GUilty OF MANSLAUGHTER

Augustus Lutherman Convicted After Brief Trial and Sentenced To Eight Years at Hard Labor In State Prison.

Augustus Lutherman was convicted Thursday last of manslaughter in connection with the death of John Kraemer on May 24, and sentenced by Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, 1913, County Law Judge E. A. Higbee, 1913, District Court Judge Robert J. Ingham, 1912, Prosecutor of the Pleas C. J. Goldenberg, 1913.

On the night of the tragedy Kraemer, a veteran of the Civil War, had been drinking heavily as had been his custom for some time previously when Lutherman, a much younger and stronger man, came in, also under the influence of liquor, a quarrel started.

Among the witnesses called by the State were Detective Charles Apple, Officer Albert DeLore, Des. William T. Beckwith, Lewis R. Sander and Charles Bower; Mrs. Laura Manners, who kept the lodging house where the tragedy occurred; Mrs. Martha McNamee, Mrs. and Mrs. William Charlton, neighbors.

We Want At Once. Local and traveling salesmen in this State are invited to call on the work for you soliciting for our easy selling specialties.

GRAND JURY FINALLY ADJOURNS

Nearly Two Hundred Indictments Found In Busy Sessions.

After making a final pronouncement of a score of bills Thursday last before Law Judge E. A. Higbee, the October Grand Jury finally adjourned, subject to the recall of the foreman if public necessity shall so require.

HUSBAND HELD FOR MURDER. William Strong Will Be Given a Formal Hearing Next Week.

Interest in the election at Hammonont Tuesday last was temporarily abated by the arrest of William H. Strong at Neco, charged with the murder of his wife, whose mangled body was found in the barn on their farm several weeks ago.

Mill Hands Enjoying Good Wages. Compared with wages paid by other cotton mills throughout South Jersey, the mill employees of the Water Power Company at this place are receiving good pay and there should be no reason for their discontent.

Legion Marched in Big Parade. The Hamilton Township Republican League one hundred strong, headed by the Captain Cornet Band, participated in the big street parade in Atlantic City Saturday evening last and afterward attended the meeting at the Steel Pier.

GAME WILL BE PLENTIFUL

Sportsmen of South Jersey Anticipate Good Hunting When Fall Opens Tuesday Next—Wardens Will Watch for Violation of Law.

Game is reported plentiful in all parts of South Jersey and sportsmen anticipate a good day's sport Tuesday next, the 15th inst, when the season opens in this part of the State. Quail, especially, which have been liberated in the gamefields in large numbers, have propagated rapidly and give promise of the best sport in many years.

Somers Point Wet Republic. Somers Point City Tuesday last gave Vivian M. Lewis a majority of 49 over Woodrow Wilson and elected a straight Republican ticket for the first time in several years.

Election at Port Republic. The election at Port Republic was the hottest held at the place since it was made a city. Other than the State and County returns, which will be found in the tabulated returns, the vote was as follows:

Presented With Handsome Gold Watch. Sheriff E. L. Johnson was presented Tuesday evening by Senator-elect Walter E. Edge and Assemblyman-elect Isaac Bacharach with a handsome Waltham watch, in recognition of his good work as campaign manager in Atlantic County.

Bargains in Jewelry. From now on until January 1, jewelry will be sold at half-price at Underhill's—Adv.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

ATLANTIC IS BANNER

REPUBLICAN COUNTY GAVE LEWIS NEARLY 5,000 MAJORITY.

Wilson Elected by Political Land-slide—Congressman Gardner and County Candidates Won Easily—Legislature Democratic.

Atlantic County Republicans stood loyal to the Grand Old Party at the election Tuesday last, returning one of the heaviest Republican majorities in many years and making Atlantic the banner County of the State.

While Atlantic County, which was the first to endorse the candidacy of the Hon. Vivian M. Lewis, aided by Passaic, Camden, Cape May, Cumberland, and Salem Counties, has rolled up a heavy majority for the Republican nominees, the other counties experienced one of the greatest political land-slides in the history of New Jersey.

