HANDSOME BANKING HOUSE.

Marine Trust Company Opens Doors of Large New Marble Structure.

One of the most handsome and up-to-date bank buildings in South Jersey was opened Thursday morning to the public in Atlantic City when Commodore Louis Kuehnle, President, and Joseph A. MeNamee, Treasurer, formally opened the doors of the new $70,000 white marble edifice at the corner of Atlantic and New York Avenues for the Marine ing the day and were loud in their praises of

The transfer of a million dollars in cash and securities and the books and paraphernalia of the bank was made Wednesday evening from large crowd of curious people. Guarded by the officers of the bank and a score of police detailed to the duty, the deposits were moved in a large cart, each load worth a fortune. It was one of the most novel sights ever witnessed on the avenue.

From 9 o'clock this morning to 3 o'clock in the afternoon the bank officials and directors held a reception. The officers are Louis Kuehnle, president; Max Weinmann, first vice president; Joseph McNamee, secretary and treasurer and Theodore W. Schimpf, solicitor. The directors include Louis Kuehnle, Max Weinmann, W. E. Shackleford, Richard McAllister, William Riddle, John L. Kelley, Harry Bacharach, Wm. H. Burkhard, Jas. B. Reilly, Geo. A. Bourgeois, Donatelle Lumponi, Mahlon W. Newton.

The new Marine bank building is one of the mest handsome financial institutions in New Jersey, The structure is of white marble of classic design, drawn by the well known Semour Davis firm and constructed by Thompson & Stiles. Two handsome pillars flank the entrance and on either side are two handsome electrollers, which illuminate the entire front of the building. The structure covers a site 50 feet front by 100 feet deep. The interior is one huge banking room. With an open exchange through the center there are banking quarters on the New York Avenue side and three private offices on the other side.

In the center of the building is the security rault, 12 by 16 feet interior measure and in closed with walls nearly three feet thick, made of concrete, interlaced steel plates and masonry. The front half of the vault contains the security deposite boxes for patrons, and are 256 deposite boxes. Back of this department is a second sub-division of the vault, in which there are special safes for the treasurer and officials of the bank. The vault is lighted by electricity, and has a special door, which locks by time locks. Adjacent to the vault are four ence of women depositors. There is also a private hallway from the front of the building to the offices. Upstairs there is a handsome apartment for the director's room, a store room and another

AWARD HEAVY DAMAGES IN THE CIRCUIT COURT

VERDICT FOR $10,000 RE-TURNED BY JURY.

Suit of Mathis vs. Warren Ehret Co. Marked by Legal Controversies-Arm of Plaintiff Permanently Injured by Accident.

Probably no case in the Atlantic County Cireuit Court before Judge Allen B. Endicott has presented such interesting legal controversies as the suit of Hiram Mathis vs. Warren Ehret Company, in tort, brought for $20,000 damages as a Supreme Court issue. The suit was moved Thursday and all that day and yesterday there was a legal battle royal between William M. Clevenger and Judge John Wescott, council for plaintiff, and Thompson & Gale, assisted by George A. Bourgeois, for the defendant corporation. On the eighth of March two years ago the Warren Ehret Company was engaged in putroll of paper accidentally slipped from its place and crashed through the skylight. It fell on Mathis, who sustained severe injuries, and disabled him for work for several months, his left arm being permanently crippled.

Mathis suffered severely for yeveral months after the accident, and, in fact, has not yet recovered in general health. His appearance on the stand indicated the physical strain he has been under as a result of the blow inflicted by the falling paper. Mathis took the stand yesterday and gave a practical demonstration before the jury of the njury done to his arm, which is almost paralyzed and practically "dead," so far as usefulness is concerned. He testified that he had consulted eminent specialists, including Drs. McCarthy and Durkham, of Philadelphia; Dr. DaCosta, specialist at the Jefferson Hospital; Dr. Frazier, Dr. G. W. Davis, Dr. Col-noted experts, all of whom pronounced the arm "dead," and failed to effect a cure. At the conclusion of the testimony counsel argued several hours for a direction, which the Court declined to give, and the attorneys lins, of New York City; Dr. Deland, and other proceeded to argue the case to the jury. After the attorneys had the summed up the case and the Court had given the charge, the jury retired at four o'clock, returning a verdict at five, awarding $10,000 damages to the

Mrs. Reniers Wont Come Back. Owing to the fact that Mrs. Frank Reniers, omplainant in the charges of conspiracy for which her hasband, together with Constable Thomas Shrill and George Montgomery, has been indicted by the Grand Jury, is in New York and refuses to come back to prosecute the case, it is likely that the defendants will not be brought to bar, for their alleged misdemeanor. Mrs. Reniers made sensational charges against her husband, alleging that he entered into a conspiracy with the other defendants to ruin her good name for the purpose of securing a divorce.

