of

Plows

and

Castings

Cultivators
Diamond Harrows
Wheelbarrows
and small Garden Tools—
Rakes
Hoes
Drags.

If you need

Fertilizer

for any crop, call on us.

Our stock comprises—

Mapes' Complete Manures,
The Taylor Provision Company's Special Potato and
Corn and Truck Manures,
Fifield's Pure Ground Fish
Guano,
Berg's Raw Bone.

GEORGE ELVINS.

Are you a subscriber?

Fun! Fun! Fun!

Let no Innocent Man Escape!

At the great Mock Court Trial, under the auspices of the Epworth League,
In Bellevue Hall,

Wednesday Eve, May 16th

One of our most respected citizens will be charged with

BREACH OF PROMISE.

Regular Court Rules. Startling Developments! Ludicrous Situations!
Local Hits!

Prices, - - 25 and 35 cents

Tickets on sale at Steel's.

Open at 7.30. Court called at 8

J. I. Taylor, Practical Painter.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for canned oil, which ought to cost but 60 cents a gallon. Ready mixed paint is half oil and half paint. Buy oil fresh from the barrel and add it to the L & M Paint which is semi-mixed.

When you buy L & M Paint you get a full gallon of paint that won't wear off for 10 or 15 years, because L & M Zinc hardens the L & M White Lead and makes L & M paint wear like iron.

4 gallons L & M mixed with 3 gallons linseed oil will paint a moderate sized house.
L & M costs only $1.20 per gallon.
Hold in the north, east, south and west.
O. S. Andrews, ex-Mayor, Danbury, Conn., writes: "Painted my house 10 years ago with L & M. Looks well today."
Sold by Harry Mott, Little.

Leaky tin roofs

Repaired

by

WILLIAM BAKER.

No. 25 Third Street,
Hammonton.

Help along Fire Co. uniform fund.

COMING EVENTS.

May 12th (to-night), entertainment for the Fourth of July fund, in Bellevue Hall.

In Odd Fellows' Hall, to-night, the 87th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in the United States.

May 16th, Mock Trial, a benefit, in Bellevue Hall.

May 21st, Little Ha-Ha Council's eleventh anniversary.

P. O. S. of A. benefit entertainment in Odd Fellows' Hall.

May 30th, Memorial Day.

June 14th, The Alumni Association meeting and banquet.

June 15th, School Commencement.

July 4th, Public celebration of Independence Day.

July 16th, Feast of Our Lady of Mount Carmel.

BOARD OF TRADE.

There was a good attendance at the monthly meeting, last Tuesday evening.
Various communications were read and explained by Secretary Burgan;
but mostly requiring no action.

The Crooner's inquest in case of Notto family was brought up; letter from Attorney Chandler read in reference to the matter. It appearing to be a badly mixed up case, and jurors mostly indifferent, Board voted to take no further action.

Mr. Rider stated that the new road to Atison is an assured fact. Our Freeholders have appropriated the $15,000 necessary. State officials have given their approval, surveyors ordered to lay out the road, and work may begin about July 1st.

Voted, to unite with the New Jersey
Civil Service Reform Association, for the betterment of public service.

A Press Clipping Bureau sent sample bulletin containing several manufacturers desirous of changing location, etc., and asked Board to become subscribers. Voted, to pay for it for three months.

A new subject,—the supplying Philadelphia saloons and eating houses with Hammonton water,—was introduced by the Secretary. Other members spoke on the subject, mentioning the fact that Philadelphia has no water fit to drink, and that the business men referred to will willingly pay for a good article. It would prove an excellent advertisement for Hammonton. Referred to Publicity Committee.

The urgent need of repairs at the foot of the Lake was mentioned, and referred to Improvement Committee.

Adjourned at 9.45.

Elm Items.

Mrs. Edna Cordrey is spending a few days with relatives in Camden.

While unloading manure at Ancora station, John Hoggan's horses were frightened by a passing freight train, and ran away, damaging the heavy wagon.

Miss Clara Priestley has returned from a visit to Philadelphia.

The weekly meeting of Bob White
Club was held at the home of F. E.
Priestley on Wednesday evening. Each member was presented with a silver badge by the club.

Messrs. Jacob Edwards and Lawrence
Grier spent Monday in Atlantic City.
Both report having an excellent good time.

Lightning rods are being installed on most of the houses in this place, by the North American Lightning Rod Company, of Philadelphia.

Donald M. Chapman has purchased a new horse.

Frank Devin was arrested on Wednesday, being accused by an Italian of ejecting him from his saloon. As the customer had already too much liquor in him, the Court ruled that Mr.
D. did the proper thing in using physical force.

Butt'n,
Butt'n,
who's got the Butt'n
?

Bring us the Button that comes off of your new

Dutchess Trousers

and get 10 cents.

We pay that sum for every button that comes off;
and if the trousers rip, we pay you $1.

That's the way we play the game, backed by the famous Dutchess Warranty.

We know how strongly Dutchess Trousers are made.
You'll know it, too, after you've worn your first pair and found out their value.

Get the habit of visiting

BANK BROTHERS,

111 Bellevue Avenue, Hammonton, N. J.

Independent Phone 538

COMMERCIAL PRINTING

Done neatly and promptly at the

REPUBLICAN OFFICE

John Frisch, Jr.,

Furnishing

Undertaker

and Embalmer

Twelfth St., between railroads.

Phone 3-5

Hammonton, N. J.

All arrangements for burials made and carefully executed.

DR. J. A. WAAS,

Dentist

Cogley Building, : Hammonton, N. J.

Just the Weather

to stop baking your own bread and cakes.

We will do it for you.

Ice Cream

Every Day.

SMALL'S
BAKERY

Republican and Tribune Farmer
one year each, for

$1.50

For the most news
got

The REPUBLICAN

Popular Science.

The "dew pond" is a curious Stone Age relic yet to be traced in Great Britain. In the absence of springs, broad hollows were scooped out, and these were covered with straw or other non-conducting material, with a thick layer of clay and stones on top. At night the cold surface of the clay condensed an abundance of water for the cattle to drink.

Sympathetic links, by means of which writings can be concealed when the paper containing them is not subjected to certain external influences, have long been known, but a disappearing paper, the decay of which at the end of a fixed time destroys writing and all, is certainly a novelty. Such a paper, says the French Journal La Papeterie, has recently been invented. It is prepared by steeping in acid, the strength of which is varied according to the length of time intended to be before the paper disintegrates and falls to pieces. It is suggested that this kind of paper would be a boon to those who do not wish to have their letters indefinitely preserved, but that holders of promissory notes should beware of it.

The fascinating interest of the ancient ruins in Rhodes, South Africa, drew the attention of the archeologists of the British Association during its recent meeting at Cape Town. Among these ruins the most conspicuous is the great Zimabwé temple which lies about 200 miles inland from the Indian Ocean. The oldest of the ruined buildings are believed to date back at least to the days of King Solomon. It is thought that they were constructed by Semitic colonists, whose object was to build a temple to the god Ashtaroth, as described in the Bible. Experts believe that precious metal to the value of three or four hundred million dollars may have been extracted from the gold reefs of Rhodes in ancient times.

Zapote is the Indian name of a plant that grows in Mexico, along the Gulf coast. It has within the past year or two attracted considerable attention on account of the apparent commercial value of the fiber derived from it. The natives have long used it for making ropes, cordage, bags, lariats, bridges and fish seines. The plant bears a resemblance to the banana plant of the tropics, and is white, strong and flexible. The plant is propagated in a peculiar way. A stalk grows up from the center and the branches which it puts forth become detached and fall to the ground, where they take root. This process occurs when a plant is about 15 years old, but if the leaves are taken off, not until about the 15th year.

What is now known as hypnotism was heralded nearly a half century ago as great hypnotism in medical diagnosis and as a moral aid in training children, and much greater powers have been assigned to it in recent years. A late French writer has shown that the usefulness has been greatly exaggerated. It affects only two weak to be aided, and it can have no value in systematic education. Grasset has concluded that it is so often harmful that it should be employed only by the practiced physician. The same authority has found that suggestion may not be expected to cure a purely mental, nor even a grave and profound nervous state, nor even a profound nervous disease like hysteria, and that its chief value in therapeutics is in localizing nervous disorders, especially hysteria.

A Girl's Fear. "It's no use finding fault with what's given you, even if it isn't what you wanted," said Miss Palma Sawyer, adding emphatically, "and sometimes, after all, it turns out to be." "Illustration, surely, at once!" cried Miss Palma's niece, who had just been given a new dress. "It's a lovely dress, but it's a little too small for me," said the girl. "Well," said the old lady, "I thought Mrs. Lane would give me an excellent dress for Christmas. It would have just fitted out my black silk, and I asked you, and I'd as much as said, but there, when I had my mouth all made up for that pin, if she didn't go and give me a red and green affair instead!"