With the election of an executive, the Democrats carried seven of the ten Congressional Districts and elected many members of the State Legislature. The Senate will represent Republican, 12 to 9; but the House is Democratic, 42 to 18, with a Democratic majority on joint ballot of 55.

Congressman John J. Gardner was easily re-elected by a majority of 5,551. The vote of the four counties comprising the Second Congressional District was as follows:

Table with 2 columns: County Name, Votes. Lists votes for Atlantic, Burlington, Cumberland, and Cape May.

Full City And County Returns

Large table with columns: Districts, Governor, Congress, Senate, Assembly, Coroner, Vote. Lists returns for various districts and totals.

Hammonont News Notes.

The condition of Capt. C. D. Loveland is reported much improved. The Town Council held a meeting Wednesday evening last. The "Sample Fair" is in progress at Union Hall under the auspices of the Civic Club.

THE WEATHER. Forecast for Pennsylvania, Delaware and New Jersey—Fair to cloudy and colder with Northwest winds. Sunday fair.

MAY'S LANDING, NOVEMBER 12, 1910.

The excellent order that prevailed at the Hamilton Township polls last Tuesday was a credit to the community.

Better lighting should be provided at the dangerous Sugar Hill railroad crossing. The road at this point is poorly illuminated. A large incandescent electric light should be located just above the crossing.

Sportsmen justly protest against the inhumanity of hunting deer without dogs. Our representatives, Senators-elect Walter E. Edge and Assemblyman-elect Isaac Bacharach, will introduce a bill in the next Legislature to change the law and will do their best to secure its passage.

Action of the Township Committee to improve the drainage of Main Street near Hudson Avenue will meet with general approval and is a step in the right direction. There are other places along the avenue where water collects during storms that need better drainage system and these will no doubt receive early attention.

On Tuesday next the Fall season for hunting quail, pheasants, rabbits and other small game will open. Game is reported fairly plentiful throughout the county, owing to restocking the fields and woods and protective legislation. Every sportsman should stand firmly for enforcement of the law; to see that no traps are used and that the unsportsmanlike practice of "pot-hunting" is stopped.

Complaints have been made by gunners that many careless and irresponsible persons go abroad into the fields and woods with firearms, who endanger life by their lack of caution. Everyone who carries a gun into the gamefields should remember these three things: Look before you shoot, carry your gun so that the muzzle is always pointing away from your companions and never in an actual use. Another thing, gunners should look out for keeping the hammer or trigger away from brush when travelling through the woods. Observance of these simple rules will greatly increase the safety of the sport.

Killing a man during the heat of a quarrel is not always justifiable, as indicated in the conviction of August Lutherman Thursday for manslaughter. Lutherman, it appears, had justification for defending himself; but used more force in so doing than was necessary. The killing of a man is a serious matter under any circumstances and the law should be applied to the privilege of self-defense. Anyone who engages in a quarrel, and can end it without violence, has no reasonable excuse for what may happen afterward, even though his assailant may be in the wrong. Only the most extreme circumstances justify the taking of a human life.

Assemblyman John J. Gardner has been chosen as the representative of the people of the Second Congressional District of New Jersey and will go to Washington with their confidence in his faithfulness to their interests and his ability to secure legislation favorable to South Jersey. Mr. Gardner received the support of right-thinking men in both parties, and as predicted last week in this column, swept the district with a pleasing majority. There never was a doubt in the minds of those familiar with local conditions that he would be re-elected and his substantial majority is a vindication of his work in behalf of his people and a strong rebuke to his enemies. Here's to you, Uncle John, and may your deserved popularity never wane!

Atlantic County Republicans stood loyal to their party Tuesday last at the polls, returning the highest majority in the State for their candidate for governor, the Hon. Vivian M. Lewis. They were the first to endorse Mr. Lewis and they stood by him nobly, sincere in their conviction that the welfare of New Jersey would be best promoted by his election. Atlantic County was the banner Republican County of the State, but its people will place their citizenship above their partisanship in supporting every independent act of Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson that is for the public good. Hamilton Township recorded a splendid majority for the Republican candidate, as well as for the whole Republican ticket. Now that the election is over, all citizens should give their attention to the promotion of public welfare. The Commonwealth has a balance of more than two million dollars in the treasury; great public improvements, including an inland waterway, State boulevard, forest preservation and other projects are under way. Republicans should not grow indifferent in their interest in the promotion of these splendid improvements, nor should the Democratic officials, for partisan effect, throw the slightest discouragement in their way. The people should stand as a whole for public improvement and forest partisanship in their citizenship. The platforms of the respective gubernatorial candidates were materially the same; the people have chosen Woodrow Wilson to carry out the policies of his party. As the Hon. Vivian M. Lewis said in his message of felicitation to the Governor-elect: "May he have a happy and prosperous administration."

