Storage Battery

The name Am-plus on the battery of a car is the Company's signed and sealed obligation that the battery must render a starting and lighting service worthy of the world's best.

In the achievement of the Am-plus rugged plate the Am-plus peoare the first to reach the goal which so many manufacturers have pointed out for years.

One battery is superior to another only to the extent that the plates in that battery are better than those in the other battery. Some plates are made durable by hardening them, but in so doing the porosity is reduced. This decreases the efficiency. Others are made extremely porous, but they are soft, spongy and soon go to pieces. While the Am-plus Rugged Flates have all the durable features of the hardest plate mad and the absorbing quatities of the softest, they

Am-plus rugged plates are as different from ordinary plates as gold

This explains their dependable reserve power in biting zero weather, and their great non-buckling strength that resists overheating in the hottest summer.

All Am-plus skill, seienge, research, factory control, everything that makes up the great Amplus system combine to make the Am-plus battery what it is - the best for starting and lighting. .

Back of every Am-plus battery is a specific guarantee plus a policy that says that the car owner must be pleased.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1922

We are devoting considerable space, each week, to the eighth grade news of Hammonton schools, but not half as much as they deserve. We are unable, however, on account of lack of space and time, to increase their space. In the near inture, we hope to be fitted up so that ye can take care of any amount of copy that comes in.

One of our citizens, one who was shocked at Turkish attrocities as made this offer: He will duplicate the first twenty-five dollar offer or relief from a person in any of the churches in Hammonton. In ca e there is one person in each church that the cause appeals to, he will duplicate each initial contribution of twenty-five dollars. Besides thie, he will add twenty-five per cent to all other $25 contributions. This offer is made very appropriate, in that it is just twenty-five days to Christmas, the day of the birth of the great Giver!

Coal is even scarcer than hens' eggs, here in Hammonton; but we can get wood. Camden, however, can get neither, and has even burned

Something will have to be left undone, early next year, if necessary, and the provining of an efficient chemical engine motor apparatus for Company No. 1. It is now being repaired, and doubtless will be n operation to-day. At Sunday's fire, it refused to budge, and men had to push it along. It is too serious a matter to let go; and either the machine should be overhauled, or junked and another purchased.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey lowns are badly in need of rain: Wells are running low, streams are dry, and there seems to be no relief in sight until the first heavy snow.

Thanksgiving Day was so quiet-aside from the foot-ball gamethat it could easily pass for Sunday. Part of the people attended wor-Sporting Goods. In Spite of Parents

By, H., IRVING, KING.

John Cartweight was in love with Ewma Townsend and Emma was in love with John. John's father andnother had selected for John's wife the very wealthy and very charming Clara Dennison, en orphan, whose guardian uncle approved the selection. But Clara on her part had selected for her husband Richard Watson, 8 cleft in her uncle's brokerage office. Now Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Townsend, Emma's parents, were both of families possessed of colonial and revolutionary traditions, but of little money. The Townsends' visiting cards had a prestige which was denied to the Townsend thirty-day notes. The fond parents saw with secret satisfaction the growing intimacy between their daughter and the con of the wealthy Sylvanus Cartwright—a misalliance it is true, but then what could you expect in these leveling days? And Cartwright's record in Bradstreet's was so eminently satisfactory! But when the Townsends learned that John Cartwright had been ordered to marry Clara Dennison they rose in aristocratic wrath. Perish the vulgar Cartwrights and perish their base money! Besides, there were as good fish in the sea as there were in the frying pon.

Emma was ordered not to think of John Cartwright any more and to hold berself in readiness to marry some one to be picked out for her by her parents bereafter. Emma was a pretty young thing with not much to her, and John was 'n well enough young man, but it must be confessed rather commonplace and mightly afraid of his father. So in spite of their love and in spite of Clara Dennison's love for Richard Watson and his love for her, it is quite nossible that the parents and a guardian uncle would have had things their own way bad it not been for Chura.

"Uncle," said Clara, one evening as she and her guardlan ant over their after-dinner coffee, "I have made up my mind to marry that clerk of yours Itichard Watson."

Had a bomb gone off in the middle of the dining room table Mr. Zebulen Dennison would bardly have been more startled. The worthy broker was of an apoplectic build and Clara at first feared she should baye broken t ito him more gently. But he recovered and managed to eplutter after a min ute: "You are not. Has he asked you? I will discharge film tomorrow!

"Oh, yes, I am. He has not asked me, but he is going to, and as to your discharging him Webalt be twenty three next month, when my property is to be turned over to me, and I guens we will have enough to set up bonnekeeping with," retorted Clara.