"O, surely, when your own work is so much better than anything else," said the girl. "Well," said the old lady, "I thought Mrs. Lane would give me an excellent dress for Christmas. It would have just fitted out my black silk, and I asked you, and I'd as much as said, but there, when I had my mouth all made up for that pin, if she didn't go and give me a red and green affair instead!"

WOMEN WORKERS IN ENGLAND.

Their Wages Increasing in Cotton, Wool and Similar Industries. Some striking figures regarding women as wage earners were given by G. H. Wood, F. S. S., at a meeting held at Bedford College the other night under the auspices of the Women's Industrial Council, says the London Daily Express.

Remarkable changes have taken place during the last half century, he said. For example, in 1851 there was one woman to every three men working in the land. Now, there are eighteen men to every woman employed in agriculture.

The chief woman's industry at the present day, apart from domestic service, is the cotton trade. In 1851 the number of men and women engaged in that trade was equal, but in 1901 there were ten men to seven women.

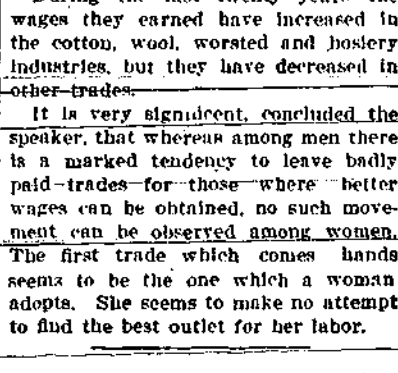

In the lace trade, once almost the monopoly of women, men now seem to be slowly displacing them. While in the last fifty years the number of men employed in that industry has grown from 9,000 to 13,000, the number of women had fallen from 52,000 to 24,000.

Generally speaking, women seem to be getting hold of the light, centralized forms of employment.

During the last twenty years the wages they earned have increased by 50 per cent. In 1851 a woman employed in the cotton trade, who worked in the cotton, wool, worsted and hosiery industries, but they have decreased in other trades.

It is very significant, concluded the speaker, that whereas among men there is a marked tendency to leave badly paid trades for those where better wages can be obtained, no such movement can be observed among women.

The first trade which comes hands down to the women is the cotton trade. She seems to make no attempt to find the best outlet for her labor.

M.M. DE THEBES.

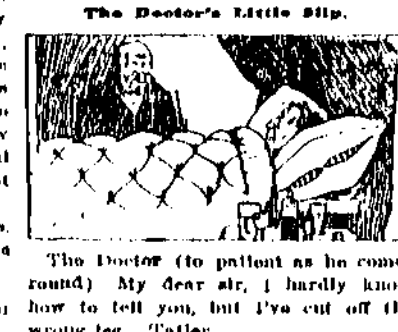

MESSAGE BY THE BLIND.

In Japan They Alone May Give It. The Japanese are the only people in the world who have a special language for the blind. It is a language of signs and gestures, and is used by the blind people of Japan to communicate with each other. It is a language of signs and gestures, and is used by the blind people of Japan to communicate with each other.

It is the duty of the blind man and woman, the message man and woman. From old men, hoary with age, to young girls in their teens, they wander, the blind people of Japan. By law, strictly enforced, they must be blind, either from birth or through some disaster during their lives. Thus they gain an honorable living.

With perfect knowledge, gained by years of study in schools specially provided for them, they kneel, twist and turn, and with their hands and feet, they tell the story of their lives. In two hours' time they will have told you the story of their lives, and you will have learned the story of their lives.

Troubled for Papa's Safety. Jonathan Fisher is a bachelor, and whether she wishes it or not, he is dragged to church every Sunday morning. As a rule, she finds more food for reflection during these ordeals in the multi-colored angels over the altar than in her father's sermons, but on a recent Sunday his opening sentence threw even the angels into the shade. "Let him who is without sin among you be first to cast a stone," announced the clergyman. "That challenge, hurled thus boldly at the congregation, took Jonathan's attention, and from then on until the end of the sermon he watched and listened with intense earnestness. Not until the entire congregation had turned their backs on the pulpit, and the priest was hurrying toward the door did the anxious look fade from her puffed lip. The face, then, seeing that the service was at an end, she fell back in a corner of the pew and breathed heavily with relief. "An angel," she said to her mother, "that nobody checked rocks at papa."

The Doctor's Little Slip.

PROPHESIES CALAMITIES.

French Seeress Who Claims to Have Foretold Year's Disasters. Perhaps the most-talked-of person in Paris is Mme. de Thebes, the mystic prophetess, who, it is claimed, has "made good." Mme. Thebes has been noted for years for her prophecies of dire events to come. It is said that she predicted the assassination of McKinley, and popular belief is that she foretold many great occurrences of late year.

Her prophecy of last December, couched in mysterious words, told of the terrors that the world would go through in the year 1904. The tone of it all was that it would be a year of trouble. She said that there would be holocaust, famine, earthquake disturbances widespread, with wholesale casualties. The forces of evil, she declared, would rise up against man and millions would suffer death or anguish or loss. She predicted that there would be war.

M.M. DE THEBES.

OWN YOUR OWN WIRELESS.

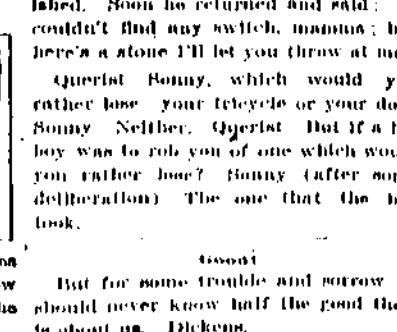

Power Source and Umbrella. Every man has his own wireless station. The idea of an umbrella is the promise made by an officer of the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company. He made this announcement while telling some details concerning the efforts to reach Ireland from America by wireless, says the New York Times.

By the pocket wireless apparatus, it is declared, any one can, with a knowledge of the use of the telegraph, telegraph from any point in New York City to any point in Ireland, and possibly to distant parts of the world, even to ships at sea. This apparatus might be ready in a few weeks, it was asserted.

Dr. Lee H. Forest, the inventor of the system that bears his name, is now in Ireland, the guest of Lord Armstrong, president of the British branch of the company, and already Dr. De Forest, the officers of the company say, has received 500 orders from this side to apparatus placed temporarily on top of Lord Armstrong's castle in North Ireland. Messages, the De Forest people say, are going only one way just now, but before long, it is predicted, they will be going in both directions.

Abraham White, the president of the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, said that the wireless station, which he had just received, was the most perfect of its kind. It was a small, portable station, and it was the most perfect of its kind.

Abraham White, the president of the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company, said that the wireless station, which he had just received, was the most perfect of its kind. It was a small, portable station, and it was the most perfect of its kind.

Abraham White, the president of the American De Forest Wireless Telegraph Company.

AFTER ALL.

She Found She Had Been Doing a Great Good. Mary Cranston tossed her package of history papers upon the table, tore off her hat and jacket and threw herself upon the couch, her fingers pressed upon her aching eyes. She was sick of teaching—sick of it! The eager ambition with which she had begun one by one had broken against the invincible barriers of the system. Her high ideals had faded before days filled to the brim by the endless exactions of a restless boy.

She had had dreams of being an instructor in the lives of her boys, but somehow she had no time to be an instructor. It was more than she could do to "get in the requirements of a crowd of scholars. She was just tired of it all.

Just then Nora appeared at the door. "Somebody to see you, Miss Mary," she said.

Mary rose impatiently. "Somebody?" In that particular moment a pupil or pupil's mother?

It was a mother this time—a shabby woman, with nervous hands and weary eyes, who had longed to see Mary. She rose timidly as Mary entered.

"I'm making bold to come," she said, "but I'm sure trouble we're in. Jim, he wouldn't have let me, but I said I'd see your woman's heart she has, and she'll give me if she can. It's Jim Maloney's mother I am."

Mary examined Jim Maloney. She had worked so hard to help the poor, and now—

"It's the truth I'm telling you, dear," the trembling voice went on. "Jim's father was not a man, and I was desperate afraid for Jim till he came to you. Then, suddenly, he straightened up."

"Mother," she said, "she believes me, and I ain't going back on her."

And he didn't, dear. I know he didn't. After he went to Crank & Shippen's, every night he'd look me straight in the eyes, and I knew. Then yesterday there was money lost, and they accused him. Jim sent word to me, and 'twas this:

"Tell Miss Cranston I didn't go back on her. So I made bold."

Mary's hands closed about the dutiful fingers.

"I'll give you this minute," she said. "I think that we can get him out, and if not, we'll tell Jim that we're proud of him."

Two hours later Mary returned. She had worked hard, but she had not succeeded. Jim's father was not a man, and I was desperate afraid for Jim till he came to you. Then, suddenly, he straightened up.

British Author's Health. The British author is looked upon as the personification of health and strength, and a recent report of the Government states that he is getting healthier. The good condition is attributed to the attention now paid to pure food and less of what is known to sailors as "frog."

"Frolic to the Day," Etc. Jenkins—Yes, I'm going to be married on Friday. Why, do you think that's unlucky?

Pickham—Of course.

