Why was this Waste?

In an address on the above subject, our State Superintendent of Public Instruction said that when he taught he had two boys of nearly equal ability in his room, and both doing well. One day Harry did not appear, and being absent for several days, inquiry was made about him. It was found that he had left school to take a position in a store, at five dollars a week.

Continuing, Dr. Baxter said: "No amount of persuasion could convince the lad that his wisest course was to finish his High School Course, as his father wished and his best friends all advised. William continued and graduated, then took a course in a higher school, and to-day is making $18 a week with prospect of rapid advancement. Harry is making $12 a week, with a possible $15 in time, but no hope beyond that. Why was this waste?"

It offers me a basis to say a word of warning to the indiscriminate and frequently wholly useless tendency of dropping out of High School.

Not a year passes in which I do not receive communications from former students, asking how much we can do for them. They wish to enter higher institutions. With a High School diploma, they would be received without condition. Not having it means one, two or more years of study in preparation, in a fitting school, or much expense for private lessons.

One of our distinguished townsmen recently said, in my presence, that he doubted whether the people generally of our town realized the opportunities for higher education of their children lying at their very doors. The community, guided by the Board of Education, have built up a High School curriculum offering a large range of electives, giving in a Commercial course preparation for business, and in its Classical course preparation for college; and also, by its scope and flexibility of the elective system, the opportunity for any pupil to get the training and education best suited to his needs.

Private schools attempting to do the work that the High Schools are doing charge from $300 per year, upward.

My aim in writing this is to open the eyes of any who may be halting between two opinions, to cause those who may take the training that a High School can give, and yet contemplate not doing it, to think, and not turn away from the golden opportunity; and when it is too late, to curse their so-called "bad luck" because the gates of knowledge are closed to them.

There is no doubt that the High School curriculum in the United States is the nearest standard for estimation of the training of an individual than any other. Its graduates find a hundred avenues to higher schools and occupations open to them that their more unfortunate brothers find closed.

By the time the pupils now in our schools become the men and women doing the world's work, it will be found that the High School education is as necessary an equipment for life as was that of the district school in the days of our fathers.

What shall be the motive of the parent? Shall it be the commination of the present case of the child, or assenting to his desire for money making (frequently to be at once used for fine clothes and present pleasure), or the coloring of the life of the child into dollars and cents, rushing him into factory or store at the earliest possible legal age? Or shall it be a larger outlook upon the child's future, — an outlook governed only by the highest possible promise, — placing in his hand, by a thorough education, a key which will fit the many enigmas of life, and giving him that which is the birthright of every child on American soil, — the best education the state provides.

REST.

The night is wild and weird and chill—
Rest, little one, rest;
The heart is bright beneath the hill—
Rest, little one, rest.

Thy father's earned thy bread to-day—
Rest, little one, rest;
The moon shines on his homeward way—
Rest, little one, rest.

Stout and brave in the winter storm—
Rest, little one, rest;
The snowed brow to keep thee warm—
Rest, little one, rest.

Down from the blue above thy head—
Rest, little one, rest;
A will, good come to make thy bed—
Rest, little one, rest.

A sheep's fleece gave thy gown to thee—
Rest, little one, rest;
Thy cradle was cut from a great oak tree—
Rest, little one, rest.

The dew's milk in its cup—
Rest, little one, rest;
Thou mayest drink when the morning star—
Rest, little one, rest.

Wake not, for thy mother go away—
Rest, little one, rest;
Thou hast no harm, for God will stay—
Rest, little one, rest.

Say not, for at the wind's whisper—
Rest, little one, rest;
The world is cradled in Love's strong arms—
Rest, little one, rest.

THE BRIDLE OFF.

18 U. Reginald, here are your books.

"I've read all my books, Aunt Em."

"Then I'll buy you some more books," said Aunt Em, with an indulgent smile.

"I don't want any more, I'm tired of reading," retorted the little rebel.

"Why not take your bicycle and go out for a ride?" suggested the woman, who was finding her sister's son more than she could manage.

"I hate the old bicycle," was the angry rejoinder.

"Why, Reginald! And it is so pretty and so expensive!"

"Why, Reginald! And it is so pretty and so expensive!"

"Why, Reginald! And it is so pretty and so expensive!"

BOYS AND GIRLS

Two little known Indian tribes.

The handsomest Indians in the world are the Onas—inhabitants of Terra del Fuego.

They are very tall and have strikingly beautiful features.

They wear no clothing except a loincloth of animal skin, which they wrap about their waists.

They never stay more than a night or two in the same place. The reason for this is that an evil spirit is thought to be pursuing them, and they move on to avoid being overtaken.

