Fun is under the direction of Miss Garrison. The fun, but when it becomes a nuisance to the public it seems time to call a halt. The fountain was put out of commission for a time last year by the wild pranks of mischievous boys, and the practice should be stopped before further damage ensues. It is just as easy for the young men to indulge their desire for play in legitimate ways, in a manner that will not annoy others or endanger- property, private or public. If they do not desist, they should be haled before a magistrate and be given a proper understanding concerning the matter. Rowdyism on the streets should and must be stopped.

Editor of The Record. DEAR SIE-The Township Committee has been instrumental in establishing a lawn in Industrial Park, and it should take precautions against the destruction of the grass by ballplaying and other amusements and practices that tend to destroy the green carpet that will so add to the appearance of the Park. There are plenty of vacant lots where the boys can play ball to their hearts' content, and there is no necessity or excuse for using the Park as a ball ground. Now that we have a fawn there

Better Opportunities. The New Jersey State Board of Education, a meeting held in Atlantic City, recently, by animous vote adopted a resolution establishg a High School Teachers' Course at the

The object of this course is to provide an oprtunity for those in our State who wish to ach in the high schools to prepare themselves ithin the State and under the State system of iblic instruction, just as under this system ney have hitherto prepared themselves in the rmal school more especipally for teaching in

Two years of the ork of the course is the equivalent of the egular normal course. Two years of it is ademic work with teaching in view. This ademic work will fully cover that which is mally given in the freshmen and sophomore ears of the college courses, and which, to ether with the professional work, will make he course as a whole the equivalent of a eacher's college course. Graduates of any one of the regular norma chool courses may complete this course in ears. Those who begin this course when they first enter the normal school will be permitted o modify in two or three particulars, to be esignated later, the work usual to the regular

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., SATURDAY, MAY 30, 1908

Memorial Day, set apart as a day of national mourning, is truly a national holiday if any one day may be so termed. It will be well for everybody to look back soberly over the short but eventful history of our nation on this day, and pay a silent tribute of love to the memory of those who made and preserved our country, the land "of the people, for the people by the people," which is destined to become the leading nation of the world. The United States is as yet in its infancy. Domestic tranquility has been frequently disturbed by dissention and factional strife, but out of the difficulties attendant upon the foundation of the republic a nation of power is arising, strong in physical assets, founded upon true republican principles, with clean institutions and laws founded upon the rights of mankind. America has produced men-men who surprised the world by forming out of a few scattered colonies the greatest republic the world has ever known, men who have added to the world's literature, men of science, art and genius. There are more soldiers' graves to of Samuel Bailey, who was killed when his automodecorate to-day than there were a year ago on bile was struck by an electric express at an un-Memorial Day. On that day the ranks were filled protected crossing on Estelville Avenue, has decided with many who have since passed away. Next that the railroad company was in blame, and re-Memorial Day there will be a still larger gap in the commends that safety gates be placed at all unproranks, and hands that to-day will reverently strew tected crossings in May's Landing. The railroad comflowers on the graves of departed comrades will be pany must shoulder the responsibility; but does that veteran of the Civil War will have passed to his final the jury and protect the dangerous crossings? It is to rest. The cause of human liberty not only here but be trusted that they will. A railroad company has no throughout the world depended on the devotion and more right to ignore public opinion and the law than sacrifices of these men. They vindicated the theory an individual. In this instance it seems only a matter of the equality of man, and preserved the principles of economy with the company to safeguard their railof the Republic. As the great drama recedes in the road, for the damages awarded for injuries and deaths perspective of time it intensifies a patriotism which must far exceed the cost of providing adequate safety has ceased to be sectional, and the whole Nation, appliances at all points alone the line, East, West, North and South, knows now but one glorious flag.

A change for the better has been made in the mode of conducting trials in the County Courts, more especially in that branch commonly known as the Civil Court. Heretofore a great and unnecessary expense has been entailed on the County by hearing, even after several days' notice. Witnesses and Court Officers would be summoned, and a heavy bill of expenses incurred to try one or two petty cases. The tardiness of the litigation caused by lack of preparation by the lawyers became so great that the Court was obliged to publicly censure those whose cases were not ready on the day appointed, and at the opening of the present session it was impressed upon the minds of attorneys that cases not ready would be carried over to the next term of Court. Immediately business in the Civil Court began to assume a lively aspect, and almost as many cases have been tried in a day as were before tried in a week. The change in policy will no doubt effect some settlement with their opponents. Thus school."-Plensantville Press. a large portion of a day is often lost, and delays County Courts is commendable.