Jenkins—Well, then, what is the lucky day to be married on?

Pickham—It isn't been invented yet.—Philadelphia Press.

The Main question. Jane—I see that a woman left her husband during his honeymoon because he talked in his sleep.

Marion—Well, well, I wonder what he talked about.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Four Prospects. "Haven't you anything like chicken here?" asked the hungry traveler.

"Well, sir," replied the poor farmer, "two of the children have chicken pox. That's the nearest we've got to."—Philadelphia Press.

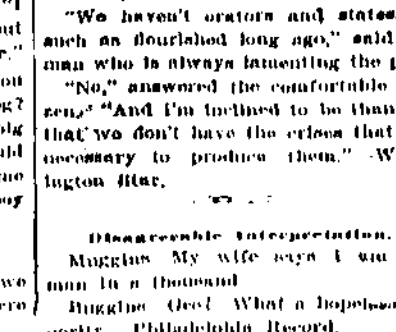

What the Dream Denies. Miss Angles. This new power of mine doesn't give me the graceful figure the father claimed it would. I must have it altered.

Miss Philadelphia. Why don't you take it to Padden & Co?

Miss Angles. Are they your tailor?

Miss Philadelphia. Oh, no, they're upholsterers.—TU-HUH.

COMPARISON OF FRISCO'S FIRE AREA. The chart shows how much more territory was burned over in San Francisco than in the Chicago fire of 1871 and the Baltimore fire of 1904.

The chart shows how much more territory was burned over in San Francisco than in the Chicago fire of 1871 and the Baltimore fire of 1904.

LET US ALL LAUGH.

JOKE FROM THE PENS OF VARIOUS HUMORISTS.

Pleasant Incidents Occurring the World Over—Sayings that are Cherished by Old or Young—Funny Selections that You Will Enjoy.

The Unfortunate. "Yes, my wife returned our new neighbor's call the other afternoon and found several ladies there playing bridge. The hostess asked her to take a hand and although she is only a fair sort of player she didn't want to appear ungracious, so she sat in with the others. Imagine her surprise when she found out—after they had stopped the game—that she had been playing for money!"

And if it be that no one wants to be so happy as to be a girl, then there is a home beyond the gates where all who love shall meet. Do we say we are ready now? To those who really love, each heart will find its own day. When evening brings us home.

MISS KERRISON'S HEART. "HIBN I heard that Tom Frisky was married the new came as a great shock to me—I asked Jack Goney, my informant, 'Is he married much?'"

"Oh, rightfully," said Goney. "Who is the creature?" I inquired, after a tense pause.

And when he replied, "The eldest Miss Kerrison," I was more shocked than ever. That Lillian—my beautiful, white dove—should consent to become a mere tame domestic fowl—and for Tom Frisky's sake, galled my sensibilities. I remembered how I had laid the offering of my own undivided affections at her feet, and how she had danced on the elaborate embroidery of words in which I had clothed my passionate avowal.

"I shall go and see them," I told Goney.

I found that Lillian—Mrs. Frisky—was already by way of becoming a social success. She was developing into that dreadful thing, an ideal hostess. She was extremely tactful and often cleverly managing. It was said of her that she had a knack of bringing the right people together, which, being interpreted, means that she strove to pair off her guests as if they had been vases. Frisky himself was humorously happy and rosy and content, and was never contented but to be with his wife's highest word.

"Ah," he said, "you will find your affinity some day."

"If both of us are to be married," I said, "there will be trouble."

"There will be no trouble," said Lillian. "But he was in no wise disconcerted. He merely waggled his fat head at me and said: 'We must look out for a wife for you.'"

And from that moment began the uncomfortable crusade against our clerical neighborhood, in which both Frisky and his wife took a meddlesome part, and which terminated in the last miserable controversy that it is the purpose of this story to detail. She, of course, was the more able slinger.

One night Frisky and I were talking as men to men. We had been telling each other that we were both rather big game, and we were both big game notwithstanding, and we were both big game in a fine glow of self-assertion.

"One thing I've forgotten to say to you," he remarked. "It really is serious."

"Serious for whom?" I asked.

"For her," he said.

I dropped the poker into the fender with a crash. "For her?" I repeated.

"What are you driving at?"

"Perhaps I ought not to have broached the subject," he faltered.

"You haven't," said I.

"It's not fair to her," he jerked out. "And yet it's all due to that foolish trick you have of talking to every woman you meet as if she were the only one of her sex in the world."

"I don't think they find that particularly odious," said I.

"But lookers on do," said he. "And it is a bit rough on 'em, you know, old chap. Of course you who understand you know it's only your way, but girls innocent, young, unsophisticated, I mean, 'don't slight.' I said abruptly, offering my hand.

"I'll tell you her name, then," said he. "It's Miss Kerrison. If you meet her, don't speak to her. You may save us both much pain and sorrow."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed abruptly. "I was an affront. 'Don't, then, if you will,' I said sternly.

"I've an idea," she said, "that we are at cross purposes, and that it is all the fault of those dear foolish women."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frisky, "and some thing to you about well about me, don't you? Please be straightforward."

"Mr. Craven?"

"Yes, Miss Kerrison," I answered.

"Mr. Frisky, then?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"I turned out her in desperation. 'How can I repeat what he said?' I cried. 'Oh, come! Well, I suppose you'll say more. Let me entreat.'"

"No," she replied. "I will tell you ally thing!—Pretty, too! Well, what would you advise me to do about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't presume to advise at all," he replied.

"Best way, I suppose, would be to put her out of my misery at once," said I.

"There are worse girls than Miss Kerrison," he said.

"But do you think they would suit as better?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "You are not to be had."

"You overbore me," I observed, "with those touching tokens of your approval."

And then we talked of other matters. I had had not the least intention of going to the Chandeliers' dance the following evening, but now I determined to go after all, since Miss Kerrison was bound to be there, and it was best to get this painful business over at once. In the conservatory, I made out a slim, rounded form in blue white, and came face to face with Miss Kerrison. She sat there motionless, her hands in her lap, as if awaiting her fate in the person of myself.

"All alone?" I said, lightly.

"I prefer to be alone," she said hastily, and rose as if to go.

But I understood what an infinity of meaning the studied coyness of her movements would have conveyed had she whispered, "Please don't forsake me—I came here to look for you."

"Why?" she asked. A most awkward question!

"Why?" I repeated slowly, to gain time. "Because those people in there don't do you credit. The crust should be very rich, but I don't think you are large enough to fill it."

"Well, it is something to be a harbor of refuge," she remarked. "Thank you. Then, by the way, it is really true, this that I am to congratulate you!"

"An unspoken fortune in finding you here, to you mean? Very certainly," I said.

"I did not mean that," she replied. "I meant that that—well, the usual remark, also, concerning you."

Indeed, I exclaimed. "But which of the usual remarks do you prefer to?"

"There is only one—last—there—that is commonly linked with the name of an eligible young bachelor. But is it true?"

"Believe me," I assured her, "it is not true."

"I am so glad," she breathed softly. "Poor girl! At least—that is—she would have covered up her indignation, but, perceiving that it was now too late, she paused abruptly and looked into my eyes.

"Why are you glad?" I asked. I had not intended to proceed on exactly these lines, but I found it difficult to be sufficiently brutal now, that the necessity confronted me.

"Oh," she drawled, with a vocal affectation of indifference. "I think, as the song says, 'You are aware you are to marry yet, you know.'"

"I wonder what your wife will be like," she said on passing. "I hope she will be a nice, helpful sort of girl, and not a mere society butterfly—like me."

"I shall wear like you," I began, and stopped.

"What won't be," said Miss Kerrison quickly.

"I mean," she explained, "that the object of our first fancy is so seldom the person to make us truly happy, if we but knew it."

I remembered then that some one had told me this was Miss Kerrison's third season.

"First love is the only love," I said solemnly. "I was no time for naïveté, and I was not so young as to be conscious of long already. She must have been to realize the truth in all its ghastliness."

"That is not so," she said. "Believe me, Mr. Craven, when I tell you that you are yet too young to know what is best for your welfare."

"Anyway," said I, "when my fate does come along—"

And there I made an abrupt end, for she had suddenly begun to laugh. There could be no doubt about it. She was laughing not hysterically, either, but with unmistakable enjoyment at my irretrievable jest.

"Mr. Craven," she said at last, more seriously. "I think I'll be frank with you. My honest dealing may cost me my best love, but only for a time. You'll like me all the better afterward. And I am sure you have enough common sense, really, not to think me unwisely or unkindly in saying what I am about to say to you now."

"Miss Kerrison," I cried in sore distress, "forbear, reflect, consider. Don't speak to me. You may save us both much pain and sorrow."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed abruptly. "I was an affront. 'Don't, then, if you will,' I said sternly.

"I've an idea," she said, "that we are at cross purposes, and that it is all the fault of those dear foolish women."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frisky, "and some thing to you about well about me, don't you? Please be straightforward."

"Mr. Craven?"

"Yes, Miss Kerrison," I answered.

