A company of ladies and gentlemen took possession of the home of Mr. Geo. A. Blake, Monday evening, much to the surprise of said family. It was Mr. B.'s birthday, and he was at once entertainer and entertained. A tasty lunch, twenty-four covers, was spread by the old married men. Good-byes were said before time to go to work.

About those "No Gunning or Trespass" signs, the law says that if a property owner places four of these notices at prominent points on his land, any person who trespasses is liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or imprisonment not exceeding ten days, or both. Further, any person convicted of tearing down any of these signs is also subject to a heavy fine.

There was a rumpus at Hotel Columbia, last Saturday night. As a sequel, Chas. Bertilino had land'ord Daminger arrested for assault and battery. Justice Garton held him in $100 cash bail for court. The land'ord entered cross suit against Bertilino, which was heard by Justice Jacobs. In the testimony produced was evidence that Daminger encouraged and took part in the "finger game" for drinks, so the Justice held him in $200 bonds, charged with keeping a disorderly house. Bertilino was fined five dollars for carrying a black-jack. Well, if a man will sell rum, he must expect trouble. If a man will drink the stuff, he must take the consequences. If the town will license the business, it must accept the undesirable advertising which always follows. The result of this fracas will probably be the withdrawal of Columbia's license.

Why Send the Boy to High School?

High school teachers are often called upon to give reasons for the faith that is in them. They will meet parents who are determined not to send their sons and daughters to high school, other parents who are rather doubtful about the utility of the high school, and still others whose conscience is troubled for not sending their children to high school, and, therefore, are ready to argue against the school on every possible occasion, and using every plausible argument. The following summary of arguments is worth having on hand for use when occasion calls for it.

A father writes, "Why should I send my boy to high school?" I have always believed in education. I am not unwilling to give the reason for the faith that is in me. The people are able to have the best, and our public schools should be the pride of the state, supplemented by thorough high grade private, endowed, and church schools of all kinds, each working in its sphere and in perfect harmony with all the others. Our schools should be so good, so thorough, so adapted to the needs of our age and time, that despite differences of opinion on small matters, all must admit the fact that the school increases the worth of the child many fold.

1. If your boy is worth the salt that goes in his bread, it will make a far more able man of him, mentally, morally, and physically. There are exceptions, it is true, but exceptions only prove the rule.

2. High school teachers should always be—and if the school is a good one are—broad gauge, scholarly men and women, educated in our best universities and colleges. It is above all money value to any boy to come in close contact for a few years with such manly men and womanly women as should, and usually do, form the faculty of a good high school.

3. It will increase his money earning capacity. The best statistics show that the illiterate man in this country earns less than $300 a year; the man with a common school education alone earns over $400 a year; the man with a high school education earns over $600 a year. Suppose your boy works from the time he is twenty until he is sixty years old—an earning period of forty years—figure the increased earning capacity if you give him a high school education. There are some exceptions, of course, but we suppose your boy is a boy of average intelligence, as bright or brighter than his father was at the same age. Fools and duds are exceptions to all rules.

4. A good high school course will give a broader field of activity to your boy. In every walk of life the demands are more and more for men and women with something above a common school education. Firm after firm announces that their employees must have at least a good high school education. The mental discipline and self-control given by a good high school course will give self-direction and grasp of conditions to your boy long after the Latin ending and algebraic formula, which gave the discipline, have been forgotten. It is the discipline for life's duties that is the real worth of the high school to the boy.

5. The more thorough the education of your boy, the larger will be his adaptability to different kinds of work. Blessed is the man whose resources and intelligence are such that he can readily, if circumstances demand it, find a dozen ways to make an honest living for himself and family. Here it is that the great superiority of the culture-giving, broad gauge high school course is shown over the trade-fitting, quick-time, short-cut, get-ready-in-a-hurry school.

6. The high school course will prepare your boy for the deeper training of the university, which, if he is built of the right material, he will get for himself, or urge you to give him if you are able; or it will fit him to become a successful leader in business, or lay the foundation for a professional course and career.

7. The discipline and training of a good high school course will not only increase the earning capacity of your boy, but it will increase his living capacity. He will see more beauty in the evening sunset, God's wonderful whitecare in the stars overhead, and more and sweeter fragrance in the panay at his feet. It will develop character and manhood, give him thoughts and ideas of his own, make him broader in his views of life, and take him more nearly to the standard of a man.

8. The high school course should, and the chances are it will, discover the boy to himself—and this is the greatest discovery any man can make—his own dignity, and worth, and capacity, and inclination—these things discovered, and the man has a storage power of his own to make life a success.

9. The high school course will increase your boy's chances for distinction in his life's work. A high authority, after much study of the census returns of our country, reaches these conclusions:

(a) That an uneducated child has but one chance out of 150,000 to gain distinction as a factor in the progress of the age.

(b) That a common school education will increase his chances nearly four times.

(c) That high school education increases the chances over the common school education twenty-three times, or make his chances for distinction eighty-seven times as great as if he were without education.

10. A high school education will make your boy a more positive force in his community, his state, and his nation, socially, economically, and politically. With many noted exceptions in the future as in the past, our real constructive men, whose monument is their work, will be men trained and disciplined in the best schools of our country.

By all means, if your boy has the capacity, the requisite amount of gray matter, or, in other words, if he has the capacity of the average American boy—give him the opportunity of a good high school course. It will pay you and it will pay him. Make some sacrifices if necessary, to do it.

