The Light in the Window.

Near the entrance of a harbor Of one of the Oregon Isles, Stands a lonely rock where never God's beautiful verdure smiles:
Forever grim and sombre It stands in the bright sunlight, Or is half-obscured, or hidden,
By the gray storm mist, or night.
On a night of storm and darkness, Some fifty years ago,
A fair young girl watched lonely
The slow hours come and go;
For her fisherman life she waited;
But alas! she waited in vain—His boat had struck on the "Lone Rock," And he never could come again.
In her deep and bitter sorrow Not alone of herself she thought, But to save from sorrow others,
With a humble heart she sought;
She was only a tender maiden,
And humble, meek and poor, But she said, "while I live for others I will labor and endure."
Henceforth from her cottage window, A ray of light
The fisherman safely guided O'er the waters in the night;
No master now far out the harbor, If the fisherman could behold
The light in that humble window, His heart grew light and bold; For he knew that the "Lone Rock" only Could that steady light obscure;
And though dark the night, and stormy,
With that light he felt secure;
So the "Lone Rock" lost its terrors, Though its shadows still it threw O'er those stormy northern waters, And the hearty fisher's crew.
But what of the tender maiden?
The years passed slowly by,
And the hairs of her head were silvered, And dim grew the light of her eye;
Each night she sat by her window But trimmed her light and spun, And slept when her neighbors worked In the light of the glorious sun.
Alone she watched and labored, Through youth until old age,
And still when the bright stars glitter,
Or the wild storms fiercely rage, Through winter's blinding snow storms Or summer's mists and rain, Gleams bright o'er that lonely harbor,
The light through her window-pane.
The fisherman, poor and needy, Ad never to her store,
And never in words had thanked her,
Who for them this burden bore;
But there by her lonely window Will the silent watchman wait, Until the Lord shall open For her the "Golden Gate."

WM. H. HOPKINS.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 15, 1878.

The merely sensational effect of the sudden deposition of Collector Arthur and Naval Officer Cornell has subsided, leaving the commentators tolerably well settled as to the grounds of their approval or disapproval. Truth compels the statement that very few have there-been heard from willing to volunteer any defense of what looks like almost anything but "Civil Service Reform," according to the view of all but an insignificant number of those who have yet made their verdict public. "Reform" has been further shocked by the announcement of the appointment of Alex. Reed to an office away out in Washington Territory. Very few have forgotten the persistency with which Reed was urged on the Senate for confirmation as Postmaster of Toledo last winter. His name was rejected each time his name was presented, and despairing, seemingly, of getting him confirmed in an office nearer home, he has been banished to the Western wilds. A discrimination in favor of the Western over the Southern carpet-bag official seems to have made an opening for a class of men who have found it wholly impracticable to secure such endorsement for official position among those intimately acquainted with them, as to induce the Senate to look on their candidacy with any sort of favor.
The investigators have looked up and gone home. Potter and his adherents persisted to the last in their refusal to hear Mr. Sherman's witnesses. By them the Secretary declared he could prove the most frightful reign of terror tolerated by a community professing civilization, during the Presidential campaign in the two Pelicanas. Mr. Sherman said he could show by this that, above 30 Republicans were made to bite the dust in those two parishes alone, besides numberless other outrages only one degree less shocking. Of course they were not the kind of witnesses the honorable Potter and his fellows cared to hear. It was much more important to show the country that Mr.
Sherman wrote a letter to Webster and Anderson. But upon such hypocrisy, Kellogg was about the only witness examined since the Committee re-opened the show, and he appeared an unwilling one throughout. Next to Potter, people here seem of the opinion that Butler has proved the most lamentable failure of any of the patriots who hoped to distinguish themselves by sowing the seed of revelation. The whole business has turned out too contemptible, even to be called a farce.

