Sites for Bungalows For Lease or Sale

Founded at the head of tide water on the banks of the Great Egg Harbor River, May's Landing has enjoyed from the first the reputation of being the most beautiful, most healthful place of residence in the section of New Jersey. Its magnificent oak trees have become famous, and beautiful Lake Lanape is scarcely less well-known. Inducements to manufacturers are exceptionally good. For the truck farmer and poultry raiser it is an ideal location, and the mecca of those seeking Summer homes at a reasonable cost.

Splendid boulevards for automobiles lead to May's Landing from every point, including the direct road from Philadelphia by way of Downstown and the Egg Harbor City boulevard, leading from the White Horse Pike. The Great Egg Harbor River boasts of an active Yacht Club open for membership. This picturesque waterway affords good boating, bathing and fishing, and is a popular highway with yachtsmen to Atlantic City, Ocean City and other seashore resorts.

Municipal conveniences include cold, sparkling water, 99 percent pure from an artesian well, supplied through a new public water works system, first-class fire protection with consequent low insurance rates, low rates of taxation, electric lighting, prosperous churches, good public schools, etc. If you never visited May's Landing, it is time to do so. ### The Mysterious Englishman

And How He Was Brought Back to His Own

By CLARISSA MACKIE

They had finished supper at the Twin Star ranch, and the men were sitting outside the bunk house enjoying their pipes and cigarettes in the sunset glow. There were long-legged Jink Frook, Massa Pepper, Tony Goff, Jack Raymond, Bob Hazen, "the mysterious Englishman," and, a little in the foreground, Boss Carwood himself. "Who comes here?" queried Jack Raymond lazily.

"The others followed the direction of his curious eyes and saw a horse and rider flying up the straight trail that was plainly visible for half a mile. "One of the Manning boys," remarked Carwood carelessly. "Rides recklessness like Peter," also cried Jack Frook. "That's him, though?"

"Who comes here?" queried Jack Raymond lazily. "No more I ain't," muttered Jack Raymond, rousing himself to watch the rapidly approaching horseman. The horse was a beautiful creature—a deep cream color with mane and tail a dark bay. Its rider was mounted on a high Mexican saddle and wore a high top riding boot and a soft felt hat pulled well down over the head and half covering the eyes, gray caudlets and high heeled spurred boots of faded leather.

"That's my name." "I have a letter for you, and perhaps I may have a few moments' conversation with you," continued the stranger. "By the way, my name's Gray—Jim Gray." "Had to know you, Gray. Come up to the house while I read the letter Cook's getting some supper for you." "Look like a boy better and a man better," remarked Raymond as the two figures vanished in the dusk. "Pears as if he might sew a little now and then." "Pears he'd turn to and be mender for the outfit."

"That Jim Gray sure be some looking for some men. Lads, I think I think mayhap!" "Me, I have a letter," he whispered. "That Jim Gray sure be some looking for some men. Lads, I think I think mayhap!"