"Mr. Frisky, then?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"I turned out her in desperation. 'How can I repeat what he said?' I cried. 'Oh, come! Well, I suppose you'll say more. Let me entreat.'"

"No," she replied. "I will tell you ally thing!—Pretty, too! Well, what would you advise me to do about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't presume to advise at all," he replied.

"Best way, I suppose, would be to put her out of my misery at once," said I.

"There are worse girls than Miss Kerrison," he said.

"But do you think they would suit as better?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "You are not to be had."

"You overbore me," I observed, "with those touching tokens of your approval."

And then we talked of other matters. I had had not the least intention of going to the Chandeliers' dance the following evening, but now I determined to go after all, since Miss Kerrison was bound to be there, and it was best to get this painful business over at once. In the conservatory, I made out a slim, rounded form in blue white, and came face to face with Miss Kerrison. She sat there motionless, her hands in her lap, as if awaiting her fate in the person of myself.

"All alone?" I said, lightly.

"I prefer to be alone," she said hastily, and rose as if to go.

But I understood what an infinity of meaning the studied coyness of her movements would have conveyed had she whispered, "Please don't forsake me—I came here to look for you."

"Why?" she asked. A most awkward question!

"Why?" I repeated slowly, to gain time. "Because those people in there don't do you credit. The crust should be very rich, but I don't think you are large enough to fill it."

"Well, it is something to be a harbor of refuge," she remarked. "Thank you. Then, by the way, it is really true, this that I am to congratulate you!"

"An unspoken fortune in finding you here, to you mean? Very certainly," I said.

"I did not mean that," she replied. "I meant that that—well, the usual remark, also, concerning you."

Indeed, I exclaimed. "But which of the usual remarks do you prefer to?"

"There is only one—last—there—that is commonly linked with the name of an eligible young bachelor. But is it true?"

"Believe me," I assured her, "it is not true."

"I am so glad," she breathed softly. "Poor girl! At least—that is—she would have covered up her indignation, but, perceiving that it was now too late, she paused abruptly and looked into my eyes.

"Why are you glad?" I asked. I had not intended to proceed on exactly these lines, but I found it difficult to be sufficiently brutal now, that the necessity confronted me.

"Oh," she drawled, with a vocal affectation of indifference. "I think, as the song says, 'You are aware you are to marry yet, you know.'"

"I wonder what your wife will be like," she said on passing. "I hope she will be a nice, helpful sort of girl, and not a mere society butterfly—like me."

"I shall wear like you," I began, and stopped.

"What won't be," said Miss Kerrison quickly.

"I mean," she explained, "that the object of our first fancy is so seldom the person to make us truly happy, if we but knew it."

I remembered then that some one had told me this was Miss Kerrison's third season.

"First love is the only love," I said solemnly. "I was no time for naïveté, and I was not so young as to be conscious of long already. She must have been to realize the truth in all its ghastliness."

"That is not so," she said. "Believe me, Mr. Craven, when I tell you that you are yet too young to know what is best for your welfare."

"Anyway," said I, "when my fate does come along—"

And there I made an abrupt end, for she had suddenly begun to laugh. There could be no doubt about it. She was laughing not hysterically, either, but with unmistakable enjoyment at my irretrievable jest.

"Mr. Craven," she said at last, more seriously. "I think I'll be frank with you. My honest dealing may cost me my best love, but only for a time. You'll like me all the better afterward. And I am sure you have enough common sense, really, not to think me unwisely or unkindly in saying what I am about to say to you now."

"Miss Kerrison," I cried in sore distress, "forbear, reflect, consider. Don't speak to me. You may save us both much pain and sorrow."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed abruptly. "I was an affront. 'Don't, then, if you will,' I said sternly.

"I've an idea," she said, "that we are at cross purposes, and that it is all the fault of those dear foolish women."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frisky, "and some thing to you about well about me, don't you? Please be straightforward."

"Mr. Craven?"

"Yes, Miss Kerrison," I answered.

"Mr. Frisky, then?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"I turned out her in desperation. 'How can I repeat what he said?' I cried. 'Oh, come! Well, I suppose you'll say more. Let me entreat.'"

"No," she replied. "I will tell you ally thing!—Pretty, too! Well, what would you advise me to do about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't presume to advise at all," he replied.

"Best way, I suppose, would be to put her out of my misery at once," said I.

"There are worse girls than Miss Kerrison," he said.

"But do you think they would suit as better?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "You are not to be had."

"You overbore me," I observed, "with those touching tokens of your approval."

And then we talked of other matters. I had had not the least intention of going to the Chandeliers' dance the following evening, but now I determined to go after all, since Miss Kerrison was bound to be there, and it was best to get this painful business over at once. In the conservatory, I made out a slim, rounded form in blue white, and came face to face with Miss Kerrison. She sat there motionless, her hands in her lap, as if awaiting her fate in the person of myself.

"All alone?" I said, lightly.

"I prefer to be alone," she said hastily, and rose as if to go.

But I understood what an infinity of meaning the studied coyness of her movements would have conveyed had she whispered, "Please don't forsake me—I came here to look for you."

"Why?" she asked. A most awkward question!

"Why?" I repeated slowly, to gain time. "Because those people in there don't do you credit. The crust should be very rich, but I don't think you are large enough to fill it."

"Well, it is something to be a harbor of refuge," she remarked. "Thank you. Then, by the way, it is really true, this that I am to congratulate you!"

"An unspoken fortune in finding you here, to you mean? Very certainly," I said.

"I did not mean that," she replied. "I meant that that—well, the usual remark, also, concerning you."

Indeed, I exclaimed. "But which of the usual remarks do you prefer to?"

"There is only one—last—there—that is commonly linked with the name of an eligible young bachelor. But is it true?"

"Believe me," I assured her, "it is not true."

"I am so glad," she breathed softly. "Poor girl! At least—that is—she would have covered up her indignation, but, perceiving that it was now too late, she paused abruptly and looked into my eyes.

"Why are you glad?" I asked. I had not intended to proceed on exactly these lines, but I found it difficult to be sufficiently brutal now, that the necessity confronted me.

"Oh," she drawled, with a vocal affectation of indifference. "I think, as the song says, 'You are aware you are to marry yet, you know.'"

"I wonder what your wife will be like," she said on passing. "I hope she will be a nice, helpful sort of girl, and not a mere society butterfly—like me."

"I shall wear like you," I began, and stopped.

"What won't be," said Miss Kerrison quickly.

"I mean," she explained, "that the object of our first fancy is so seldom the person to make us truly happy, if we but knew it."

I remembered then that some one had told me this was Miss Kerrison's third season.

"First love is the only love," I said solemnly. "I was no time for naïveté, and I was not so young as to be conscious of long already. She must have been to realize the truth in all its ghastliness."

"That is not so," she said. "Believe me, Mr. Craven, when I tell you that you are yet too young to know what is best for your welfare."

"Anyway," said I, "when my fate does come along—"

And there I made an abrupt end, for she had suddenly begun to laugh. There could be no doubt about it. She was laughing not hysterically, either, but with unmistakable enjoyment at my irretrievable jest.

"Mr. Craven," she said at last, more seriously. "I think I'll be frank with you. My honest dealing may cost me my best love, but only for a time. You'll like me all the better afterward. And I am sure you have enough common sense, really, not to think me unwisely or unkindly in saying what I am about to say to you now."

"Miss Kerrison," I cried in sore distress, "forbear, reflect, consider. Don't speak to me. You may save us both much pain and sorrow."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed abruptly. "I was an affront. 'Don't, then, if you will,' I said sternly.

"I've an idea," she said, "that we are at cross purposes, and that it is all the fault of those dear foolish women."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frisky, "and some thing to you about well about me, don't you? Please be straightforward."

"Mr. Craven?"

"Yes, Miss Kerrison," I answered.

"Mr. Frisky, then?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"I turned out her in desperation. 'How can I repeat what he said?' I cried. 'Oh, come! Well, I suppose you'll say more. Let me entreat.'"

"No," she replied. "I will tell you ally thing!—Pretty, too! Well, what would you advise me to do about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't presume to advise at all," he replied.

"Best way, I suppose, would be to put her out of my misery at once," said I.

"There are worse girls than Miss Kerrison," he said.

"But do you think they would suit as better?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "You are not to be had."

"You overbore me," I observed, "with those touching tokens of your approval."

And then we talked of other matters. I had had not the least intention of going to the Chandeliers' dance the following evening, but now I determined to go after all, since Miss Kerrison was bound to be there, and it was best to get this painful business over at once. In the conservatory, I made out a slim, rounded form in blue white, and came face to face with Miss Kerrison. She sat there motionless, her hands in her lap, as if awaiting her fate in the person of myself.

"All alone?" I said, lightly.

"I prefer to be alone," she said hastily, and rose as if to go.

But I understood what an infinity of meaning the studied coyness of her movements would have conveyed had she whispered, "Please don't forsake me—I came here to look for you."

"Why?" she asked. A most awkward question!