Coverly's Substitute

Appearances Were Against Him.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

"I'm sorry, Elizabeth," said Ralph Coverly, "that I must go to Chicago on business for the firm of Fabens & Coverly."

"Never mind, Ralph. My one week has been lovely, and I shall enjoy spending a quiet time with your mother."

"Mother will be delighted to have you with her constantly. An invalid's days are dull enough. But there is an elderly aunt coming tomorrow, and I'm afraid you'll not find it very amusing with just Aunt Agatha and mother. I've thought of a plan so that you might enjoy the program we planned and not miss any of the concerts or art galleries or even the opera."

"What is that, dear? Really, half of the anticipated pleasure was the knowledge that we were to be together."

Ralph hesitated, and then, as if dismissing some unworthy doubt from his mind, he said quickly:

"Why, I've spoken to Fabens. He's a mighty clever chap and is better versed in all the things you're interested in than I am. I'm such a practical fellow, Elizabeth. Well, I told Fabens all the things I'd planned we were to do the coming week and asked him to see that you didn't miss any of the pleasures."

"It's very thoughtful of you, Ralph."

The next morning when Elizabeth wandered downstairs to a late breakfast she found the expected Aunt Agatha established at the head of the table. She was a stern, rigid lady, whose hair remained a shining black in defiance of threescore years. She wore gold spectacles with thick lenses, which magnified her dark eyes with startling results. An ear trumpet dangled from a ribbon over her shoulder, much like a powderhorn at the back of a hunter.

"Good morning, Miss Neal—or shall I say Elizabeth? My niece has written to you, and I've seen your picture. If you'll excuse my saying so, you're not at all the sort of girl I thought Ralph would marry. He always preferred brunettes, like myself. Well, men are fickle as the weather! It's too bad Mary is confined to her room. You will be very lonely." Miss Dale paused to take breath.

"Mrs. Coverly will enjoy having some one with her. She is so much alone except for the nurse," said Elizabeth.

"I can't hear a word you say," asserted Miss Dale calmly. "It doesn't matter. I can always guess what people are talking about at table. You probably remarked that you wouldn't be lonely at all during Ralph's absence. I know Dick Fabens, my dear, and a more fascinating man I never met. Ralph is very foolish to leave you in Dick's care. But, there, every one has his consolations, and so let the dark beauty Ralph was so crazy about last year live in Chicago. There, there! Don't get emotional!"

Elizabeth, angry and amused, watched her and when she was alone finished her breakfast and retired to her own room. Later her brief morning visit to sweet Mrs. Coverly brought forth the fact that Aunt Agatha had arrived from her suburban home at an early hour that morning. She had surveyed the house from attic to cellar and had interrogated the nurse and the servants with painstaking results.

Mrs. Coverly smiled indulgently and touched Elizabeth's serious face with a delicate forefinger. "Aunt Agatha is an angel at heart, Elizabeth, but her deafness has accentuated certain oddities in her manner, and she has adopted a freedom of speech that is sometimes alarming. Don't forget, I shall expect you to come in for our game of chess every evening if you don't mind devoting so much time to an old woman."

Elizabeth's answer was to kiss the hand that caressed her, and the next half hour was one of delightful intimacy with the mother of her prospective husband.

Aunt Agatha at luncheon was a repetition of Aunt Agatha at breakfast, and her deeply veiled monologue left the girl with a strange sense of desolation. For the first time since her engagement to Ralph there crept into her heart a vague despondency as to his perfect loyalty. Who was this dark beauty of whom Aunt Agatha Dale talked?

