The Law Library Of Congress.

In December, 1860, the Law Library was removed into the basement room formerly occupied by the Supreme Court semicircular in form, with massive grained around ceiling, resting upon short Doric columns, A sculptured group on the wall representing Fame crowned with the rising sun, and pointing to the Constitution, while Justice holds her scales, recalls the previous occupancy of the room. where Webster, Clay, Wirt and others "loarued in the law" nsed to argue great constitutional questions before the highest tribunal in the land. The librarian's mal ogany desk, of semicircular form, with faded green brocade hangings, formerly graced the Senate-chamber, and behind it presided the saccessive Vice-Presidents and Presidents of the Senate pro tem. from 1825 to 1860.

On the shelves of the book cases which project from the semicircular wall, converging towards an opposite centre, and forming alcoves, is now the most complete law library in the world. Lincoln's Inn library contains a large number of books, but two-thirds of them are works on miccellaneous subjects, and although the library of Halle, in Germany, and the Advocate's Library in Edinburgh are rich in-ancient-law-neither of them has been kept-up; indeed, the latter was recently offered for sale. In the Law Library of ly independent of the general character Congress are every volume of English, Irish, and Scotch reports, as well as the American; a copious collection of case law; and a complete collection of the statutes of all civilized governments, including those of Russia since 1619, which fill about one hundred quarto volumes. There are also many curious law-books. inleuding the first edition of Blackstone's Commenturies, and an original edition of the report of the trial of Cagliostro, Rohan and LaMotte for the theft of Marie And toinette's diamond necklace. All of the surely hopeless to attempt to predict the books are bound in calf or sheep, of that " under-done pie-crust color" in which Charles Dickens described a lawyer's libeary as dressed, and they are much used by the eminent legal gentlemen who come est prospect of our being able to do so, to Washington to practice in the Superme much as this, of what practical use would it be to know that a storm will rage on a Court. -Ben. Perley Poore in Harper's Mayazine. .

For the first time in fifteen years Washingtonians are favored with three consecutive days of good sleighing. It commenced snowing on Christmas evening and continued without abating until noon on Thursday. The weather has been, until to-day, clear and cool. Single - teams at $5, and double $8 to $10 an hour have been easily let.

So many ure the terrible accidents on our railroads recently that people are becoming aroused to the necessity of prompt Congressional legislation by appointing inspectors similar to those that examine steamboats, to examine and report upon the condition of all the railroads. To that end a bill will be introduced in Congress providing for such inspectors and defining their duties.

The recent cold weather tends to increase the number of small pox cases. Eight deaths have been reported within the past twenty-four hours. The Board of Health, however, is sanguine in its efforts to confine the disease to certain localities, and to that end, has promulgated orders so stringent in their operations that it is difficult to conceive how the contagion can apread to any very alarming extent.

The cold has been excessive, and a great quantity of snow has fallen through all the Northern States and the Canadas. New York City had 18 inches of snow from the great storm. The thermometer showed a temperature in some localities as low as 40° 42° 30°. Now York streets were banked with snow and a large force of mon have been busy carting it away. Philadelphia streets are wider and the snow is cleared away much casier, though there is plenty there.

After several days of session, the Court in which Stokes is being tried a jury was obtained, and the case occupied all last week, and so far this week, and the ond Moude mi in Lan' at ist.

PROCTOR ON PHYSICAL OBSERVATO-RIES. Mr. Richard A. Proctor, in ar article on National Observatories for the Study of the Physics of Astronomy, refefers to the communication of Colonel Strange, made to the British Association last year, urging the propriety on the part of the government of establishing observatories for the study of the aspect and changes of the aspect of the sun-moon, and planets, on the ground that the esthemselves too much to determining-the graceful licerature; a time collection of pictures position and motions, real or apparent, of he celestial bodies.

Col. Strange in urging his project cells altention to, the great uncertainty that has hitherto prevailed in regard to climatological laws, and promises that, if observatories are established especially for the purpose, there is a strong probabilityl that the systematic study of the sun wil throw useful light upon elimatological conditions. To this Mr. Proctor rejoins that while all weather changes may be traced to the sun's influence; the idea that we shall ever be able, by studying the spots, the facula, the prominences, or the chromatosphere, of the sun, to interpret the phenomena of the weather, appears demonstrably incorrect. While the sun's diurnal course accounts for he seasonal changes, we vet know that the weather of any single day is almost wholdue to the season. A season may be exceptionally cold or het in one portion of the earth, while in another precisely the opposite characteristics will prevail, although subjected to the same solar condi-

Even if the direct action of the sun were more obviously recognizable in its geneval effects. yet, inasmuch as, in the length and breadth of England-a mere speck on the earth's surface-the greatest variety of weather commonly experienced conditions which will prevail in any one country where the solar relations exhibit such and such a character, and short of this no prediction, would be of the least use to wan. Even if there is the slightcertain day, if it is as likely to occur in Russia as in the United States, or in India as in China?

Mr. Proctor also takes occasion to re buke those who have sneered at the labor bestowed by meteorologists in tabulating and reducing a regular series of observations upon the weather, and remarks that even though we may not, at present, have the means of interpreting melecrological relations we must know what these relations actually are; or, in other words, we must have those long arrays of tabulated figures-thermemetric, barometric, wind-recording, etc-if-we are to under stand the cause or causes of changes in the direction of the wind, in the provalence of cloud, in temperature, barometrio pressure, etc. Although but tittle has hitherto come of these records, com. pared with the laber bestowed upon them, and though we may be under the impression that little ever will be the 'result, vet, if ever the great mysteries of meteorology are solved, these tables will have fulfilled their purpose. To cease to make them, he thinks, is to admiss that these mysteries are inscrutable. - Editor's Scientific Record in Hatper's Magazine, for December.

TURPENTINE FOR BARK LICE. - A. O. Brinton, of Wilmington, Del., writes that he has tried sorrits of turbenting for bark lice with excellent results. Having an old paint brush that had become hard for want of proper carer he staked it in spirits of turpentine, working out the paint until the brush was soft and pliable. Then instead of throwing away the mixture; he went into the orchard and applied it to one apple and a pear tree, which were in-fested with bark lice. The trees were theroughly painted, from top to bottom, the application being made last April; and at this timed the trees are in a flourishing condition, and rollice or their shells to be found. We had supposed that ordinary paint, as well as spirits of turpentine, were injurious to trees; but they may not be when applied to the tark before the leaver appear. The experiment of killing bark lies with him a pole ordinada a trial by those who have apple ordinada infested with the great and constantly increasing pest.- Airal New Yorker.

Por restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable. healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the loss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, fallen hair-checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands acrophicd and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning grey or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make ome preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor-can-only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.