"Why?" I repeated slowly, to gain time. "Because those people in there don't do you credit. The crust should be very rich, but I don't think you are large enough to fill it."

"Well, it is something to be a harbor of refuge," she remarked. "Thank you. Then, by the way, it is really true, this that I am to congratulate you!"

"An unspoken fortune in finding you here, to you mean? Very certainly," I said.

"I did not mean that," she replied. "I meant that that—well, the usual remark, also, concerning you."

Indeed, I exclaimed. "But which of the usual remarks do you prefer to?"

"There is only one—last—there—that is commonly linked with the name of an eligible young bachelor. But is it true?"

"Believe me," I assured her, "it is not true."

"I am so glad," she breathed softly. "Poor girl! At least—that is—she would have covered up her indignation, but, perceiving that it was now too late, she paused abruptly and looked into my eyes.

"Why are you glad?" I asked. I had not intended to proceed on exactly these lines, but I found it difficult to be sufficiently brutal now, that the necessity confronted me.

"Oh," she drawled, with a vocal affectation of indifference. "I think, as the song says, 'You are aware you are to marry yet, you know.'"

"I wonder what your wife will be like," she said on passing. "I hope she will be a nice, helpful sort of girl, and not a mere society butterfly—like me."

"I shall wear like you," I began, and stopped.

"What won't be," said Miss Kerrison quickly.

"I mean," she explained, "that the object of our first fancy is so seldom the person to make us truly happy, if we but knew it."

I remembered then that some one had told me this was Miss Kerrison's third season.

"First love is the only love," I said solemnly. "I was no time for naïveté, and I was not so young as to be conscious of long already. She must have been to realize the truth in all its ghastliness."

"That is not so," she said. "Believe me, Mr. Craven, when I tell you that you are yet too young to know what is best for your welfare."

"Anyway," said I, "when my fate does come along—"

And there I made an abrupt end, for she had suddenly begun to laugh. There could be no doubt about it. She was laughing not hysterically, either, but with unmistakable enjoyment at my irretrievable jest.

"Mr. Craven," she said at last, more seriously. "I think I'll be frank with you. My honest dealing may cost me my best love, but only for a time. You'll like me all the better afterward. And I am sure you have enough common sense, really, not to think me unwisely or unkindly in saying what I am about to say to you now."

"Miss Kerrison," I cried in sore distress, "forbear, reflect, consider. Don't speak to me. You may save us both much pain and sorrow."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed abruptly. "I was an affront. 'Don't, then, if you will,' I said sternly.

"I've an idea," she said, "that we are at cross purposes, and that it is all the fault of those dear foolish women."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frisky, "and some thing to you about well about me, don't you? Please be straightforward."

"Mr. Craven?"

"Yes, Miss Kerrison," I answered.

"Mr. Frisky, then?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"I turned out her in desperation. 'How can I repeat what he said?' I cried. 'Oh, come! Well, I suppose you'll say more. Let me entreat.'"

"No," she replied. "I will tell you ally thing!—Pretty, too! Well, what would you advise me to do about it?"

He shrugged his shoulders. "I don't presume to advise at all," he replied.

"Best way, I suppose, would be to put her out of my misery at once," said I.

"There are worse girls than Miss Kerrison," he said.

"But do you think they would suit as better?" I asked him.

"No," he said. "You are not to be had."

"You overbore me," I observed, "with those touching tokens of your approval."

And then we talked of other matters. I had had not the least intention of going to the Chandeliers' dance the following evening, but now I determined to go after all, since Miss Kerrison was bound to be there, and it was best to get this painful business over at once. In the conservatory, I made out a slim, rounded form in blue white, and came face to face with Miss Kerrison. She sat there motionless, her hands in her lap, as if awaiting her fate in the person of myself.

"All alone?" I said, lightly.

"I prefer to be alone," she said hastily, and rose as if to go.

But I understood what an infinity of meaning the studied coyness of her movements would have conveyed had she whispered, "Please don't forsake me—I came here to look for you."

"Why?" she asked. A most awkward question!

"Why?" I repeated slowly, to gain time. "Because those people in there don't do you credit. The crust should be very rich, but I don't think you are large enough to fill it."

"Well, it is something to be a harbor of refuge," she remarked. "Thank you. Then, by the way, it is really true, this that I am to congratulate you!"

"An unspoken fortune in finding you here, to you mean? Very certainly," I said.

"I did not mean that," she replied. "I meant that that—well, the usual remark, also, concerning you."

Indeed, I exclaimed. "But which of the usual remarks do you prefer to?"

"There is only one—last—there—that is commonly linked with the name of an eligible young bachelor. But is it true?"

"Believe me," I assured her, "it is not true."

"I am so glad," she breathed softly. "Poor girl! At least—that is—she would have covered up her indignation, but, perceiving that it was now too late, she paused abruptly and looked into my eyes.

"Why are you glad?" I asked. I had not intended to proceed on exactly these lines, but I found it difficult to be sufficiently brutal now, that the necessity confronted me.

"Oh," she drawled, with a vocal affectation of indifference. "I think, as the song says, 'You are aware you are to marry yet, you know.'"

"I wonder what your wife will be like," she said on passing. "I hope she will be a nice, helpful sort of girl, and not a mere society butterfly—like me."

"I shall wear like you," I began, and stopped.

"What won't be," said Miss Kerrison quickly.

"I mean," she explained, "that the object of our first fancy is so seldom the person to make us truly happy, if we but knew it."

I remembered then that some one had told me this was Miss Kerrison's third season.

"First love is the only love," I said solemnly. "I was no time for naïveté, and I was not so young as to be conscious of long already. She must have been to realize the truth in all its ghastliness."

"That is not so," she said. "Believe me, Mr. Craven, when I tell you that you are yet too young to know what is best for your welfare."

"Anyway," said I, "when my fate does come along—"

And there I made an abrupt end, for she had suddenly begun to laugh. There could be no doubt about it. She was laughing not hysterically, either, but with unmistakable enjoyment at my irretrievable jest.

"Mr. Craven," she said at last, more seriously. "I think I'll be frank with you. My honest dealing may cost me my best love, but only for a time. You'll like me all the better afterward. And I am sure you have enough common sense, really, not to think me unwisely or unkindly in saying what I am about to say to you now."

"Miss Kerrison," I cried in sore distress, "forbear, reflect, consider. Don't speak to me. You may save us both much pain and sorrow."

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed abruptly. "I was an affront. 'Don't, then, if you will,' I said sternly.

"I've an idea," she said, "that we are at cross purposes, and that it is all the fault of those dear foolish women."

"Yes," said Mrs. Frisky, "and some

FROM A NEWARK POLICY-HOLDER:

"The dividend of $113.80, declared on my Twenty-Payment Life Five-Year Dividend Policy for $5000, was an agreeable surprise, and I compliment the Company on its ability to pay so generously on its insurance contracts. I consider my Prudential policy as one of the best assets I own."

Every Lester Piano

Leaves our factories with the highest degree of excellence marking every detail.

The rare timber is allowed to season for months. Every wire has exactly the required temper. The action is always adjusted perfectly.

Result, — the Lester tone has no superior for mellowness and pure musical quality.

The Durability is assured. It

Lasts a Lifetime.

Send for new illustrated catalogue and special easy payment plans.

F. A. North Company
1308 Chestnut St., Philada.

BURPEE'S SEEDS GROW! If you want the Best Seeds that can be grown, you should read "The Thirtieth Anniversary Edition of BURPEE'S FARM ANNUAL FOR 1906," so well known as the "Leading American Seed Catalogue." It is called FREE to all. Better write TO-DAY. W. AYLEE BURPEE & CO., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Pennsylvania Railroad.

W. J. & S. Railroad

Schedule in effect March 30th, 1906.

Trains leave Hammononton as follows:

For Philadelphia—
Express, 7:50 a.m., 5:50 p.m., weekdays; Sundays, 8:30 p.m.
Accommodation, 6:00, 7:15 a.m., 12:00, 4:40 p.m., weekdays; Sundays, 8:30 a.m., 4:51 p.m.

For Atlantic City—
9:17, 11:40 a.m., 1:30 (Saturdays only); 2:40, 5:55, p.m., weekdays; Sundays, 9:20, 10:40 a.m., 5:45 p.m.

W. W. ATTENBURY,
General Manager.

J. R. WOOD,
Passenger Traffic Manager.

Geo. W. BOYD,
General Passenger Agent.

W. H. Bernshouse
Insurance Agent

Notary Public,
Commissioner of Deeds,
Office, 101 Railroad Ave.
Hammononton.

Ask for a copy of the

Tribune Farmer

Chas. Cunningham, M.D.
Physician and Surgeon.
W. Second St., Hammononton.
Office hours, 7:30 to 10:30 a.m., 1:00 to 5:00 and 7:00 to 9:00 p.m.

Harness, Blankets,
Robes, Whips,
Trunks, etc.
At L. W. OGLEBY'S.