The evil genius that has never relaxed its grip on Democracy since it precipitated the country into the whirlpool of civil war, seems to still have full possession of the party press.
It could not do the work the Republicans would have of it more certainly were that party's managers directing it. In their fear of Gen. Grant and their frantic efforts to kill him they have brought him into a prominence that may give him the nomination of acclimation. Thus far we hear much about Hayes' successor, here; and where any other name is heard in that connection once, I think it is no exaggeration to say Gen. Grant is heard a dozen times among Republicans, both "stalwart" and Administration.
The mention of his name, even with the mercury dangerously near 100 in the shade, arouses a degree of enthusiasm that reminds one of old "Wide Awake" times. In 1860 there is undoubtedly a feeling of confidence in him in an emergency, not accorded any other man. Grant and Blaine is the 1st-rate state. Thurman is a good deal talked about on the other side. But it would start the party out under such a load of ridicule to attempt to match the "bloody shirt" with Thurman's "red bandanna" that it would break down before the half mile pole was reached.

The intelligence received this morning from the Oregon hostilities has startled every one and seems to confirm the belief that Howard's engagement was only with a fragment of the Indian force. The terror of all dispatches now being received at the War Department is to the effect that the Oregon Indians heretofore dependent upon as friendly, have become wholly disaffected and will cast in their lot with those openly in arms whenever the opportunity offers.
This is probably the case all over the Northwest, or soon will be, unless we gain a decisive advantage soon. Notwithstanding the confident assurances of the other day, this latest news seems to have created something like a panic in official circles.

Though we have been assured that Mr. Sherman contemplates no immediate proclamation of resumption, the weight of opinion is that it will have been accomplished by Oct. 1st, and that of Mr. Sherman's movements seem to be taken with a view to reaching that end as speedily as possible. As Indian matters have forged to the front, the Mexican situation has receded temporarily. But its possibilities for a surprise war, considered months ago quite equal to the Indian question, and may yet prove more startling.

Cure for the Bite of Mad Dogs.

In the year 1819 Valentine Kettering, of Dauphin county, communicated to the Senate of Pennsylvania "a cure remedy for the bite of any mad animal." Mr. Kettering stated that his ancestors used it in Germany 250 years ago, and that he always found it to answer the purpose, during a residence of over fifty years in the United States, and that he only published the remedy from pure motives of humanity.
This remedy consists in a weed called chickweed. It is a summer plant, known to the Germans and Swiss by the names of Gauchnoll, Rother Mayor, or Rother Huchnerdarm. In England it is called Red Phosphorus, and its botanical name is Gallica Phoenicea. It must be gathered in June, when in full bloom, in the shade, and then pulverized. The dose of this for a grown person is a small teaspoonful, or in weight a drachm and a scruple, at once in beer or water.

For children the dose is the same, yet it must be administered at three different times. In applying it must be used green, cut to pieces and mixed with bran or other feed. For hogs the pulverized weed is made into balls by mixing it with flour and water. It can be put on bread and butter, or in honey, molasses, etc.
The Rev. Muhlenberg said that in Germany, fairly grains of this powder are given four times a day, the first day, then once a day the whole week, while at the same time the wound is washed out with a decoction of the weed and the powder stored in it. Mr. Kettering said that he, in all instances, administered but one dose, with the most happy results. This is said to be the same remedy through which the late Dr. William Story effected so many cures.

Whitney's Musical Guest for July has come to us very much enlarged, the publisher having added several pages of choice music to his former size and transformed it into a Quarterly publication, commencing with the present July number—the next issue will be the October number. The reason for making this change is announced editorially—which, no doubt, will meet with the general approbation of its patrons.
The yearly subscription price now is reduced to one dollar, postage prepaid, and single copies 25 cents. No specimen copies hereafter will be sent for 10 cents. The selection of music in this number is unusually good and of great variety. It contains 30 pages, or over—$2.00 worth of sheet music in usual form, and 25 etc. will pay for a copy, post paid. Address, W. W.
WHITNEY, Publisher, Toledo, O.

An Undeniable Truth.

You deserve to suffer, and if you lead a miserable, unsatisfactory life in this beautiful world, it is entirely your own fault and there is only one excuse for you, —your unreasonable prejudice and skepticism, which has killed thousands. Personal knowledge and common sense reasoning will soon show you that Green's Augusta Pile Cure will cure you of Liver Complaint or Dyspepsia, with all its miserable effects, such as acid humors, indigestion, biliousness, of the heart, poor stomach, general weakness, dizziness of the head, nervous irritation, loss of sleep, etc. It makes you reach every vein in the Western Continent and not a Druggist but what will tell you of its wonderful cures. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents. Three doses will relieve you

TEMPERANCE.