Two weeks brought Dick Fabens with tickets for a matinee, and as Aunt Agatha was too rheumatic to go far afield, Elizabeth went alone with Ralph's partner. During their brief ride in the carriage Elizabeth learned that Mr. Fabens was feeling much better and that the simple program Ralph had laid out appealed to his convalescent body and mind as nothing else could.

Dick Fabens was fascinating. Older than Ralph, he was attractive by reason of his contrasting gray hair and youthful face. He was strangely sympathetic to Elizabeth, and she found herself loving to him for confirmation of all her doubts in each change that came.

He did not flirt with her, he did not make love to her. He was simply natural and unaffected, and by very reason of her enforced solitude at the Coverly home Elizabeth turned to him for companionship and pleasure during those seven days.

Aunt Agatha suddenly disapproved of Dick Fabens' attention and expressed her opinion each morning. Elizabeth came to take a wicked delight in listening to those lectures, and frequent mention of the dark beauty in Chicago and Ralph's weakness in that direction hardened her heart against the absent lover. His daily letters were characteristically short, and her jealous eyes read between the lines that he was enjoying his stay in the Windy City. Then on Tuesday the letters ceased coming, and Elizabeth stopped writing.

On Saturday morning she took counsel in her own room and decided that Ralph Coverly was tired of her. If he had not been, if he had really cared for her, would he not have hesitated at leaving a substitute for his own escort? Was it not to justify his own attentions to this other girl—whose name Aunt Agatha had once admitted to be Elsie—that he had provided a substitute? Fabens spoke little of his partner beyond saying that the coveted contract had been secured by Ralph.

Saturday morning Elizabeth went back to the boarding school, where she was a teacher of music, but before she went she inclosed her engagement ring in a tiny box, registered it and sent it to Ralph's office, with a brief note explaining her action. "It has all been a mistake," she said.

Aunt Agatha's farewell of her was prolonged and affectionate at the late breakfast, several hours after the ring had been sent.

"Goodbye, my dear Elizabeth. I've learned to love you dearly, and I've watched you closely during the past week while Dick Fabens has been taking you out, and you are a most unusual girl. Ralph has won a treasure indeed. We would have been so unhappy if he had cared for that Elsie, girl who set her cap for him last year. It's a good thing she eloped with her chauffeur and went to Paris, for—and so on until Elizabeth's brain reeled with the horror of what she had done.

Her farewell to Mrs. Coverly was tearful and brief, but she did not dare divulge the fact of her broken engagement to the woman who had taken the motherless girl to her warm heart.

At Ferncliff the weeks passed drearily without word from Ralph. There was a picture postcard from Aunt Agatha, home saying she trusted the missive found Elizabeth in good health. Then Elizabeth mailed a card to Miss Dale and hoped that lady was quite well, and so ended her connection with the Coverly family.

There came a day several months afterward when she received cards for Dick Fabens' wedding to some girl from New Orleans. She laid it away with a little sigh. It was merely an echo of the happy life she had dropped out of. She blamed herself bitterly for listening to Aunt Agatha's insane chatter and knew that she had wronged Ralph. And yet there was the fact that he had ceased writing to her. That might be easily explained. Letters often miscarried. There was no excuse for her doubt of her lover's constancy. She ought to have trusted him against everybody in the world, even as he would have done had the case been reversed.

The same day was a half holiday, and Elizabeth, weary with the strain of teaching and very unhappy, stole away to spend the afternoon alone in the beautiful chestnut woods that stretched behind the school buildings. The trees were in their summer glory of gold and brown, and through the scanty foliage there were glimpses of the clear blue sky. Where the trees fringed the banks of the tumbling river Elizabeth found a seat on a mossy rock.

The rushing of the river drowned all other sounds, and it was with her stood beside her that Elizabeth knew Ralph Coverly had come at last. From very joy in his presence she was powerless to move.

He looked down at her, pale and worn and quite unlike his usual buoyant self.

"Elizabeth," he said desperately, "I've just had Fabens' invitation. If it isn't he, who is it?"

"Who is who?" asked Elizabeth weakly, her voice breaking as he caught her hand.