If you are going anywhere, or if you have company, drop a line to the REPUBLICAN.

JOS. H. GARTON,
JUSTICE of the PEACE.
Notary Public, Commissioner of Deeds,
Hammononton, N. J.

A COLLECTION OF Graduation Presents

That leaves nothing to be desired in Price or Variety.

Our new stock must be seen to be appreciated.

We solicit your inspection.

ROBT. STEEL,
Your Jeweler and Optician.
POST CARDS.

Our Base-ball Stock is complete.

Gloves, 25 cents to $3
Bats, 5 cents to 85 cents
Balls, 5 cents to $1.25
Suits, $1.25 to $12

Masks, Score Books, Spikes, Caps, Belts, Hose, etc.
Special discount to Clubs.

The famous Yale Line of Bicycles is here for your inspection.
Sold for cash or on time. Your credit is good here.

E. A. CORDERY

Soda Water...

ALL FLAVORS
PURE FRUIT SYRUPS.

RED CROSS PHARMACY.

UNDERTAKER EMBALMER

ELWOOD P. JONES

Office and Residence, 216 Bellevue Ave.
Local Phone No. 682: Bell, 3-Y

Wax Flowers, Figures, etc., for funerals and memorial services, furnished on short notice.

The same building,
But in a new location,
Around the Corner.

Meats, and Vegetables in their season.

At Eckhardt's Market

The Expense of a Gas Range

Is confined to the moments of actual use.
When the cooking is done the expense ceases, if you turn off the flame; if you don't, it isn't the range that's extravagant.

Gas Ranges sold by Hammononton Gas Co.

The Republican.

SATURDAY, MAY 12, 1906

There were 213 water taps, yesterday morning.

Harry Simons spent a day or two in town, last week.

ZAMBONES. McCall Patterson.

We regret to hear that Mrs. Jones is very sick.

Miss Naomi Caldwell is visiting Hammononton relatives.

HAMMONONTON. Postcard Cards at Jones' Jewelry Store.

Wm. Baker is making an addition to his library.

Miss Maud Leonard is spending a month with her parents.

G-O-A-R-T-rubber tire, new-for sale. Inquire at this office.

Base-ball game this afternoon, — Crescent vs. May's Landing.

Frost several nights this week, — heaviest on Friday morning.

ZAMBONES. Unbleached muslin, 65c. 60c. per yard.

Franklin P. Myers and family have returned from Emberton.

Rev. H. T. Taylor was up in Batontown for a couple of weeks.

DARY-COACHES wanted—second hand. M. RUBBA.

Miss Marie Keyser has gone to Philadelphia, expecting to remain.

Miss Nellie Jones, of Woodstown, spent Sunday with her sister, on Maple Street.

STOP SMOKING and CHEWING! Victory Powders are guaranteed to cure the tobacco habit. Send for free sample to Chas. Volstead.

W. A. Crawford and wife are spending some time in sunny Hammononton.

W. C. T. U. meeting Tuesday next, 10th, at three o'clock, with Mrs. L. Moffort.

ZAMBONES. Shirt waists, — new lot, in lawn, 50c. 45c. 40c.

Mrs. S. S. S. and son, from Toledo, Ohio, visited her sister, Mrs. C. M. Board.

Halvor Hartley's medical studies are over for the term, and he is at home for a few weeks.

CARE SALE at Candy Kitchen today. Look at their display in the window.

Rev. J. Harner Wilson spent two or three days in town for his health, which is not the best.

New England Club will meet in Firemen's Hall, on Thursday evening, May 17th, at 8 o'clock.

PLANTS FOR SALE. — Exc. Plants, Tomato Plants, and Chrysanthemums. H. M. PHILLIPS, Main Road.

Mrs. George Warner and daughter, Miss Pearl, and Miss Tyson, are visiting at Mrs. Nepleigh's.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Wilson are spending a few weeks here. Mrs. W. has been in a city hospital.

ZAMBONES. Persian lawn, 40 inches wide, 10c. and 12c.

Mrs. Samuel G. Newcomb and two children, from Brooklyn, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Newcomb.

To-morrow, Friendship M. E. Church (near Newtonville) will celebrate its ninety-eighth anniversary.

FLOWERS for Memorial Day for sale, — all kinds. Can be had at Hammononton Cemetery on and after Saturday, May 13th.

PHANK EMERY.

The Beard family will be missed by their many friends here. They are packing up to move to Washington.

The home of Dr. Jas. Haverler, at Aston, known to many here, was destroyed by fire on Thursday. Cause, a defective flue.

AN EXTRA NICK Lot of Candy at the Candy Kitchen today. A good lot of our own make and a fresh lot of candy. Also ice cream, — vanilla, strawberry, and chocolate.

Up to yesterday, $130.74 had been received toward the San Francisco relief fund. Let us make it $200, and that right soon.

If you want an evening's enjoyment, take in the entertainment this evening, in Bellevue Hall. Benefit of Fourth of July fund.

ZAMBONES. Linens for sale, 30 and 35c. 25c.

Mr. D. S. Ballany, of East March Chunk, Pa., is Robert Hoad's new watchmaker, — his rush of work requiring another man.

W. J. Lieb and family moved to Camden this week, where Mr. L. has bought a prosperous drug store at Third and Washington Streets.

YOUNG MEN WANTED to learn the business of the HAMMONONTON BIRD COMPANY.

Word has been received of the safety of Mrs. Fanny Ramsey-Perry, in Fresno, Cal. They left the earthquake shock, but no damage was done.

Insure with the A. H. Phillips Co., Bartlett Building, Atlantic City.

W. C. Jones has taken a five year lease of the Fairchild store. The improvements have made this a very desirable location for his business.

There will be a meeting of the Hammononton Alumni Association Executive Committee next Monday evening, at the residence of Mrs. G. M. Crowell.

PGGS for Hatching. — Warrented, White Wyandottes, Minors, Rhode Island Reds, etc. — ORVILLE BASSETT, Corner Bellevue and Valley Aves.

Mrs. A. J. Elder and daughter are visiting relatives at Wendenah. Miss Elder's throat was operated upon on Wednesday, and she is getting along nicely.

After a separation of twenty years, Mrs. Lillian Floyd, of San Diego, Cal., will spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. Russell Moore, of Bellevue Avenue.

LIONARD'S CAKE SPECIAL for next week is equal to the same high grade as the baked cake that was a popular last week. 10c. for the kind; 12c. for the kind.

Mr. E. Grover, formerly of Hammononton, now residing in Arizona, called on friends here last week Friday, on the way to visit his father, Col. Grover, in Maize.

Messrs. B. W. Richards, Wm. H. Burnhouse, and M. L. Jackson, with their wives, are guests of Prof. Voorhies, at the New Jersey Experiment Station, in New Brunswick.

YOU Cannot Afford to take any chance with your health. Machine made bread is pure and clean, and being perfectly mixed, will digest more easily than hand-made bread. Ask for it at Child's or Jackson's, or send postal to Leonard's Bakery.

W. G. K. Lenz has leased the old post-office building for his barber business. The second story is being fitted up, and other improvements made, for a residence for Mr. L.

Henry E. Titon, son of Mrs. Lewis Spryco, Sr., died on Wednesday, May 9th, of consumption, aged 21 yrs. Funeral service this (Saturday) morning, 11 o'clock, in St. Joseph's Church.

FOR SALE. — "Field" horse-power sprayer, with various attachments, 100 gallon tank and Field force pump, equipped with hose and nozzle for spraying five rows of potatoes or truck. Little used. In perfect order. Cost $75. Will sell for $35. A. J. RIDER.

Bear in mind the P. O. S. of A. entertainment in Old Fellow's Hall, Monday evening, May 21st. Proceeds will go towards paying for their piano. Admission, 15 cents.

Miss Mabel Anderson's remains were brought to Hammononton on Monday, and buried in Greenmount Cemetery. Her death was a shock to many friends here, and many words of sympathy were spoken.

WE HAVE The Baker Book with us for twenty years from Ackers, and will give the price of the book of call to those who when she refused, beat her. On Sunday Constable Hoyle arrested him at the station, as he was about to take the train, with his children. Justice Garton turned him over to Constable Bates, of Camden County. Then it was noted that no one had seen the wife since 10 o'clock Saturday night. After searching many hours, they found her in a barn, near home, badly bruised and cut, suffering from wounds and neglect. When Camden County gets through with the brute, Atlantic County will call him to account.

List of unmailed letters in the Hammononton Post Office on Wednesday, May 9, 1906.

Mrs. John D. Italy. Austin G. Brown. Hyatt Boiler Boating Co. Peter Finer. Francesco Vitelli. Antonio Pagano. Antonio Pagano. W. H. P. M. M. L. JACKSON, P. M.

Persons calling for any of the above letters will please state that it has been advertised.

There are many cases of measles in town; but we have heard of no bad results.

Mrs. E. M. Fairchild was in Hammononton two or three days this week, on business.

FOR SALE. — Merceus blackberry and P. Stephens' late vintage plants. E. J. MONFORT, Middle Road.

