ARRAIGN SEYLER FOR DEATH OF JANE ADAMS

MAY GRAND JURY WILL PROBE EVILDOING.

County Courts Will Open Tuesday Next With Justice Thomas W. Trenchard Presiding—Few Important Cases.

The May Term of the Atlantic County Courts, Civil and Criminal, will open Tuesday morning next before upreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard. On the bench with Justice Trenchard will be Law Judge Enoch A. Higbee, who will preside over the Criminal and Orphans' Courts. The Grand Jury, summoned by Sheriff E. L. Johnson, will be called crease in the value of all kinds of property by County Clerk Samuel Kirby and sworn, after which Justice Trenchard, will deliver his

William Seyler, of Atlantic City, is in the County Jail charged with her murder and his brother Orvis is detained as a witness. Prosecutor Clarence L. Goldenberg will conduct the case for the State while Seyler will be defended by Lawyer Edmund C. Gas kill, Jr. Seyler was seen on the Million Dollar Pier on the night Jane Adams disappeared and the circumstantial evidence against him is said to be strong. As it is customary for the Grand Jury to consider homicide cases first it is probable that an indictment will be returned shortly after the opening of the term. Justice Trenchard will then set the date for the trial, which promises to be one of the most sensational in many years.

There are a number of minor cases listed fo investigation, but few of importance, large number of prisoners sent to jail since the last term in January pleaded, guiity at special sessions of the court, waiving indictment, which serves to shorten the work of the jury. From all indications the work of the Criminal Court will be less than usual. HUNTERS MUST PAY FINES.

Judge E. A. Higbee Affirms Conviction Found in Magistrate's Court.

By a decision of Law Judge E. A. Higbee First Game of Season Here To-day handed down this week on an appeal, On Calendar of County Clerk Lewis H. Iszard of this place, the first for having a doe in his possession and the other for killing a fawn, must pay fines of $100 each and costs.

> The case was practically a test of the law respecting fawns and established a precedent in this State. The fawn in question had "knobs" protruding from its skpll, visible but covered with fur. The contention of State Warden Harry Loveless was that a fawn did not become a "buck" in the legal sense of the term | eagerly awaiting for the umpire to give the until the horn, or "spike," broke through the word, "Play ball!" Both teams are going fur. In this he was corroborated by natural after the wreath of victory with arong conhistories and by the evidence of deer breeders, fidence and as the fans say, there will be although a number of old hunters contended that the animal was a buck as soon as the horns were visible. In this case they were about an inch and a half high.

The case was appealed last week before Judge Higbee in Atlantic City and attracted will be as follows: considerable attention, both from the prominance of the hunters and the pecular nature of | c. ; Wigglesworth, 1b.; Doane, 2b.; Iszard, ss.; charge. BETTER SHORE CAR SERVICE.

Fast Shore Line Absorbs Süburban Traction and Will Revise Schedule.

Reports of the transfer of the Suburban Traction Company to the Shore Fast Line management were confirmed this week by officials of the latter. No immediate changes in the operation of the lines is contemplated so far as can be learned. It is likely that the schedules will be revised so the trains will leave stations on the two lines alternately, which will mean much better service between the shore municipalities.

The new direct route on the West Jersey electric line from Camden to Ocean City will be in operation some time this month. The short switch at Pleasantville has been constructed and the cars will run over the tracks of the Fast Shore Line across the Great Egg Harbor Bay.

Year say the Tillers of the Soil. Cut your clover while it is in the bloom. Dead-ripe clover is just about spoiled so far as feed is concerned.

Probably not one farmer in a thousand ever took his mowing machine guards out and ground them on the cutting edge. Look at them and see how dull they are. Some day before haying, when you have a little time, just take them out and sharpen them. You have no idea how much better they will work. The machine will cut almost like a new one. Don't let the back step be unsightly with swill pails, cat dishes and hen food, thus strewing food and attracting flies and disease. Cart away all the old cans, broken dishes, old coats and boots, from back places and yards.

The cows should not be driven faster than a walk while on the way to the place of milking or feeding.

Give the calves a clean lock of bright clover or mixed hay every day. You will be surprised how soon they will begin to eat it. Before turning the young horses and colts to pasture, have the teeth of each one examined by a competent veterinary surgeon.

Don't yank or whip the horse, but find the cause. It may be a sharp tooth or the harness may be ill-fitting. Some men whip their horses because they are in a bad frame of mind themselves. If fowl must run at large on range over a farm, by all means keep one breed, and give them all the time, knowledge and attention possible. You will have something of which you may be proud, and that will profit you financially as well. Wheatbran, crushed egg-shells, cut bone, broken mortar and oyster-shells are fine for making eggs with good solid shells. In the Northern latitudes May is the last month when hens should be set. Chicks natched after that will be too late for laying

FARM NOTES AND COMMENTS. MANY ROADS INPROVED DURING THE PAST YEAR

STATE REPORT GIVES IN-TERESTING DATA.

Figures Show New Jersey's Leading Part in Campaign for Better Highways and Indicate Good Work in All Counties.