Buzby Trial Date Fixed. Enthusiasm, guided by reason and ex perience, is one of the greatest aids to the promotion of enterprise in existence. Nowhere is it of greater value than in the pursuit of civic improvement. Enthusiasm awakens interest in others, helps us over discouraging obstacles and inspires us with confidence of success. Nearly every step forward in the history of towns and cities can be directly to the enthusiastic confidence some public-spirited citizen who took off his Let us believe May's Landing is the best place on earth to live in and help

Evidence of the success of the third-rail electric railroad system is seen in the fact that the branch from Newfield to Millville has been equipped with the "streak of death," as it is known to many people. The system has certainly worked well here. Outside of its success for the purpose of carrying passengers and giving frequent train service, it has been an effective dog-ratcher, an antidote for trainpa and a sovereign cure for the mania of children for playing on the tracks. Certainly, the rail is dangerous; but no more so than a locomotive, for the man who touches it is in the same class as he who steps in front of a fast express. The public has no business on the tracks and only through carelessness is any

Every now and then we hear of a prominen business man, lawyer or other individual stricken by sudden illness, perhaps a fata disease; a man, usually, who is in the midst of success, surrounded by everything he desires. Sometimes it is appendicitls, again typhold, often acute digestive disorder. Why? Because that man has violated nature's laws! Because he has neglected to give his muscles proper exercise, failed to breathe enough pure air, nourished his system on impure and unwhole some foods; at the same time overworking hi nervous and mental system, until the breakdown comes. What is the remedy? A country home, with plenty of out-door exercise and pure air, water and food. Where? Right here at May's Landing, in the garden-spot of the South Jersey Pine Belt!

DREADNAUGHT CARS.

The nub of railroading is first-class equipment and reliable service. The Pennsylvania Railroad provides this for the public. For many months big all-steel coaches, built like Dreadnaughts, have been operated on all through trains. Their easy-riding qualities and steadiness of motion have been widely praised. The all-steel dining cars too have distinct advantages over the wooden ones. They are stronger and steadier, and the act of eating is made more enjoyable by the smoother movement.

There are also some steel Pullman Cars—Combined Parlor-Smokers and Baggage—in the service now. Travelers like them. They have plenty of elbow room and they glide over the rails. The Sleeping Cars are coming. Some four hundred parlor and sleeping cars will be in use by Summer.

These steel coaches and cars are the strongest vehicles ever built for passenger transportation. They fire proof, break proof and bend proof. They represent the climax of safety and the perfection of comfort in railroad travel.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has always been the leader in all manner of improved equipment as well as in all methods of making their patrons more comfortable. This is why it is known and honored as The Standard Railroad of America.

The White Spruce

It Brought Barbara and the Young Forester Together. By CLARISSA MACKIE. Copyright, 1910, by American Press

Barbara Owen parted the flaps of the tent and drank in with delighted eyes the scene before her. The little camp perched almost on the edge of the precipice commanded a magnificent view of the snow topped Cascade range blushing under the first rays of over to the wagon trail in the directhe rising sun.

Barbara went to another tent and called her wather. He replied by a meet them. "I am glad you liked it." yawn, followed by a racking cough he said simply in response to Mr. Then she hastened to a third tent and Owen's warm thanks. "It was better ecnident that he would not penetrate green branches.

When he came to the spruce he stopped suddenly, leaned back and squinted his eyes at the white shaft above his head. He knelt down and examined the young hemlocks and once more drew out his notebook. Barbara, silent and brown, blending with the background of brown trunks, was unobserved until the forester drew his hatchet and cut a deep incision in the suruce tree. The girl was on her feet in an instant.

"Stop!" she cried. "Don't do that!" The man started and peered as if some brown wood fairy had arisen before his bewildsmal aves Barbara laughed shakily.

"It sounds like a school oration, 'Woodman, spare that tree;' but, you see, my mother is buried here and-

and-the tree marks her grave." The man had removed his hat and looked at her with respectful attention. Barbara noted that he was young perhaps thirty, with a crop of thick, sunburned hair and a handsome, well tanned face lighted by keen dark eyes. "I am very sorry." He hesitated. "I would not do anything to pain you; but, you see, it is my duty to take care of the forest. For the safety of the other and younger trees this dead spruce should come down." Barbara's eyes tilled with tears as she bowed her head against the white trunk of the spruce. "We thought it would be quite undisturbed here in the forest," she solbbed. "There are only three of us-mother here she died suddenly; father, back at the camp, where he is trying to regain his health in the open, and I. I dare not tell father about the tree. He loves to come here when he is strong enough.

The trees sing overhead"-The forester stepped forward and placed a finger on her sleeve. "Please do not ery," he said awkwardly, "Willyou trust me to respect this little spot in the forest and yet do my duty to my employer?" Barbara looked at his steady eyes and the friendly smile on his clean cut mouth. "Yes." she said slowly:

"Will you give me your mother's name and the date of her birth and death?" he asked, pulling his notebook

Puzzled and a little curious, Barbara gave him the desired information and, with a word of thanks, turned away "One week from today you may tome again," said the forester gravely. "Thank, you." said Barbara once more, and then she stepped lightly the narrow trail to where the white spruce had towered. James Owen uttered an astonished cry as he stopped before his wife's grave. Barbara clung to his arm overcome by a strange emotion. She was glad that the forester was not there to witness it. The stump of the white spruce arose like a five foot shaft of marble; the bark had been planed off until the wood showed white as satin and as smooth; the top was rounded, and on the flattened side of the stump a hot iron had burned a brief epitaph above Mrs. Owen's resting place. The young hemlocks had been thinned out until they formed a green semicircle about the white shaft.

because we change our usual course. We cannot hide from her."