"The one who came between us," said Ralph hoarsely. "Aunt Agatha hinted—she wrote—it was Fabens, and you were both so happy, so I stopped writing and came home to find the ring and your letter. I was a beast to Fabens—thought he had cut me out with you—and then he stiffened up, and we've hardly been on speaking terms outside of business. Then this morning I found his wedding invitation in my mail, and so I came down to find out who the other man is. I would have staked my life on your faith, Elizabeth."

"You may now. Wait, Ralph, till I tell you all," sobbed Elizabeth. But Ralph did not wait. His arms were about her and her sunny head on his shoulder while she poured out the misunderstanding and misery of those seven days.

"It's turned out for the best, dear," he comforted her. "This contract was a big thing, and so I am not going to wait another week for you. June is fast far away. Give up your position and come. Mother needs you, and I do not dare run the chance of having to provide another substitute."

"Or else her I'll throw Aunt Agatha," said Elizabeth devoutly.

ACQUIREMENTS. Every noble acquisition is attended with its risks. He who fears to encounter the one must not expect to obtain the other.—Masterson.

On His Dignity. A tramp knocked at a lady's door the other morning and said: "Lady, I am starving. For the last forty-eight hours not a morsel of food has passed."

"Oh, you poor fellow!" said the lady. "My husband has an old pair of boots upstairs. Wait and I'll get them for you."

The tramp bit his lip. "Thank me, ma'am," he said haughtily. "I know my chin whiskers by getting long, but none the less I ain't no goat!"—Louisville Times.

The Way He Excused Her. It is said that a French ambassador at Vienna once bitterly complained to Metetrich of the tongue lashing he had received from the wife of that great diplomatist. Metetrich sighed, then shrugged his shoulders as one who should say, "Well, what are we to do about it?" "Finally he observed, "My dear friend, I loved the young lady; I married her; I continued to cherish her with the same affection as before, but remember this—I had nothing to do with her educating or bringing up!"

Jealous of His Game. Phillip II, of Spain could play chess ably enough as long as he won, like so many of us, but woe to the indiscreet player who checked in the majesty. Baulishment from court was the least penalty he might expect. One of the most powerful grandees of Spain after playing with the king returned home and thus greeted his family: "My children, we have nothing more to do at court. There we must henceforth expect no favor. The king is offended because I have won every game of chess."

An Appreciation. An old sea captain was turning over the leaves of a friend's album when, coming to the photograph of a young lady of whose acquaintance the family was rather proud, he was asked what he thought of her. "Awful," was the old sea rover's reply, "if I were going to buy that girl for what she was worth I'd sell her for what she thinks she is worth!"—Idios.

Cures For Sleeplessness. Horace in his satires recommended swimming the Tiber three times. Sir Thomas Browne was accustomed to repeat some verses of a certain hymn. Franklin took an air bath. Sir John Sleighair counted, while Sir John Renbow when engaged on any public works never went to sleep until his head had been combed and gently rubbed by a soft hand.