According to the papers "Samuel S. Osgood" was Hammononton's member of the Grand Jury, this week.

CARD. I sincerely thank the friends and all others who worked hard to save my property from fire, on Friday, May 4th. WM. DURNING.

40 Acre Farm for sale, on Fourteenth St., Hammononton. No reasonable offer refused. E. A. JOSELYN, Twelfth Street.

Last Sunday afternoon, as Fred. Mealey, Jr., and his sisters were crossing the W. J. Railroad, the horses were frightened by an automobile, which approached on the County Road, and ran away, going up Bellevue at frantic speed. They were stopped at Fourth Street. One of the horses was badly cut. No other damage.

PLANTS for SALE. — Sweet Potato, Early Cabage, Tomato, Egg Plant, etc., now ready. E. J. MONFORT & SON.

Last week Monday, a workman in Duble & Myrosee's saw-mill, at Cecil, attempted to shift the power with his foot, but kicked too high and struck the twin saw, which mangled his toes and foot badly.

HIGHEST PRICE paid for all kinds of old junk in large or small quantities. Send postal and I will call. W. L. BLACK, Hammononton, N. J.

As recorded in our little extra, last week, Wm. Dunning's barn and chicken houses were destroyed by fire on Friday evening. His house was also damaged, and only saved by hard work. Willie, ten-year-old son, was burning wood-pile, and the wind blew fire into bedding lying near the barn, which instantly burst into flame. After trying in vain to extinguish the fire, aided by his mother, the boy, though always afraid of cattle, entered the barn and cut loose every cow, saving the herd.

Some months ago, an Italian was arrested for attempting to kill a compatriot, near Waterford. He was held for trial, but skipped, and his bondsmen paid the $800. It is said that the man went to Italy; but last Saturday he returned to Hammononton. The story goes that he called on his wife, who lives on Main Road, and tried to persuade her to leave with him, and when she refused, beat her. On Sunday Constable Hoyle arrested him at the station, as he was about to take the train, with his children. Justice Garton turned him over to Constable Bates, of Camden County. Then it was noted that no one had seen the wife since 10 o'clock Saturday night. After searching many hours, they found her in a barn, near home, badly bruised and cut, suffering from wounds and neglect. When Camden County gets through with the brute, Atlantic County will call him to account.

WANTED — a man to drive five acres of good heavy land on shares. W. H. P. M. M. L. JACKSON, P. M.

Postmaster Jackson certainly has had luck in securing permanent assistants in the office. Just as soon as one becomes useful to Uncle Sam, one of his nephews comes along and appropriates her. There is a position open to some good-looking young lady, if she applies at once.

PAKLY Tomato, Egg, Pepper, Cabbage, and Sweet Potato Plants, for sale. Come and see them about 10. MONFORT & SON.

The eighty-seventh anniversary of Old Fellowship will be celebrated this evening, in Winslow Lodge Hall. Over fifty visiting brothers are expected — including a team from Mays Landing, who will take charge of initiation ceremonies. There will be a big feed, also. Let every member turn out.

I have the Horton Place, corner Central and Avenue A, Hammononton, for sale. Come and see them about 10. MONFORT & SON.

The combination car on the noon accommodation train left the track near Vine Street, last Saturday, and was in shape to partially block the south-bound track for several hours. The wrecking train made a record run from Mays Landing, and cleared the way. The car was damaged.

There is an industry in town which brings in seventy-five dollars per week and yet but few besides those employed know anything about it. The work — knitting babies' bonnets — is done during spare minutes, is easy, and supplies a large number with pin money. Five thousand dozen pairs were done during the past winter — their best year. Miss Mary Saxton has conducted this enterprise for several years.

There are many cases of measles in town; but we have heard of no bad results.

Mrs. E. M. Fairchild was in Hammononton two or three days this week, on business.

FOR SALE. — Merceus blackberry and P. Stephens' late vintage plants. E. J. MONFORT, Middle Road.

According to the papers "Samuel S. Osgood" was Hammononton's member of the Grand Jury, this week.

CARD. I sincerely thank the friends and all others who worked hard to save my property from fire, on Friday, May 4th. WM. DURNING.

40 Acre Farm for sale, on Fourteenth St., Hammononton. No reasonable offer refused. E. A. JOSELYN, Twelfth Street.

Last Sunday afternoon, as Fred. Mealey, Jr., and his sisters were crossing the W. J. Railroad, the horses were frightened by an automobile, which approached on the County Road, and ran away, going up Bellevue at frantic speed. They were stopped at Fourth Street. One of the horses was badly cut. No other damage.

PLANTS for SALE. — Sweet Potato, Early Cabage, Tomato, Egg Plant, etc., now ready. E. J. MONFORT & SON.

Last week Monday, a workman in Duble & Myrosee's saw-mill, at Cecil, attempted to shift the power with his foot, but kicked too high and struck the twin saw, which mangled his toes and foot badly.

Sporting Goods

You will find the Finest Assortment
that has ever been in town
At PATTEN'S.

For Ten Cents.

We have now a new lot of those 10 cent articles,
— wonderful values.

Gingham and White Aprons
for Ladies and Children.

Children's Muslin Drawers,
Sofa Cushion Covers — all made ready to slip on the cushion,
Table Covers, etc.

W. L. BLACK.

Independent Phone No. 531

Hardware, Stoves,

Plumbing, Gas Fitting

Artesian Wells.

We have a nice line of Knives and Scissors.

H. McD. LITTLE

Cor. Bellevue and Central Aves., Hammononton.

VEAL to-day

AT

Jackson's Market

Until we Move

We will sell you most anything we have at a decided reduction.

We do this as we intend to consolidate our two stores, and will have too much stock for one place.

In order to quickly reduce it, we will give you the benefit of our profit.

Come in now, to get these bargains.

W. C. JONES,
The Watchmaker.

Have you any Berry Tickets?

Notice to Creditors.
Estate of William F. Vernier, Deceased.
Pursuant to the order of Emanuel C. Shaver, Surrogate of the County of Atlantic, this day made on the application of the undersigned, Executors of the said deceased, notice is hereby given to the creditors of the said deceased to exhibit to the subscriber, under oath or affirmation, their claims and demands against the estate of the said deceased, within nine months from this date, or they will be forever barred from prosecuting or recovering the same against the subscribers. EUGENE R. VERNIER, EMMA A. VERNIER, Executors.
May's Landing, N. J.,
April 2, 1900.

Upholstering
in general and Painting.

Wm. B. PLEASANTON,
County Road, Hammonton, N. J.

To Milk Consumers.

Having purchased the route of Ed. G. Bernhouse, I will serve
MILK IN BOTTLES
early mornings, and evenings where desired, in time for meals.
Hail the wagon,
Call by Phone,
or drop a Postal,
and same will be attended to promptly.

Harry Woodley.

The Peoples Bank

for

Hammonton, N. J.

Capital, $30,000
Surplus and Undivided
Profits, . $44,419

Three per cent interest paid on time Deposits.

Safe Deposit Boxes for Rent

R. J. BYRNES, President.
M. L. JACKSON, Vice-Prest.
W. R. TILTON, Cashier.

DIRECTORS

R. J. Byrnes M. L. Jackson
C. F. Osgood George Elvins
Elam Stockwell Wm. L. Black
Wm. J. Smith J. C. Anderson
L. H. Parkhurst W. R. Tilton

The Hammonton

TELEPHONE

AND

Telegraph Co.

Leave your order for Phones
at the office,

No. 1 Egg Harbor Road,

L. FRANK HORNE,

Secretary.

A. H. Phillips Co.

Fire Insurance.

MONEY

Mortgage Loans.

Correspondence Solicited.
Bartlett Building,
Atlantic City, N. J.

For Artistic Signs

of every description

Try
J. O. YOHIO,

Barth Road,
Hammonton, N. J.

Town Council Meeting.

Regular meeting was held last Saturday evening, all members being present.

Highway Committee reported that four auto street signs were painted.

License Com. reported favorably on Ben. Foglietto's application, and adversely on Battagliese's. Later, both were declared refused, the former by vote of 3 to 3, the latter by 4 to 2.

Fire, Water and Light Committee. Force pump had been installed at the up-town fire house; part of arc lights on Bellevue had been changed to incandescents; that new lamp had been ordered for down-town fire house.

Property Com. Had secured a dozen police badges.

Bills ordered paid:

Highways.....	$1 75
Nuzzio Bruno.....	10 65
W H Burgess, scraper blade, etc.....	4 75
Frank Polio.....	5 00
G Tomasella.....	7 50
A Tuno.....	71 20
C C Combe.....	$114 83

Poor.....	$24 00
Mrs McClelland, board and care.....	117 00
County Almshouse, boarding.....	8 00
Jackson & Son, goods.....	8 00
E Stockwell, goods.....	18 00
W L Black, goods.....	41 00
Geo Elvins, goods.....	$214 00

Town Purposes.....	$5 50
B F Henshaw, janitor.....	25 80
J W Myer, marshal.....	34 70
Hoyt & Son, adv and printing.....	15 00
Geo Bernhouse, overseer-poor.....	6 00
Police badges.....	$88 00

Street Lights.....	$41 57
Gas.....	140 12
Electric.....	$1 00

Board of Health.....