One of the most interesting public documents ever printed in New Jersey is the annual report of State Commissioner of Roads Frederick Gilkyson, which recently came off the press and has been distributed throughout the State. The report shows the unusual activity of the department during 1909 and includes a detailed description of the roads improved, this part being written by Robert Meeker, State Supervisor of Roads. Included in the report are two tables, one showing the amount of money which has been furnished by the State towards good roads and the other showing the exact mileage of roads built under State aid in the various counties. The former table shows that up to the end of last year, New Jersey has spent 32,859 735,90 as a one-third share of the roads built since 1892. The following account of road improvements n Atlantic County appears in the report:

English Creek Road, 6.72 miles long. - This oad begins at the Shore Road in Northfield City and extends Westerly to the bridge over the mill pond at English Creek. The original heavy, sandy road has been changed to a smooth, firm, hard highway. This improvement is of great benefit to the agricultural and ruck farming industries in this section of the Give the turkey hen and her brood a coop | County, since it enables them to increase their arge enough for the mother to move about loads at least one hundred per cent. and substantially shorten the time of haul to their market, Atlantic City. The width of the gravel bed is twenty feet, and its depth varies from eight inches in the center to four inches at the Chestnut Neck Road, .52 miles long .- The reconstruction of this road was made necessary. because the flood tides had so washed and carried away the original gravel surface that the road was hardly passable at some points. To avoid future trouble from the tides it was deemed best to raise the road bed two and one-half feet and protect the sides with sod banks. This work is now completed and the road once more is in fact, as well as in name, Building and Imp. Co. 17.65x76 ft. North side an improved highway. The importance of this Oriental Ave. 53.55 ft. West of New Hampshire road lies in the fact that it is a part of the Ocean Boulevard route, being on the main Townsend-Harris Co. to Margaret Kitchen, road from Tuckerton to Atlantic City. It is 62.5x80 ft. Northeast corner Winchester and built of gravel, 27.5 feet wide, 3 to 8 inches thick. The road was and is practically level:

MAY'S LANDING, MAY 7, 1910.

Second-class Matter.

Base-ball is one of the most democratic things in existence. There is no aristocracy among fans. Everybody is on a level on the bleachers. That is why it serves to strengthen the bonds of goodfellowship among people of neighbortowns. If it were not for their base-ball teams, the people of May's Landing, Egg Harbor City, Hammonton and other County towns would not be half so well acquainted with each other.

One of the things urgently needed on the river front to promote interest in yachting is a convenient wharf, where local and visiting launches can find easy access to the shore. The old landing places are practically destroyed and most of them at inconvenient locations. The proximity of the railroad with its deadly third-rail practically cuts off the best portions of the shore, yet it should be possible to find some place where a wharf could be constructed to the edge of the channel at small expense: This is a problem that should engage the attention of the Yacht (lub af an early date.

Since the days of Washington Irving, ther has been no pen so popular in America as that of the late Samuel L. Clemens, known as Mark Irving lived in the valley of the Hudriver he loved and immortalised in his writings, and his quaint humor and gentle pathos still find a place in the hearts of the people; but his sketches were confined chiefly to one portion of the country, while Mark Twain's writings are drawn from almost every section of the United States and reach even to foreign lands. Especially in his later writings, Twain displays a profound philosophic attitude, in spite of the genial humor which is everywhere apparent in his works. The name of Twain will go down in history as the greatest American writer after Irving.

The opportunity the State offers to farmers of free instruction in agriculture is too little appreciated, but there is a gratifying increase in interest since the system of special trains through the agricultural districts was adopted. Farmers came to hear the speakers out of curiesity and went home deeply impressed with what they had heard. There is an excellent opportunity for farmers sons to learn the principles of modern agriculture at the free course established at New Brunswick and no youth who intendes to make a living on the farm should fail to fully prepare himself for useful science. The days of oldfashioned farm methods are past; to succeed in the future the tiller of the soil must embody in his work all that modern science brings to his aid, otherwise he will make only a meagre living if he does not fail altogether.

The most efficient fire departments are no those that can do the best work at a big conflagration but those who can reach the seene of enough to prevent it from it from becoming large. To do this it is first essential that the alarm be early, distinct and not to be mistaken; second, that the firemen are prompt to heed the call and quick to reach the fire with apparatus to control it. The new fire whistle of the County power plant affords a positive alarm for the people of May's Landing. | nor Ave. $2,100. I arrived at N. late at night on a visit to my uncle and on arising the next morning, as was natural, went to the window to have a look at my surroundings. There was a hill not far distant, on the top of which was a house built in the form of a hexagon. There were other things to see, but somehow the hexagonal house drew my attention from all of them. It stood out alone. I saw no one moving in or about it, but in some of the windows there were evidences that it was inhabited.

"Until the great tragedy," returned Rentley. He-was looking very white and worn now, and the two men noticed for the first time the gauntness of his face and the dark hollows under his eyes. "I was engaged to marry Miss Vivian, a beautiful young English girl, the daughter of the officer in command of the Calcutta barracks. I wished to bestow a ring upon her, and she would have no other than this one.

I told her the curse that seemed to be upon it, but she would not listen: she I tay deliberating whether I should The golden text for a certain Sunday insisted. "No one can belp me now," returned Rentley listlessly as he arcse and went to a small cabinet in the wall. Presently he returned with a small ebony box, which he gave to Eastman. Then he resented himself and watched his companions earnestly as they opened the box and rather glugerly removed the maharajah's ring from its white velvet bed. It was as Bentley had described it, a broad band of pure gold, and sunk

"You are wrong in both instances. Laidlaw. I have a theory which I will work out, and then I will call upon you to congratulate me." The scientist spoke with an air of confidence that Impressed his companion.

"I hope you will, Eastman," cried Laidlaw earnestly, "but you can't bring back the dead, you know, and that's what the mafter with Bentley." "Wait and see," was the reply as Eastman turned in at his gate. When he reached his laboratory in the top of the house he flung his coat and hat upon a chair and drew the ebony box from his pocket. Then with a powerful glass he examined the maharajah's ring with frowning brow that denoted the intentness of his interest.

With a long drawn sigh he carefully replaced the ring in the ebony box; then he sat down and wrote several letters, which he was careful to post that night in spite of the lateness of
