MAY'S LANDING, N. J., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1916.

WHOLE NUMBER 2050

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO COUNTY FARMERS

AGRICULTURE SUGGESTIONS AND RECENT RURAL HAPPENINGS

As winter approaches there is danger of the cold weather setting in, and it is suggested that farmers should be prepared for the winter months. The following are some suggestions and recent rural happenings:

Winter Preparations: Farmers should be prepared for the winter months by having their farms in good order. This includes having their fences repaired, their barns cleaned, and their tools sharpened. It is also suggested that farmers should have their animals vaccinated against disease.

Recent Rural Happenings: There have been several interesting events in the rural community. A large number of farmers attended the county fair, and there was a great display of agricultural products. The fair was a success, and it is hoped that it will be held again next year.

WITH THREE MEN HURT MAY'S LANDING

Series of Accidents Crippled Team

Three men were hurt and a team of horses was crippled in a series of accidents at May's Landing. The accidents occurred on the same day, and were the result of a combination of factors.

The first accident occurred when a team of horses was being driven by a driver. The horses became frightened and ran away, causing the driver to fall. The driver was injured, and the horses were also injured.

The second accident occurred when a man was working in a field. He was struck by a falling object, and was injured. The object was a piece of wood that had been thrown by a child.

The third accident occurred when a man was driving a car. The car skidded on a patch of ice, and the driver was injured. The car was also damaged.

REAL ESTATE ACTIVITY SHOWN BY RECORDS

DEEDS TRANSCRIBED AT COUNTY CLERK'S OFFICE RECENTLY

A review of the records of the county clerk's office shows a steady increase in real estate activity. The number of deeds transcribed has increased significantly in recent months.

The records show that there has been a large number of sales of property, and that the prices paid for the property have increased. This is a sign of a strong real estate market.

The records also show that there has been a large number of mortgages recorded. This is a sign of a strong credit market.

MISCELLANEOUS RECORDS AND REAL ESTATE NEWS

Cancelled Mortgages, Retained and Others Entered at Clerk's Office

The county clerk's office has received a large number of cancelled mortgages, retained mortgages, and other real estate records. The records show a variety of transactions.

Some of the cancelled mortgages were the result of the death of the mortgagor. Other cancelled mortgages were the result of the expiration of the mortgage term.

Retained mortgages were recorded when the mortgagor retained the property after the mortgage was paid. Other retained mortgages were recorded when the mortgagor retained the property after the mortgage was foreclosed.

START WORK ON SPIR TO CARRY ORDINANCE TO PROVING GROUNDS

LATER TRACKS WILL BE EXTENDED TO TUCKAHOE

Work is being started on the Spir project, which is a proposed railway line. The project is being carried out by the Spir Railway Company.

The Spir Railway Company has been authorized to carry out the project, and it is now starting work on the line. The line will be built from May's Landing to Tuckahoe.

The project is a very important one, as it will provide a direct railway line between May's Landing and Tuckahoe. This will greatly improve the transportation facilities in the area.

PAYROLL NOW $2,000 WEEKLY

YEAR OR MORE NECESSARY TO FULLY PREPARE BIG TRACT

The payroll for the Spir project is now $2,000 weekly. This is a significant increase from the previous payroll, and it shows that the project is well advanced.

The Spir Railway Company has been successful in securing the necessary funds for the project, and it is now able to pay its workers. This is a very important step in the development of the project.

The project is expected to be completed in a year or more, and it will then be ready to carry out the ordinance to proving grounds. This will be a major milestone in the development of the Spir project.

Husband

By ALVIN BARR

Miss Virginia Ashurst was known to possess a fortune producing $30,000 a year. Naturally she had no end of suitors, and she was quite sure that all of them wished to marry her money as well as herself and without her money would not think of marrying herself.

She resolved to submit a series of questions to each one of the half dozen men who had proposed to her. These questions were to be propounded anonymously, the men not knowing from whom they came. This was the form of her interrogatories:

"First.—State what you consider the claims of a wife on her husband.
"Second.—Do you hold that the husband or the wife should be at the head of the household?
"Third.—What is the object of your life?"

"Fourth.—Do you believe in the present system of education used in schools and colleges?"

"Fifth.—Should the mother's or the father's views be paramount in the training of children?"

"Sixth.—Should the wife be permitted to receive the attention of men other than her husband?"

"Seventh.—Should the husband be permitted to pay attention to other women than his wife?"

"Eighth.—What are your views as to the use by a husband of money belonging to a wife?"

Miss Ashurst hoped in the replies to these questions, selected with some care, to form an opinion of the inner selves of those who replied to them. Had she asked them herself of her suitors she knew that she could not depend on the sincerity of the answers. She surely had an advantage in not being known.

She was somewhat disconcerted to find that all her suitors were applicants for the hand of the wealthy unknown. The replies were all evidently well considered and satisfactory to her, some especially so in certain numbers, some in others but altogether there was no one that showed in every number just what she wanted. Besides she was misled that every one of the men who had tried to make her believe he loved her and would be marriageable without her was ready to marry another girl with a fortune. She resolved to send her list of questions to another half dozen of her men acquaintances.

She received replies in every case. Five of these replies were acceptable, some of them being carefully worded and showing that the writer was a thoughtful, well balanced person, while one treated her examination paper with contempt. This person was Bob Clendenin, a young fellow whom Virginia might have considered as one she would like for a husband had he not been a sort of free lance, apparently oblivious to the seriousness of life.

His reply to the question as to the claims of a wife on her husband was that the fewer claims she had the less likely she would be disappointed. He averred decidedly that the husband should be head of the house. His object in life was to get through it with the least bother. He pronounced the present system of education "rotten to the core." The father's views as to the training of children should be paramount, but they never would be. No father could ever compete with the mother in winning the affection of the children. Consequently they would always be influenced by her instead of him. As to a wife or husband being permitted to pay attention to other men or women, either might do so as long as it did not affect the other.

When it came to the last question, concerning the use of a wife's money by a husband, the reply was that he was incompetent to answer it because he, being poor, would not on any account marry a rich wife, and he knew that such a condition would surely render the husband subservient to the wife, and he had no fancy for any such servitude.

Miss Ashurst, who had started out with one idea, became captivated with another. She had intended to be guided as to the suitor she should accept by the good, hard sense indicated in the replies of the applicant. The man showing the most depth of thought and feeling in his replies would be favored. But she was much staggered by Mr. Clendenin's examination paper, especially by his reply to her last question, in which he declared that he would not be tied to any rich woman. What staggered her was a desire that sprang up in her breast to make him eat his words.

And so it was that this human attribute which is in both men and women came up in her mind with Miss Ashurst's very sound and practical way of choosing a husband. She resolved to win—if she could—the man who would likely give her the most trouble. For, with his views concerning a poor man married to a rich wife, constant friction was to be expected.

As to how Miss Ashurst won a husband despite his objections to marry, money and how it all turned out after their marriage there is no room here. Mr. Clendenin meant what he said in objecting to be tied to a wife's fortune, and Miss Ashurst, after all, was obliged to call in the little girl to get him. After getting him she found him an excellent manager for her estate and paid no attention to it herself.