Burying dogs.....

Horse hire.....

A petition was received for changing arc light at County Road and Maple Street to incandescents. Referred to committee, with power to act.

Application for renewal of license was received from Jos. F. Bowker, and referred.

Ordinance creating and defining the duties of the Board of Health brought up, and was passed second and final reading.

Justice Jacobs gave synopsis of new automobile law, in which is recommended appointment of "inspector" or special officer. Left in hands of Law and Order Committee.

Overseer of Poor stated that the wife of the broken-back Italian deserted him on Friday, leaving him helpless and alone; that he had employed a woman to care for him a few days, at one dollar per day. Of course, Council instructed him to act at his discretion. As the man had purchased a farm for four hundred dollars, and paid about one-half, he may turn it over to the town to pay for his care.

Mrs. McClelland asked for one dollar additional per week for care of Mrs. Bothell. It will be granted.

It was mentioned that the ordinance on sidewalk obstruction conflicts with the Charter. There will have to be a revision of ordinances, perhaps wholesale before we are through. Matter with Law and Order Committee, to call special meeting of Council.

It was recommended that a day officer be appointed, to keep streets open during berry time.

Suggested that all night gas lamps be placed on lower Bellevue, in place of electric, for watchman's benefit.

Wm. Bernhouse recommended that flags be hung over Bellevue, a quarter or half-mile apart, to assist motormen in regulating their speed.

Reported, that signs on Main Road had cut deep into trees, and should be removed.

One hundred dollars was appropriated to fix up Grand Street, from 12th to Line Street.

The usual fifty dollars was ordered for Memorial Day expenses.

Section boss John Bakely asked permission to burn off the waste oil from gas works, which is over a foot deep in places; but as the liquid is on private property, and near dwellings, Council would not assume the responsibility. Mr. Bakely will choose a quiet day, then have a large gang of laborers to protect property, and burn it off. The gas company now run the waste into a twenty-foot cess-pool, and burn it.

Property owners will soon be taxed their proportion of the expense of last season's tree-spraying.

Original owners of properties sold for taxes two years ago will be notified that the last day for redemption will be Aug. 6th.

Young People's Societies.

Y. P. S. C. E.,—Presbyterian Church:
Meets Sunday evening, at 6:30.
Topic, Christ's life. V. "Lessons from His miracles of healing." Matt. 9: 27-34; 25: 31-40. Leader, Andrew Littlefield.

Y. P. S. C. E.,—Baptist Church:
Meets Sunday evening, at 6:30.
Topic, Christ's life. V. "Lessons from His miracles of healing." Matt. 9: 27-34; 25: 31-40. Leader, Miss Emma Vernier.

Jr. C. E., Sunday afternoon, at 3:00.
Epworth League, —M. E. Church:
Meets Sunday evening, at 6:30.

Topic, League Anniversary. "Investing our lives." Matt. 13: 44-46; Luke 5: 11; 14: 28-33; John 12: 25; 1 Cor. 9: 19-23; Acts 20: 11-24; 2 Tim. 4: 6-8. Leader, Robt. Steel.

Church Announcements.

Baptist Church.—Rev. Wiltshire W. Williams, Pastor. 10.30 a. m., "Faith's accomplishments." 7.30 p. m., "Following a great Master."

M. E. Church.—Rev. J. H. Payman, Pastor.

Universalist Church.—12.00 m., Sunday School. 7.00 p. m., "Fear vs. Love in Religion," by Rev. J. L. Dowson, of Philadelphia.

Italian Evangelical.—Rev. J. A. Scariel, Pastor. Sunday services: Sabbath School, 10.30 to 11.15; preaching following.

St. Mark's Church.—Rev. Paul F. Hoffman, Pastor. Sunday, 7.30 a. m. (except first Sunday in the month), 10.30, and 7.30 p. m. Sunday School at 12 m. Weekday services, 7.30 a. m. daily, and Friday and Saturday Evening at 4.30.

20 words (or less)
in the Republican 10c

The Advantages
Of Buying at Oak Hall
Are These:

You get absolutely all-wool materials.
You get thoroughly tailored clothing.
You get good style.
You get clothing moderately priced.

You can come here expecting $10 to do great work—it will pay you to see the line of black chevots and fancy chevots at this price.

Men's hard twisted worsted suits in gray shades begin at $15—this is the most popular price point in the stock, and we give exceptionally big value on this account.

If you don't care for gray worsted we show also at this price a very fine line in black thibets—black unfinished worsteds, gray, black and blue serges—rough surface materials as well for those who want them.

40 Different Patterns

In Young Men's Suits, 31 to 34 inches chest measure, at $12 and $13.50.

This is a showing that cannot be matched. These are fashionable suits in the newest models and most popular fabrics.

23 Different Patterns

In Boys' Suits with knee trousers, 8 to 17 years, at $4.50 and $5. The styles are the Norfolk and Double Breasted Sack. All the newest fabrics are represented. One line stands out very prominently; it is the new blue serge in the double breasted model—the price is $5. Serge always sounds cool, and it is cool—fine for service, too.

CARFARE TO PHILADELPHIA

If you purchase a certain amount here and show your return ticket, we pay your carfare both ways.

Wanamaker & Brown

OAK HALL.

S. E. Cor. Sixth and Market Sts., Philadelphia.

Cumberland Mutual

Fire Insurance Co.

Bridgeton, N. J.
Chartered 1844.

Members Secure
Insurance at Cost.
Losses Promptly Paid.

Wayland DePuy, Agt.,

Hammonton, N. J.

Get the S. J. R. for first-hand news

Whether the weather

is clear or cloudy, wet or dry, hot or cold, it's all the same to the building painted with

Lucas Paints

(Tinted Gloss)

They're made to stand weather—pure materials, finely ground and thoroughly mixed. They are the result of over sixty years of honest making and have always come out victorious in severe testing.

John Lucas & Co Philadelphia

Lakeview
GREEN-
HOUSE

Central Ave., Hammonton, N. J.

Large assortment of Palms, Ferns, House Plants,
Cut Flowers. Funeral Designs
in Fresh Flowers, Wax, or Metal.

WATKIS & NICHOLSON,
Florists and Landscape Gardeners.
Phone 1-W

SHOES

Good variety to select from.

Twenty styles of

DOUGLASS

Shoes for Men and Boys.

The Walton

Shoe is the best that can be bought for boys.
Take a look at them.

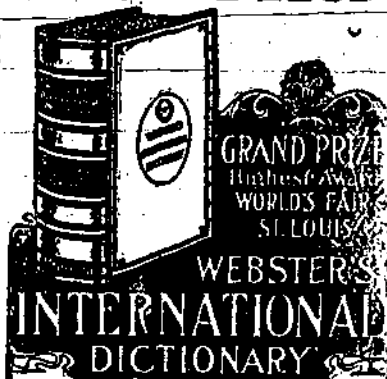

JOHN MURDOCH.

Lyford Beverage

Notary: Public

for New Jersey,
tenders his services.
Pension vouchers executed.
Hammonton, N. J.

GET THE BEST

Recently Enlarged

WITH

25,000 New Words

New Gazetteer of the World with more than 25,000 titles, based on the latest census returns.

New Biographical Dictionary

containing the names of over 10,000 noted persons, date of birth, death, etc.

Edited by W. T. HARRIS, Ph.D., LL.D.,
United States Commissioner of Education.

2386 Quarto Pages

New Plates, 5000 Illustrations, Rich Bindings

Needed in Every Home

Also Webster's Collegiate Dictionary

1118 Pages, 120 Illustrations.

Regular Edition 7x10 1/2 inches, 3 bindings.

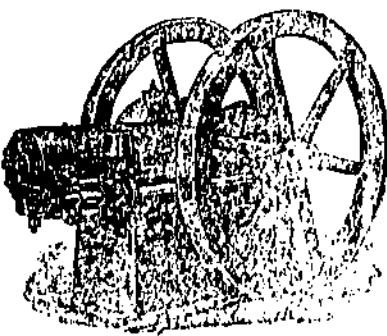

Do Luxe Edition 8x10 1/2 inches. Printed from new plates, on white paper, a beautiful binding.

PRICE, "Dictionary Webster's," Illustrated pamphlet.

G. & C. MERRIAM CO.,

Publishers, Springfield, Mass.

The Brown
Gas and Gasoline Engine

gives universal satisfaction.

J. W. ROLLER, Hammonton, N. J.

John Walther

The BLACKSMITH

AND

WHEELWRIGHT

Has removed to the shop lately occupied by Al. Hohenstein, on the County
Road, and is ready to do

Any Work in His Line.

Berry Tickets. For the best quality and workmanship, try the Printer your neighbors all recommend. Hoyt & Son.