State Prison. It took the jury but ten minutes at the session of Criminal Court Wednesday to reach a verdict in the case of Peter Lombardi, charged with shooting aged John Banamata at Minatola, on the night of December 28 last, convicting the prisoner of atroclous assault and battery with intent to kill. The trial consumed the greater part of the day, the defendant protestng on the stand his innocence and charging the crime to a neighbor of Banamata. There were three counts in the indictment, and the jury found him guilty of the most serious one, for which he may be given a severe sentence. Witnesses failed to corroborate the testimony of the accused, and the evidence was so clear as to his guilt that no doubt remained in th minds of those who heard the story of the

ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF MARTYRED PRESIDENT:

Over Two Score of Years Have Passed Since His Tragic Death, But His Memory is Still Dear to the Hearts of Americans.

Over two score of years have elapsed since Abraham Lincoln met his tragic death at the handa of the assassin, John Wilkes Booth, and he nation was plunged into mourning for the martyred President. The nation will next Wednesday celebrate the ninety-ninth anniversary of his birth.

The twelfth of February has had a peculis significance to the American people, for on that date Lincoln was born in an obscure but in the State of Kentucky. Bred amid humble surroundings and deprived of those comforts which the rich are too ant to consider necessity ties, he learned early the lesson of humility, and his life was ever after marked by a love and respect for the laborer. He was eminently Distance lends enchantment to the view, and the greatness of Abraham Lincoln is not de creased but gains an added lustre as he is viewed through the perspective of time. Like Washington, his name will go down in the annals of America as one of her greatest menand all ages will honor it. At no time did the death of a nation's head official gain such world-wide sympathy from foreign govern-ments. His loss was mourned not only in the United States, but in the great countries of Europe; for he was a man who, through shee honesty, had gained the respect of his fellow men, of whatever race, condition or national

ity. His proudest title was "Honest Ahe ? Lincoln was perhaps ridiculed and misre resented to a greater extent than any of his contemporaries. Homely in face and figure nis awkwardness and lack of polish gave his enemies opportunity for many a quip at his xpense; but before he had served the first year of his Presidency the people of the North and South alike had learned to respect him, and to admire his sincerity of purpose and straight forward, unswerving honesty. His humi even in the moments of his greatest suc was wonderful. Often he would repeat the words of his favorite poem:

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud? like a swift flying meteor. a fast flying cloud A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave. He passes from life to his rest in the grave." Lincoln was eminently a man of destin Called by an all-seeing Providence to guide the people of the United States through the mry trying ordeal in their history, his career wa ended with his work, and his noble life needed only that death to render his name immorfal

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1908.

Pleasantville has voted $36,000 for a new High School building. It is a matter of pride with these enterprising people of the hustling borough to be one of the first among the County towns in matters of municipal improvement. May's Landing has had under consideration for a period of several years the erection of a similar edifice, and steps were taken some months ago by the Hamilton Township Board of Education to investigate the matter. There is a strong public sentiment in favor of the erection of such a structure. The old building is inadequate to the needs of the town and township for better educational facilities, and the erection of the proposed new building would be a long stride towards the growth of a Greater May's Landing. Thirty years ago the present building was erected and was looked upon as one of the finest schools in the County. In that Flag and consequent patriotism is displayed. Forester worried all the way to Florida, from Florida to Cuba and during the campaign until little available evidence to prove her the final fighting, which was the first time he was under fire. . It was during this contest about Santiago that his regiment was ordered forward in the face of a terrible fire. One's first fight is the most trying of all. It is then that the soldier for the of bullets, the rattle of machine guns and the screech of whells, to all of which there is the background of incessant roar of cannon. Forester looked a little pale, but pressed resolutely on. All of a sudden he became conscious of a dizzy, nauseating sensation, his foot struck something-or he thought it did-and he pitched forward. The regiment pushed on. Another line of battle came up and was pressing forward when Forester was awakened, as it were, by the sound of a voice. Nathan Burge, an old and tried friend, had seen him, recognized him and stopped to succor him.

"Nate," said Forester, "I've fallen out of the ranks. I hadn't the physical ability to go on. Write to Mary Mills again. She has loved a coward!"

"Hi, you, there! Move on!" cried an officer who was marching in rear to drive on stragglers. Without a word Burge hurried forward, leaving his friend to his own regrets.

When the fight was over Burge sought Forester, but, not finding him, time, thinking that the coward might

But Mary, with a woman's quick eye where love is concerned, saw that he was concealing something and assumed that her flance had been killed. Burge would much rather have broken such news to her than that he had turned out a coward. At last he told her the truth. Mary Mills went home bowed down with grief. The next morning she heard one of her sisters reading from newspaper dispatches from Santiago. She was about to leave the room, dreading lest she should hear that her lover had been ordered before a court martial to be tried for cowardice, when his name was mentioned, but in a different way from what she had expected:

DID NOT SELL LIQUOR ELECTION DAY. O'Brien Only Treated Friends to the Nectar That Thrills,

Charged with selling liquor on Election Day. William J. O'Brien, of Atlantic City, was brought to trial at the session of the Court or Quarter sessions held Tuesday and acquitted Police officers Charles Ford and Samuel Coston, colored, testified that they saw the defendant sell drinks over his bar on the evening of election day, before the polls were closed and that they saw the drinks paid for. O'Brien flatly denied this, alleging that he was treating a few of his friends, and that the liquor wa not paid for.

Lawyer Eli H. Chandler, in defence of O'Brien, placed witnesses on the stand to prove that no liquor was sold during election hours, but that it was given to a few friends of the proprietor shortly before seven o'clock. with anything pasted upon or attached to Counsel laid stress on the fact that none of the witnesses on either side testified that they had paid for their drinks, while several sisted directly that they had asked for drinks and had been given them without paying. O'Brien testified that he had been engage around the election polls and shortly before they were closed a few friends had asked him if they could get a drink. He told him that his bar was not open to business, but that he