The Fruits of Intemperance.

The punishment of vice and intemperance does not end with the vicious and intemperate, but the great human family is so constituted that one member suffers without pulling down others. Thus in an appalling degree, are parents answerable for the weakness and vices of their children.

A man drinks moderately and steadily all his life, with no apparent harm to himself, but his daughters become nervous wrecks, his sons epileptic, libertines, or incurable drunkards; the hereditary tendency to crime, having its pathology and unvaried laws, like scrofula, consumption, or any other purely physical disease.
These are stale truths with medical men; but the majority of parents, even those of average intelligence and culture, are apparently either ignorant or wickedly regardless of them. When our people are brought to remove gin-shops and gin-sellers for the same reason that they would stagnant ponds or unclean sewers, there will be a chance of ridding our jails and almshouses of half their tenants. We have urged this point until it has become hackneyed and tedious; but how can we be silent so long as a fresh murder or suicide every day exemplifies the ghastly peril and its cause?—New York Tribune.

There is to be a Camp Meeting of the National Christian Temperance Union, at Round Lake, N. Y., to commence Aug. 6, and continue eight days. Round Lake is 19 miles from Saratoga, and 18 miles from Troy. Francis Murphy, the great apostle of Temperance, is the soul of the enterprise. A great number of prominent temperance advocates and speakers will be present. It is hoped much good will be accomplished.

The N. J. State Agricultural Society.

A very full and accurately prepared list of the premiums offered by the New Jersey State Agricultural Society for its twentieth grand fair and exhibition, which will open on Monday, Sept. 16th, and continue through the week, will be found at the office of the Corresponding Secretary of the society, Mr. P. T. Quinn, at the Board of Trade rooms, for the benefit of all who may be concerned. Among other things the society desire to call attention to their new Diploma of Merit, which, on request, has been substituted for a money premium. The society also propose to enter upon a comparatively new field, and give premiums for Decorative Art—painted china, etc., to exercise the taste and ingenuity of the ladies. In this connection it may be observed that there will be important changes in the building department, especially in that portion of it allotted to ladies' work, decorative art, etc., the intention being to give this class of work a much better show than it has ever before had. And the useful into be looked after as well as the ornamental.
Mr. Brown will give a premium for the best corn bread and cake and ordinary loaf bread, made by any girl of fifteen years or under. The society last year had a most successful fair, and this year have made preparations to surpass it.
All the old features of the fair will be present, but each department will be more largely and fully represented.—S. Freeman.

Lippincott's Magazine "Along the Danube," by Edward King, is the opening paper of Lippincott's Magazine for August, and both text and illustrations are spirited and lively. Edward H. Knight, one of our commissioners to the Paris Exposition, and a member of the jury on machinery, gives an illustrated paper on the Buildings and Grounds, with suggestive comparisons between Paris and Philadelphia. A much livelier article, and one better suited to the present temperature, is "A Water Sailing Place," by Wirt Bikes; but the gem of the number is "The British Soldier," by Henry James, Jr., in which the exquisite irony and delicate powers of the writer are emphasized on a most attractive theme. "Sambo: a Man and a Brother," by S. A. Shields, contains some pictures of negro character from personal observation which cannot fail to be read with interest. Mrs. Hopper sketches the career of the Empress Eugenie with such animation and causticity, and Mrs. Howland gives an account of a new system of Musical Notation. There is a striking story in the number entitled "A Saxon God," and the new serial, "Through Winding Ways," show a capital study of life with a gentility of tone that is especially charming. There are other good things in the number, which is almost wholly of a light character, suitable for the month.

When Jeff Davis signed his accession piece, before the army of Tennessee the star-spangled banner kept up such a patriotic flapping just over his head that it annoyed him.

This may be a free country, but we are inclined to doubt it when the Democrats leaders of the south coolly announce that where Republican votes are cast they will not be counted.
