

BARS TO MATRIMONY

FEAR KEEPS MANY MEN FROM THE BLISS OF WEDDED LIFE

Some instances of a lack of sufficient pluck to take the matrimonial trip to the altar—various reasons that all spell "afraid."

"There is a great deal of speculation," said a well-known lawyer, "as to why men are so reluctant to marry, but one reason never seems to occur to the speculators, and that is that many of them are afraid to. No, I am not joking. It is a sober and well-considered statement of fact, for which I can adduce as many proofs as you want, that many men would almost as soon think of putting a horse bolt on the head or facing the midnight tumbler as taking a trip to the altar."

"I remember as a boy an amusing specimen of this kind of man in Iowa. He was a farmer and was as notorious for his enormous entanglements as for his ingenuity in getting out of them when marriage began to loom near. It was said he had been engaged a dozen times, and though he left all his wives in the lurch, he never found any difficulty in getting a successor. One day my father, who was his lawyer, asked him: 'Why don't you get married, John? It isn't for want of opportunities, you know, and it's quite time you thought of settling down.'"

"Well, sir," John answered, "it is this way. You see, I like cooing with a girl, but I can never summon up pluck to go any further. To tell you the truth, I'm afraid of getting into a life of one."

If you have heard many breeches of matrimonial suits you will have observed that this wholesome dread of matrimony is the cause of a good proportion of them, though all the defendants have not the courage to say so. One client of mine had allowed matters to proceed right to the eve of the wedding day, when he disappeared mysteriously and was not discovered for some months. The young lady promptly sued him for damages for breach, and at the hearing the reason for his conduct came out. He admitted that he was fond of the girl, but supply exhibitions of her temper and jealousy, which he had witnessed, had so scared him that he simply hadn't the courage to marry her. "I want to marry her right enough," he said, "but when it came to the point my courage failed me, and I thought it safer to flout."

In another case in which a widow sued a widower for playing her false the defendant put in a singular plea. It seems that the widow, formerly employed by the husband, had been exposed to seduction by a friend of the son, a steady young fellow, who had been in the neighborhood of the house for some time, and that he had persisted in his suit to the son, who would also have been seduced as would naturally be the case, but that the defendant, seeing that he could not do the deed without being detected, had decided to play the part of a villain and had run away. This was a few years ago and the defendant is still at large.

Another case in which a plaintiff stood for a divorce, and the position of the defendant was a very peculiar one. The husband, who was a more or less respectable man, had been married for some time, and had a family. He had been married for some time, and had a family. He had been married for some time, and had a family.

After the first trial of the drama the husband took to his bed, and the wife, who was a more or less respectable man, had been married for some time, and had a family. He had been married for some time, and had a family.

ORIENTAL LANTERNS.

How They Are Made and Used to Which They Are Put.

The lantern of the east is as old as civilization. Its primary object is to protect the flame from sudden drafts. Beyond this is the decoration of light for the convenience of a reader and, last and not least, the beauty of the lantern. The oldest form is a perforated cylinder of metal, or of wood, or of glass, or of paper, or of any other material. It is made in many shapes and sizes, and is used in many ways. It is a very useful and beautiful object, and is one of the most important of the art of the east.

In the East, and Japan, the traveler's or street lantern is a favorite. It is a sphere of metal, ranging from six inches to two feet in diameter. SIR JOHN COANES'S WHIM.

The Practical Joke a Celebrated Man Played on Posterity.

One of the most famous of post-mortem jokes was that perpetrated by the donor of the celebrated Suetonius museum of pictures and other valuable objects to the nation. The late Sir John Coanes, who died in 1877, left a will by which he made provision for the opening of three sealed envelopes on certain specified dates in the presence of the trustees. In 1883, that is to say, thirty-three years after the death of the testator, the first of the mysterious envelopes was opened with much ceremony and the contents were read aloud in the presence of a committee of trustees, and the then president of the Royal Society, Sir John Lubbock, read the contents of the first envelope. It was a will, and it was a will of a very peculiar kind. It was a will of a very peculiar kind. It was a will of a very peculiar kind.

Twenty years passed, and the date of the opening of the second envelope had arrived. The trustees gathered together, and the second envelope was opened. It was a will, and it was a will of a very peculiar kind. It was a will of a very peculiar kind. It was a will of a very peculiar kind.

And see if your Kidneys are Diseased.

A very simple way to determine whether your kidneys or bladder are diseased is to put some of your urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours; if it has a sediment or a cloudy,ropy or stringy appearance, if it is pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that you are in a dangerous condition. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy speedsily cures such serious symptoms as pain in back, inability to hold urine, a burning scalding pain in passing it, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night, and the staining of linen by your urine.

The Rev. Aaron Coon, D.D., pastor of the M.E. Church of Rhinecliff, N.Y., says: "I most sincerely believe that Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy is the best kidney, liver and blood medicine made, and urgently recommend it, for I know by experience it will do all that is claimed for it."