Lake Lenape and the Great Egg Harbor River afford excellent sport to motor boat enthusiasts. A few years ago there was but one launch on the river; but to-day trim craft are moored to the wharves, and their number is constantly increasing. Yachtsmen of the shore resorts are beginning to make frequent trips up the river, which passes through as picturesque and beautiful a portion of land and salt marsh as can be found in the State. Many large motor boats make extended excursions and pass pleasant outings at at May's Landing, where the best pickerel gounds in that there was little wind and no sea. This is the season when May's Landing and her natural beauties show at their best. Few towns in the State can boast of such magnificent maples and sturdy oaks as grace the avenues of the community. My Employee.

[Original.]

There were years of continued revolution in Cuba before the final relinquishment of the island by Spain by order of the United States. As far back as fifty years ago filibustering expeditions went there from Florida, but revolution had not gathered sufficient strength for an auxiliary to be of benefit. Now and again a leader would arise but after a brief resistance to Spanish tyranny would succumb. Usually a price was set upon his head. It was during the latter part of this period of incipient revolution that I went to Cuba as a sugar planter. My plantation was in the interior, but my office was in Havana. One day while at the former my coat was caught by a portion of the machinery, and I was jerked toward instant death. One of Spanish and Aztec blood, pushed for ward and extricated me a few seconds before I would have been mangled but brushed the anow from the heaps and for him. One evening I remained longer than usual at my office to make some estimates. All my employees had gone home, and I was sitting alone at my desk, with my back to the door. Suddenly there came to me one of those indescribable sensations, which mark no sound, I knew some one stood behand, which he grasped with a feeling as you are prepared to hear, but not not indicated in his countenance. Then I asked him why he had left me and where he had been.

"I received word, signor, that my father's little plantation had been raided by Spanish troops under a pretext that he was disloyal to the government. All he had was taken from him, "We must get out of this," he said the deadherd had pretty much passed brands, and the snow people were and he was thrown into prison, while starve. When he had finished, after procuring some provisions for him I locked him up in my office and went home to concoct a plan for getting him out of Cuba. Guests were permitted to her within a week.

At the end of the week the judge did not appear. He wrote a letter instead. The letter was shown to the landlord and then "accidentally" left on a table in the parlor for half a day, and it was doubtless read by a score of the female On his left sat an elderly woman with stood at the desk, and he made mental guests. I must explain to you that the regular doors had been taken off for the summer and replaced by slat or blind doors to permit of free circulation. There was a space of about a foot at top and bottom, and no watchmen were kept in the halls at night. As these slat doors locked, the idea was that the thief was slim enough to slip over or under them. There were perhaps ten boys at the hotel with their parents, but none of them could be suspected. In fact, the detective who. was summoned and came down as a guest could not find a thing to found a suspicion on. After working his head was about the the rooms. THE END OF IT ALL

[Copyright, 1907, by P. C. Eastment.] "Say, captain," said the recruiting sergeant as he entered the room where his superior was seated in a building on South street, New York, "I've got a iim dandy of a recruit. He's a swell." "He isn't the sort we want"

"But he says he's bound to enlist lither in the army or navy." "Bring him in."

The captain had seen Thomas Dalton's kind before. It always began with a false name—the first name that came into their heads-and it almost always ended in desertion or tragedy. He sized the young man up as he memoranda as follows:

"Hasn't got through college vet. Got into some scrape. Old man has given him a dressing down. Young fellow is money to go abroad or take a tour out west and is going to enlist in spite of the governor. Old man will buy him out of the service in six months. The mother's tears will make him do it. He's bound to take the army or navy. Riv months of discipling will take some of the frolic out of him, and I'll give him a show to settle down." The usual questions were asked and the many pleasant things he said to answered, the young man was sent to the surgeon, and before sundown he belonged to Uncle Sam. The sergeant. being now his superior officer, started out to patronize the "fresh fish."

It didn't work. He wanted to talk confidentially. The recruit was mum. Atlantic City

Physicians all over the country send patients to Atlantic City. The wind blows all the time there either from the land or sea. of course. If it is from the water side it is full of ozone and invigorating. If it comes from the land it sweeps through many miles of pine woods before it reaches the grand oceanwalk and also is benefical. A week at Atlantic City does any one good if he takes it easy. Go to bed at the proper hour, spend all the day and night on the promenade, don't rush-just stroll; eat all you can, and at the end of a week-you'll be cured of any ills that may have afflicted you.