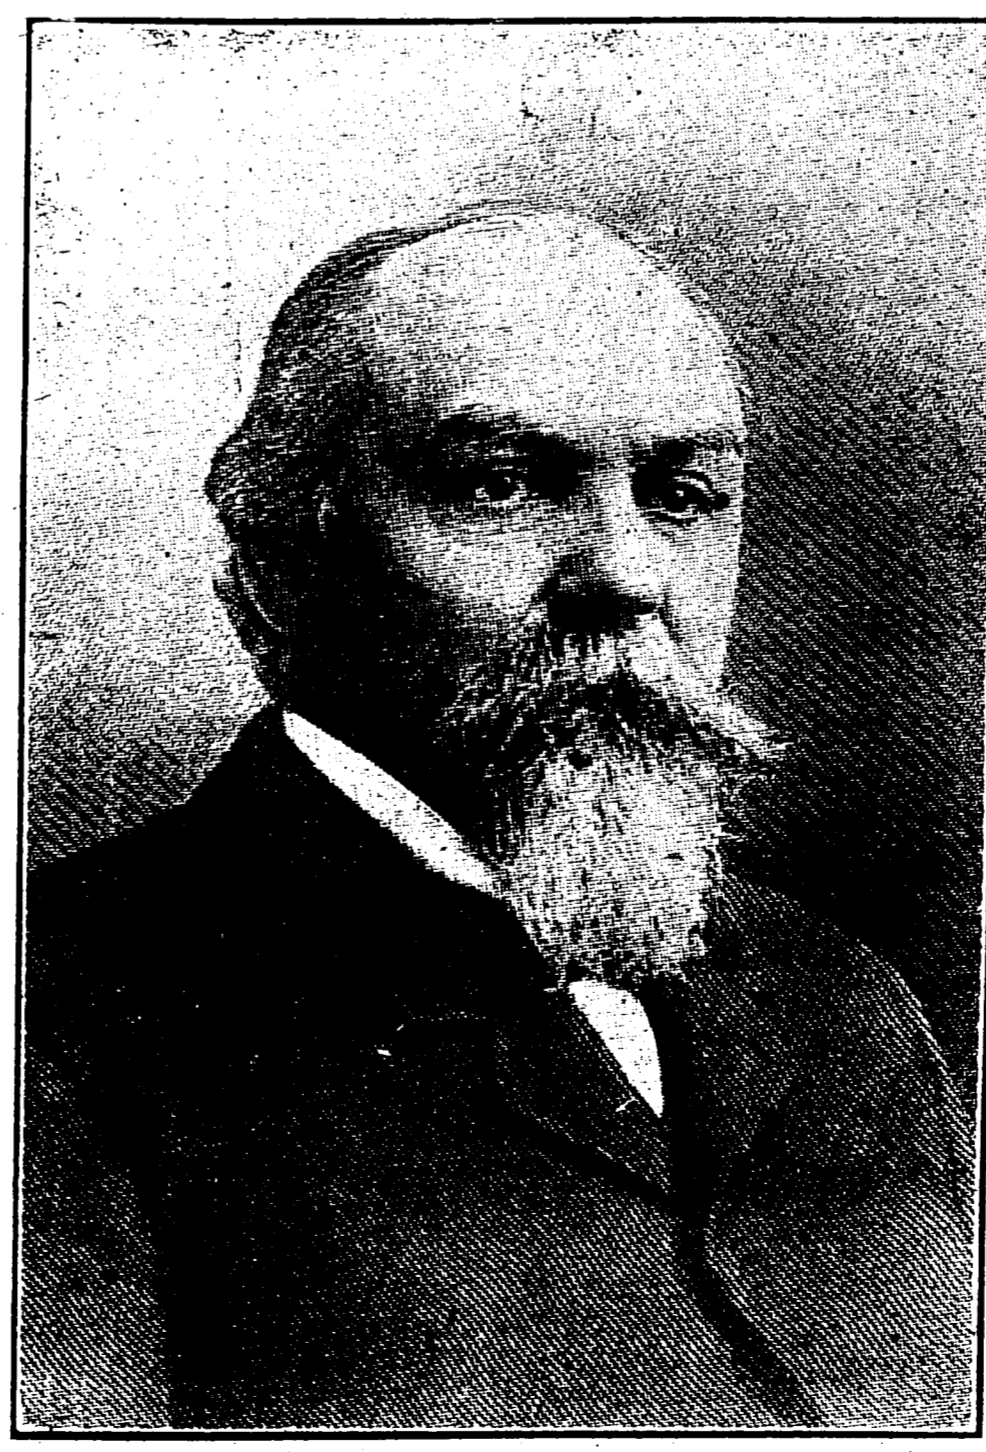

Fried Mush. When frying mush dip the slices first in the white of an egg. This makes it crisp.

Fur. Fur is worn more generally now than at any time in history. The demand far exceeds the supply.

The Parasol. "What is a parasol?" "A parasol is just an umbrella that you never think of borrowing."

Swearing. Swearing is seldom a convincing argument except to the man who indulges in it.

Wedding presents originated in a feudal tribute from the vassals to their lord. When feudalism ceased, the presents became voluntary. In the days of Queen Elizabeth a pair of knives or scissors was a common gift and symbolized the cutting of unfaithful love.