Wife and child both clung to him. Only a sense of duty and a manliness that refused to flee from what he tried to call a superstition enabled this husband and father to tear himself away from those he adored and teave them trembling and with tears in their eves to listen all day for the distant bomb they dreaded.

There is another side to this story, them over so successfully that Kate, What Count Rumsdorf considered superstition was what we in America call a presentingent. There are people who deny that any coming event will cast its shadow before. There has Greutner-that is, he was considered been an age of dreams and forecasts, prosperous for that region, though his and there has been an age of doubt in such claim. Now we have societies of himself and his family. He had a psychical research that are studying number of daughters and but one son; them scientifically.

On that occasion he to leave him his farm. But he rewas detained at home with a cold. Again, when he was expected to go to Berlin on behalf of his sovereign for a many they had mined the track. But the trip had been abandoned. A third attempt had been arranged for this day with so much forethought and provision for unforeseen obstacles nothing could save the man they plorted against. Indeed, one of them said, "If the minister escapes us this time we shall consider that his guardian angel protects him and he is proofagainst our attempts." But there is a saying, "The third time is the charm," and if Count Rumsdorf had known of the preparations made to kill him he by going over his expected route he

Two men armed with revolvers of a heavy caliber were to fire at him from a first floor window of a house located in a street through which he usually passed: Two others similarly armed were to fire at him from a window opposite, a trifle farther on. The last two were intended to finish the job in case the first two missed. A fifth man was stationed in the street who was to signal the approach of the intended victim. None of the men who were to fire at the count were to show themselves till they received a signal from the man in the street that his carriage was

The street was narrow, and he would be obliged to pass within half a dozen yards of either of the windows where lurked firing parties. Their keeping back ont of sight procluded the possibility of their intention being suspected and a warning being given the minister. The man in the street would signal the exact moment when they were to make ready, and on hearing the rumble of a carriage they would go to the window and fire at the occupant. If any mishap prevented the first two from doing the work the second two were in reserve for its accomplishment.

At half past 2 in the afternoon the two firing parties stationed themselves at their respective windows. The signaler walked about till he should see the count's carriage coming. This was that he should not attract attention by remaining at the exact spot where the conspirators were to look for his signal, which was to be the waving

A Mud House

Fate does his crops were rotted. As for his not relinquish her designs against us house, it was but a but and was plastered with mud. But Van Wyk had not always, lived thus. Time was when he had been well off, and the eldest daughter, Katherine, was educated. Katherine was a comely Dutch girl, with blue eyes, fair complexion and hair almost white. Her mother did the best she could to keep her girl well dressed and, having fabrics that she had worn in better days, made especially on Sundays, made a very good appearance.

Some distance from the Van Wyks lived a prosperous farmer named farm produced only a fair living for therefore he was anxious that his Two attempts to assassinate Count children should marry with those who quired from any girl his boy should marry a dowry equivalent to its value.

Unfortunately Hans met Katherine conference with the emperor of Ger- at a dance at one of the neighboring farmhouses, and one glance at her pink and milk face, her robin's egg eyes and the two hemp colored cables 209 N. He danced with her several times during the evening, and when the two separated theirs was one of those cases | Missouri Above Baltic Avenue wherein two young hearts rush together like a couple of electric sparks.

When Farmer Greutner heard of his son's love affair he called the boy to him and said:

> Hans only irritated his father by making no reply. People with whom we are angry cannot make us more angry than by listening to what we say and giving us no word in return. Hans went away determined that nothing should separate him from the girl he loved, even to the surrendering of his inheritance, but he did not see how her father could be persuaded to give her to one who could not support her. So the matter went on, as such matters usually do, with hard feeling between Hans and his father and opposition enhancing the attachment of the young couple. Greutner never lost an opportunity to sneer at the mud cabin in which his son's beloved lived, and since the rest of the family considered Hans would demean himself by taking a wife out of such a home they were constantly taunting him about his mud haired girl who lived in a mud plastered house. One day the little Van Wyk children prospected the mud plastering for playthings. From a part of it that had given way they pulled out some queer looking stones. Whether they wanted them for jackstones or for some other childish game, they certainly wanted them and did not spare the plastering. When their father came in and saw that they had made rents in the wall he rated them soundly and asked them why they had done so, whereupon they showed him the stones they had pulled out. Farmer Van Wyk forgot the damage to the plastering in the stones. They were rough and did not possess either the appearance or weight of common stones. He studied over them a long while, then borrowed a magnifying glass and examined them with it carefully. Then he called his wife and told her that the plastering of
