Much of the success of the rebuilding of the school is due to the Rev. S. K. Moore, who drew the plans for the work and by his ingenuity transformed what would have else and commodious building. The plans had to be redrawn several times in order to bring the cost down to the amount voted for the purpose. Those who are acquainted with the work say the plans for rebuilding the old structure were far more difficult to draw than would Hon, S. R. Morse. have been the case in an entire new building.

Prospects Bright For Early Construction of New Road.

Prospects for the early construction of the May's Landing-Tuckahoe boulevard are bright and it snow looks as though work will be started on the new road before Spring, in time to have it completed for the Summer travel. Freeholder John S. Risley, who worked hard is endeavoring to have the work started before the term of Col. Fred. Gilkyson as State Road Commissioner is ended and there is every indication that his efforts will meet with success. The completion of the road will be a boon to farmers along its route and will be halled with

REFORM NEEDED TO KEEP

BOYS ON FARM. Five Hundred Teachers Attended

Annual State Convention Held

At Atlantic City-Lectures by Noted Educators. Five hundred teachers from all parts of the State attended the fifty-sixth annual convention of the New Jersey State Teachers' Association held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the High School, Atlantic City, one of the most successful gatherings of its kind ever held by the Association. The meetings were full of interest and were attended by many residents of Atlantic City and County in addition to the teachers. On Wednesday evening. the annual banquet was held at the Marlborough-Blenheim. Special courses in agriculture for rural schools were recommended by Fred. L. Keeler. Deputy State Superintendent of Michigan, who spoke on "Relating Instruction to Needs of the Rural Citizen." Lack of progress in methods and equipment he declared to be the bane of the country schools. He spoke of New Jersey as a dairy State, but asserted that but onethird of cows of the State " paid their board," and advocated scientific instruction in the rural schools along these lines to make cows a source of profit. MAY'S ŁANDING, DECEMBER 31, 1910.

The year 1910 is nearly spent and we are preparing to welcome 1911. Only a few hours more, and the old year will have faded into history, with its sorrows and rejoieing, its failures and successes. Yet the memory of them all is with us still. Some of us will go from success to greater success, but most of us will go forth from our failures resolved to do better during the coming year.

The new year resolve is one of the most promising signs of progress. On the brink of the old year, before we step into the new, we pause to look over our past, to see wherein we have erred, and wisely conclude to make such amends as we may in the future. By all means, let us resolve that the New Year will 35 ft. South of Arctic Ave. $3,400. leave us better than the old.

Progress is the order of the day. Individuals states and nations must either go forward or retrograde. Every new year must see some new inventions, some new improvements. When progress is halted and we come to the place where we cannot improve, we are starting on our decline. The United States of America, one of the youngest of the powerful nations and yet one of the strongest, owes its greatness to the sturdy spirit of progress existing among its citizens. So long as that spirit can be fostered, the welfare of the nation is assured; but let us reach the point where we feel we can rest and exclaim, "good enough!" and we will repeat the history of Rome and other nations whose greatness fled when their citizens ceased to look forward.

Just as this is true of a nation, and history South side Atlantic Ave. 50 ft. In Atlantic County the past year has viewed? many improvements and the year to come will witness many more. New roads have farm lands and affording autoists splendid new bridges have been built and nade safe for the heaviest kind of traffic; public buildings have been improved; Atlantic City, the foremost seashory resort in the world, is growing still greater and extenerection of a new Sheriff's office and residence, the enlargement of the Clerk's office, the eximprovement in the condition of public and side of Atlantic Ave. $8,000.

Bixby received the morning papers from the city by 11 o'clock, and between breakfast and their receipt he walked. It was all very well for his doctor to tell him that he must do nothing. Everybody knows that Satan provides work for the melodious pining of some bird the shoulders, and her stomacher was idle hands to do. So long as he was busy he lived as innocent a life as any man of his acquaintance. Just as soon as he ceased to work he got into: mischief

Chance furnished an opportunity. One morning he started out for his constitutional. It was a cold, lowering day and spitting snow. Nevertheless Bixby crayed exercise and enjoyed stepping out at a brisk pace. 'He had not gone far before he saw a girl coming in the opposite direction. When she passed him he knew at once that, like himself, she was not country born and bred. Her dress coming only to the tops of her boots left, Bixby in doubt whether she had yet emerged from young girlhood or whether she had adopted a short skirt for walking. In passing Bixby she lowered her eyes with that modesty one expects to find either in young girls or in eminently correct ladies. The next morning Bixby took his constitutional at the same hour and on the same road. He had no idea of meeting the girl he had met the day before. Indeed, he had quite forgotten her. Passing over a crest and looking ahead, he saw a farmhouse, and at the same moment a door was opened and a woman came out and took the road toward Bixby. She had not comé very far before he recognized the girl he had met the day before. She was now carrying some books under her arm. "Schoolgirl," remarked Bixby to him-

Bixby had just turned thirty-five, and if his thoughts the day before had inclined to a possible relief from the telium of his exile with this girl the discovery that she was a schoolgirl put the idea quite out of his head. He permitted his eyes to dwell upon her for the moment during which he was passing bor, and she, as before, low-

The next afternoon Bixby was out rambling-indeed, he had nothing to do but ramble-when it occurred to him that he would like a glass of milk. At the moment he espied in the distance the house from which he had seen the schoolgirl emerge the day before. The natural consequence of wanting the milk and seeing the house at the same time was a thought that he might see the girl. In telling the story he never speaks of this last thought. leaving one to suppose that the two first contingencies alone resulted in

But Bixby was not a large man, and the girl seemed to be large for her age. Some girls get their growth by fourteen, and Bixby concluded this was one of that

The next morning was delightful, not a cloud in the sky and the air dry and cold. Bixby started for his walk and felt as if he would rather run. There was ice in the little ditches beside the road, and, being fresh frozen and glassy, it afforded especially good slides for boys and girls. MAKE PEOPLE HAPPY.

Every human soul has the germ of some flowers within, and they would open if they could only find sunshine and free air to expand in. I always told you that not having enough of sunshine was what ailed the world. Make people happy and there will not be half the quarreling or a tenth part of the wickedness there is. - Mrs. L. M.

A Fantastic Duty. A fantastic duty falls every fifth year to the lot of the mayor of St. Ives, in Cornwall, England, when the bequests left by John Knill, a former collector of customs, are distributed. Accompanied by the borough mace bearers, he has to walk in procession, with ten maids dressed in white and ten old widows, to the monument known as Knill's steeple, round which strangely assorted companions are required to step a measure. Then the bequests, which include £5 for the best knitter of fishing nets and £5 for the best curer and packer of fish, are distributed. After this the trustees ad-

YOUR TROUBLES.

John Wesley was once walking with a brother, who related to him his troubles, saying he did not know what he should do. They were at that monent passing a stone wall, over which a cow was looking.

"Do you know," asked Wesley,

"why that cow looks over that wall?" "No," replied the one in trouble. "I will tell you," said Wesley. "It is because she cannot look through it. And that is what you must do with your troubles—look