"Oh, bother that," and Clara. "You'll probably lose your job with nucle, but you told me last week you were goli'g to leave soon to go into that South American scheme anyway, The question in what are we going to do for those poor below in the woods, Umma Townsend and John Cartwright? John is going to lose ide for sure and I do so wish he might get Emms. There! I have an idea. It just struck me. You know that new company uncle is forming? He's all wrapped up in it. I'll lafuse a little matrimony into the concept. See II I don't."

That evening Emma and John had a dolorous and despairing interview, which, they agreed, was to be their lant. "Clara was all smiles and winsome ways when she met her uncle at dinner that night.

"Reconciled yet, unkey?" laughed as she kissed him. "Of course, you are! I met Dick this afternoon and proposed to him, and he accepted me. So that's off my mind."

"Clara!" exclaimed the broker really—such conduct—I don't know what to say to you."

"Say yes to everything I propose then, you old dear," she laughed, and then abruptly changed the subject with, "About that new company of yours, uncle—is any of my money it? No? Well, next month, when I come into my fortune. Til put some in. I've studied your prospectus. It's a good investment. There's just one condition. I want you to put Marcus Townsend on your board of directors Now stop. Don't interrupt a lady It's impolite. This is the idea. Marcus hean't much money, but he's away up in the old Knickerbocker set and there's lots of money lying around practically idle among those old for sils-'safe' investments at 4 per centwhen they don't keep it in a stock ing under the bed. You want those old names of downtown streets in your list, unkey. Marcus will bring them:in. It's good advertising."

Also he ex patiated upon the value of Clara's idea-putting it forward as his ownwith regard to Marcus Townsend, and urged Cartwright to approach Marcus, on the subject. As Lebulan was the dominating factor in the whole project, Sylvanus yielded. Pompous Marcus Townsend was cold at first to save his dignity, but was secretly delighted. The position would add to his personal importance—and his income. They gave him a couple of shares in the new company upon the easiest terms possible. And, Clara's engage ment being formally announced, loving parents intimated to her that John Cartwright was a most estimable roung man-and they could not think of standing in the way of their dear child's, happiness,

"Hong it," said Sylvanus Cartwright to his wife, "I suppose we might as well let that fool boy of ours marry the Townsend girl. Fort Worth, Tex.—Seized by a man and four women, hustled into an automobile and taken to a deserted spot near the Trinity river, where she was riven 100 lashes by her captors. Mrs. . C. Mrs. Tatum's account of the affair is to the effect that she was called to the door of her home by two women, who said that they would take her to her daughter, who had been missing for some time. When Mrs. Tatum entered the waiting sutomobile she found there were four women in the machine and a man driving. The machine sped away to a lonely spot near the river, where the woman was handcuffed and held by the man, while the four women used the lash on the victim." Rice of the Rice Hardware Co. the local Winchester dealers. His opidion is shared by others.

I ... The interest manifested in these pastimes is more apparent now than at any other season of the year," said Mr. Rice, "for ice and toller skates make ideal Christmas presents for the young folk. Hun-dreds of thousands of pairs of skates are sold amutally, just prior to the holidays. Roller skates are sold everywhere, but iceskates prodominate, of course, where ice is to be found for periods out of doors or in ice skating rinks. Many cities that do not have more than one or two days' ice skating yearly have ice skating rinks, and attract thousands of persons daily.

Through the efforts of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, the users of both ice and roller skates have multiplied. For every ice skater we had ten years ago there are ten to-day, and the same is frue of roller skating. "This comes through intelligent promotion. The Winchester organization got in touch with municipal authorities and showed them how, through the Community Service, and other organizations of a like character, roller skating events could be conducted on the paved streets in their cities. It also developed plans, showing how ice skating rinks could be made on ncant lois, city parks, and other places with just a few hours work; and at a slight cost. It is my understanding that dozens of cities have conducted roller skating carnivels for relicol boys and girls, and in some instances for the older people, while no less than four hundred cities have constructed municipal skating rinks outdoors. Chicago, I believe, leads in this respect, with something like six hundred rinks.

"Ice skating is a much older sport than roller skating. Back in the sixteenth century we find mention of ice skating, but it did not hit America until Kverett Barucy nride his first skates at Windsor Locks, Convectient, in 1854. This was a beavy cast from skate, and Cross Pharmacy, on Egg in those days was considered a remarkable piece of work. Every year Barney made improvements, and in 1864 his factory was turning out two (pairs of Akates a day, Winchester, operating the same plant, is now turning out several thousands daily. The greatest devalopaient in ice skuting has come in the past twenty years. "Roller skating first came to the attention of the public in Brance in rato, but soon ded out. It next became popular in 1864 to Austria ad the following year it took in England, then Australia, and in poof Americans took to the apor , and it has remained popular ever iduce!