When they stop in their wanderings they dig a hole in the ground three feet deep. They weave branches over this, and at night all crawl into this hole and tuck together with their dogs for warmth.

Another tribe is called the Yaghas. These Indians get their living from the sea instead of the land. In appearance they greatly resemble the Onas, with the exception that they are much smaller.

They eat mollusks, fish, birds and fowl. Birds are cooked in an unusual manner by the Yaghas, and yet red-hot stones inside them and then plunge them into the sea.

They also have an original way of roasting eggs. They break a hole in the end of the egg, which is then stood upright in the ashes before the fire. This is turned round and round, that it may be cooked evenly.

The Yaghas are good hunters, the women being excellent fishers. They are more fearless than the men, whom they excel in the management of boats and in swimming their rivers.

Now Tell Me True.

Now tell me true, What would you do If you were me?

Would you stay home And muddle roll, Or toter-totter, Or play ball?

Or would you go With line and hook To leave the fishes In the brook?

Or with your clubs Go spend the day Applying in The new-mown hay?

Or would you lie A-lot back, Behold some shady Old straw hat?

Or would you go And watch the clouds That lightly sweep Like shipwreck sails The blue sky o'er?

Now tell me true, What would you do, If you were me?

What is an American?

The term American is used to designate, specifically, a citizen of the United States, and yet some strict constructionists hold that it might just as reasonably be applied to citizens of North America or of Central America, and they say to some of the two countries. To call him a citizen of America, however, and his citizens Americans is not entirely correct.

A light seemed to dawn upon the speaker.

"What?" he said, "that's an old story."

"What?" he said, "that's an old story."

"What?" he said, "that's an old story."

Mrs. A. C. Millville, N. J.,

carries three industrial policies on her children. The Prudential, in accordance with its rule regarding persistent policy holders, recently declared a dividend of $3.40 on each policy, although the policies did not provide for dividends. These dividends were offered in cash, but the mother preferred to pay for thirty-four weeks' insurance in advance, and had the money placed to the credit of each policy. The Prudential is paying cash dividends to its policy-holders all the time.

St. Mark's Parish Picnic.

The Episcopal Sunday School held their picnic on Tuesday, at Greenbank. The weather was fine, and the picnic one of the most enjoyable, if not the largest held there this year. Games, next to the dinner, attracted the most attention, and were hotly contested. We give the results below, with first prizes, which were worth competing for. The long trip in the launch, below the lower drawbridge, was refreshing. A slight rain, on the way home, dampened the party's ardor not a whit, and by dint of close management the few umbrellas were made to suffice. 100 yards dash—1st, Westcott, gold stick pin; 2nd, Thos Cook. Boys' 100 y dash—1st, Wallace Hartley, a pocket knife; 2nd, A. C. Cogley. Girls' 50 y dash—1st, Elizabeth Seddon, piece of cut glass; 2nd, Mame Laver. Back Race—H. L. Ten Nights in a Bar-Room.

This production of the great temperance play promises to be the biggest event of the season in local attractions. It is a play that will live forever, endorsed by the press, clergy, and critics of all creeds. John B. Gough, celebrated temperance lecturer, speaking of the stage as a valuable helper in the cause of temperance, said "I consider the drama to be equal, if not superior to any features that can be given upon the subject, as illustrations speak louder than words." This great temperance play will be presented in Bellevue Hall, Friday and Saturday nights, Sept. 14 and 15, by the Hammononton Dramatic Association, under the personal direction of Geo. H. Davidson. The following is the selected cast of characters: Joe Morgan, the drunkard..... George H. Davidson Hampten Howell, a live Yankee..... Eugene V. Cogley Simon Hinde, landlady..... Joe W. 737 Simpson, Wm., Residence

A NICE HOME FOR SALE.

A business change necessitates my living in the vicinity of Newark, and in consequence I will sell my place on Fairview Ave., Hammononton, or rent to a desirable tenant. House has seven rooms and bath, finished in chestnut, with town water and gas. Nearly an acre of ground, 75 feet frontage on Fairview, 250 on Vine Street, and 100 on Elm Street. Plenty of shade, lawn, shrubs, flowers, a gravel tennis court, good chicken yards, a variety of small fruits. This property must be seen to be appreciated, and will be cheerfully shown. Possession can be given very early in September.

St. Mark's Parish Picnic.