Yes, send your boy to high school, and these are the reasons for the advice.

NOTED LIBERAL CLERGYMAN.

Most Influential Religious and Social Workers in the West.

One of the most influential religious and social workers in the West is Rev. William Lloyd Jones, of Chicago.

He was born in Wales and graduated in Wisconsin, his parents having removed to this country when he was a year old.

He served in the Union ranks through the Civil War, and in 1870, after his graduation from Meadville Theological Seminary, began his first pastoral work at Winnetka, Ill.

In 1880 he went to Chicago as general secretary of the Western Unitarian Conference, in which capacity he served nine years.

He was then organized and was first secretary of the Western Unitarian Sunday School Society, established in 1878, with other Unitarian churches.

His work has been his life since 1880. In this year the spirit within him demanded fuller expression than was given him as secretary of the Western Conference, and he "aired a ball and hung out his shingle as a preacher."

The gospel of universal brotherhood and "freedom, fellowship and character in religion" burned within him and he began to preach.

All-Souls Church, the services being held in a hall. At this first service there were about 20 people, but half of these never came again.

Nevertheless the seed sown and made steady growth.

In time a church building, with many of the appointments of a club house, was erected.

The method of work is that followed by all liberal churches and is Unitarian.

This includes a systematic course of study in literature and religion, science and other useful topics with a special view to character building, under the direction of the pastor.

The pastor of "All-Souls" is Rev. W. Lloyd Jones, who is the general secretary of the Western Unitarian Sunday School Society.

THEY LOOKED ALIKE.

Chaucer's Depew Was Often Mistaken for Adam Forepaugh.

The resemblance between Chaucer N. Depew, the distinguished New York railroad president and statesman, and the late Adam Forepaugh, the circus king, was wonderfully striking.

This similarity in personal appearance led to a number of very ludicrous mistakes.

A few years ago, while Forepaugh was high school in winter quarters in Philadelphia, one of the baby elephants was rented out to the management of an opera company, it being utilized to give realism to an Oriental scene.

The opera company closed its season the latter part of March, and the baby elephant was shipped back to Philadelphia, in charge of the agent of the company.

The elephant was left in the car, and the agent went down to the Continental Hotel, where he had an appointment to meet Mr. Forepaugh, whom he knew and had frequently met.

Brother Chaucer happened to be at the hotel at the time. He had been invited over to Philadelphia to a dinner given by the famous Clover Club and when the opera company's agent entered he was talking to one of the "samples" $100 a ton in gold.

Chaucer began to examine his lead more carefully. Almost in the center of the vein he found a streak six inches wide that was just studded with "free gold."

The lead was all "pay ore," but that streak was a fortune in itself. Various assays made of it gave returns of from $2,000 to $2,500 a ton.

Chaucer had prospecting his lead far enough to make certain that he was immensely rich man. He could borrow $500,000 on the Blue Grass mine. But only a week before the "artificial" half-dollar looked as big as a balloon to him. Now he doesn't need to borrow money. He can dig out a few hundred pounds of quartz when he runs short, and convert it into cash.

He believes, and so do many experts, that the Blue Grass mine will make him richer than the Drum Lumber mine Tommy Cruise.

Several months ago I called the following from the Glasgow Weekly Mail.

It occurred in the report of an agricultural show dinner. The chairman spoke thus:

"Now, gentlemen, will ye all fill your glasses, for I am about to bring forth 'The Queen.' Our Queen, gentlemen, is really a wonderful woman, if I may say it; she's one of the good old sort. Nae Whigmanlees or faldorals about her, but a decent decent lady. She's been respectable beyond a doubt. She's brought up a grand family of well-favored lads and lasses, her eldest son being a credit to any mother, and they're all well married. 'One daughter' it may be said, married to Duke of Argyll, son and heir. Gentlemen, ye'll may be believe it, but I once saw the queen. I didn't it was when I took my add broom coat to Perth show. I remember her well—such color, such hair."

Interruption and cries of "Is it the coo or the queen ye're proposing?"

"The queen, gentlemen. I beg your pardon, but I was talking about the coo. However, as to the queen, some body pointed her out to me at the Perth station, and there she was, smart and plucky, and says I to myself, 'Gin my add woman at home slips away, I'll need to count on a widow another long.' No, gentlemen, the whisky's good, the night is long, the weather is wet and the roads are soft and will wear meachly that comes to grief. So let ye drink to the queen!" "The Queen?"

"Russia One Huge Farm."

In a western issue of the London Times, comprising a seventh of the land surface of the globe and a twentieth of the total area. It has half a dozen men to manage it according to the policy of one of the six, and 42,000 people are divided into 10,000,000 of men and women of the more or less comfortable, poor or less educated class and 110,000,000 of citizens, the mass of whom from the buldest, richest, best clothed, most prosperous to the poorest, are all under Russia to say out the land, he may go for days across it from west to east without breaking the continuous view of a flat disk, where only a grey line between the farmed districts and its waste wastes, its equal, shrunken, unkempt villages and its sandy deserts wooded with this hush or evergreen. Everywhere it is new, rude and untidy. Harper's Magazine.

Consumption of Tobacco.

The Austrians consume more tobacco than any other nationality or race in the globe, either in cigars or pipes.

Next investigation by eminent statisticians gives the number of pounds consumed annually by each 100 inhabitants of the different European countries as follows: Russia, 100 pounds; Italy, 60; Great Britain, 45; France, 35; Denmark, 25; Norway, 22; and Austria, 21.
