sensible, is suggested by Prof. Tyndall, the anthor of "Heat as a mode of motion," in this way:
"The shock which would be created

were the motion of the earth to cease would be willdent not only to set the whole earth on fire and melt it, but also convert it into a whole mass of vapor.

The question then would be whether this gaseous condition would be produced so instantaneously as to prevent the earth from falling into the sun, as its gravitation would force it to do if its diurnal motion should cease and its dense condition should continue for any perceptible time. If it did fall the heat of the collision would vaporize it, and So in any event everything would be gas, and the work of creation, or evolu-tion rather, might begin again. For if one of the planets should be put out of place the rest would tumble out to-

This, then, may of be one the dozen or so ways that the world is to come t an end. As the heat of the sun, by the Fyndall theory, is maintained by the all of meteorites, comets, vagrant, unknown planets, and all sorts of cosmical bodies into it, there is a color of reason n the fancy that some time this fuel of the system may be used up, and the sun go out. Then the world would come to an end for the want of heat, instead of too much heat, unless it and the other planets with it fall into the sun together, and then all will be vapor again. And thus creation and destruction, preparatory to a fresh creation, keep going.

The system will run down and out in certain millions of centuries, and then it is wound up by being retured to the primordial fire mist," and set to run through the same course again. This present solar system is only one planetary generation, and for all we know may not be the first, but the the tenth or the hundreth, which gives one a big-

A Liverpool correspondent of The English Mechanic describes an engine in which gunpowder was to give the molamp. The supply of gunpowder was in a hopper, from which a plug tap, re-volving with the fly-wheel, carried a small quantity of gunpowder, and at a certain point in the movement dropped the portion of powder on the red-hot wire. The working of the engine is thus epitomized: "The theory was beautiful; but upon the first trial, unfortunately, the whole affair went off so completely (very nearly taking father's head along with it) that he let

A Campaign Slander.

When Dr. R. V. Pierce was a candidate for State Senator, his political opponents pub-lished a pretended analysis of his popular medicines, hoping thereby to prejnitice the people against him. His election by an over-whelming majority severely rebuked his trawherming instances to impeach his business integrity. No notice would have been taken of these campaign hes were it not that some of his enemies (and every successful business man has his full quota of envious rivals) are. republishing these bogus analyses. > been introduced in some French towns which is worthy of special mention, Its economy is so great as to reduce the cost to the following figures: Five centimes (%d.) for a pair of drawers; two and a half centimes (%d.) for each shirt, and so on. This is the process: One kilo (two pounds) of soap is reduced with a little water to a sort of pap, which, having been slightly warmed, is cooled in forty five liters (ten gallons) of water, to which is added one specuful of turpentine oil and two spoonfuls of ammonia; then the mixture is agitated. The water is kept at a temperature which may be borne by the hand. In this solution the white clothes are put, and left there for two hours before washing them with soap, taking care in the meantime to cover the tub. The solution may be warmed again and used once more, but it will be necessary to add half a spoonful of turpentine and another spoonful of ammonia; Once washed with soap, the clothes are put in warm water, and the blue is applied. rupt me any more."