The Episcopal Sunday School held their picnic on Tuesday, at Greenbank. The weather was fine, and the picnic one of the most enjoyable, if not the largest held there this year. Games, next to the dinner, attracted the most attention, and were hotly contested. We give the results below, with first prizes, which were worth competing for. The long trip in the launch, below the lower drawbridge, was refreshing. A slight rain, on the way home, dampened the party's ardor not a whit, and by dint of close management the few umbrellas were made to suffice. 100 yards dash—1st, Westcott, gold stick pin; 2nd, Thos Cook. Boys' 100 y dash—1st, Wallace Hartley, a pocket knife; 2nd, A. C. Cogley. Girls' 50 y dash—1st, Elizabeth Seddon, piece of cut glass; 2nd, Mame Laver. Back Race—H. L. Smith, novelty ink well. 100 y dash—1st, Westcott. Running broad jump—Thos Cook, silver stick pin; 2nd, J. Watt. Boys' 200 y dash—1st, J. Watt, piece of cut glass; 2nd, Thos Cook. Points Race—Robt Seddon, piece of cut glass; George Folk. Girls' potato race—Jennie Thorpe, post card album; Dolly Grant. Three-legged race—Thos Cook and J. Watt, cut glass. Croquet race—Wm Skinner, harmonica; Robert Seddon.

Ten Nights in a Bar-Room.

This production of the great temperance play promises to be the biggest event of the season in local attractions. It is a play that will live forever, endorsed by the press, clergy, and critics of all creeds. John B. Gough, celebrated temperance lecturer, speaking of the stage as a valuable helper in the cause of temperance, said "I consider the drama to be equal, if not superior to any features that can be given upon the subject, as illustrations speak louder than words." This great temperance play will be presented in Bellevue Hall, Friday and Saturday nights, Sept. 14 and 15, by the Hammononton Dramatic Association, under the personal direction of Geo. H. Davidson. The following is the selected cast of characters: Joe Morgan, the drunkard..... George H. Davidson Hampten Howell, a live Yankee..... Eugene V. Cogley Simon Hinde, landlady..... Joe W. Witter Mr. Humm, philanthropist..... Paul Neely Harvey Green, gambler..... J. D. H. Helmsky Willie Hammond, wife of the village..... Effie Davis Frank Hinde, the example..... K. Leroy Jackson Mrs. Morgan, the drunkard's wife..... Miss Florence Davidson Mrs. Hinde, the landlady's wife..... Miss Della Hinton Mollie Cretwright, a Yankee girl..... Miss Ellen Beth Story Mary Morgan, the drunkard's daughter..... Miss Lillian Smith

Realizing that their experiments with gas engines had not resulted in satisfactory electric light service, the company have ordered a one hundred horse power steam engine and boiler, which will be installed as soon as received. A gas engine is a good thing for some purposes, but the larger ones

seem to be yet imperfect and irregular, more uncertain and unreliable than any other machine we know of,—developing now eccentricities every day, without warning or reason. We will appreciate the improved service when it comes.

Mrs. Ellen Elder, relict of the Parent, or Bully?

Recently, it has come to my notice, and others have called my attention to the need of a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, in Hammoncton.
On every side we hear the scolding and threatening of the little ones; and not infrequently, neighbors can hardly resist the desire to interfere with parents as they unmercifully beat (I do not say whip, for they need that, sometimes) the little bodies until they are black and blue, and think nothing of boxing their ears.

Doubtless these parents wonder why

the children manifest no natural respect or love for them; and do not note a ferocious dread on the part of the child when the parent approaches. But we do not wonder.

Not infrequently I have heard threats like these addressed to children: "I'll whip you!" (but we don't do it). "I'll smash your head if you don't!" "I'll box your ears!" "I'll break your neck!" "I'll thrash you!" and like expressions, which the child itself is too pure to utter. Every thoughtful parent knows that chastisement inflicted while in a fit of anger, as it too frequently is,

is the act of a bully, and will have no good moral effect on the child. Take the disobedient one into your room, talk to him of the wrong he has done and explain the object of punishment, then,

if necessary, administer the whipping.

If this is carried out, the child will love you, but bate the rod, and not require

so frequent application.

This may sound sentimental to some,

but if a merciful Providence should take that little "nuisance" out of your home, you will think of some things in this letter, and wish, but in vain, that you could have the past to live over again. A FATHER.

As was intimated by a correspondent in these columns signing himself "Disgusted," there is need of improved sanitary methods in Hammoncton. Last evening, the Board of Health had an important session, and discussed the result of Thursday's tour of our back yards by four of the Board. They found things in a surprisingly unsean-try condition, and owners of same may be notified to remedy the trouble, which will have to be done, as the Board has almost unlimited authority. Also they advocated the collecting of garbage by wagon. In many localities farmers will take what they get for hog feed, free of cost. It can be done here, as well as elsewhere, and is absolutely necessary.

The town will be asked for a sewerage system.
