CAPTIVITY AND DEATH OF MARY, QUEEN OF SCOTS.

For nineteen years Mary Stuart remains prisoner under guard, wearing away the weary hours with needle-work, with dogs, with turtle doves, and Barbary fowls. She could bear feverish impatience to the last by a mad gallop in fair weather after the bounds. The confinement is not severe, but the torture is insupportable. For the hope of deliverance is never quenched. Elizabeth never announces a definite purpose concerning her royal prisoner, probably never has one. For nineteen years both captive and captor are made miserable by plots and counterplots; and whether Mary in prison or Mary at large is the more dangerous to the security of Protestant England is a question so hard to decide that Elizabeth never fairly attempts to determine it.

At length a plot is uncovered more deadly than any that has preceded. Half a score of assiduous band themselves, together to attempt Elizabeth's life, and to put Catholic Mary on the vacant throne. The blessing of the pope is pronounced upon the enterprise. The Catholic powers of Europe stand ready to welcome its consummation. Mary gives it her cordial approbation. "The hour of deliverance," she writes, exulting, "is at hand. But plots breed counterplots. In all the diplomatic service of Europe there is no so ingenious spy as Washington, Elizabeth's Prime Minister. Every letter of Mary's is opened and copied by his agents before sent to its destination. The conspiracy is allowed to ripen. Then, when a fair day for consummation, the leaders are arrested, the plot is brought to the light of day. Mary, with all her faults, never knew fear, no craven heart was never. The more dangerous was he because so brave. She battles for her life with a heroism well worthy a nobler nature—battles to the last, though there be no hope. She receives the sentence of death with the calmness of true courage, not of despair. With all her treachery, never recant to her faith—never, once, when her intemperate love of Bothwell swayed her from it by a few short weeks—she clings to her crucifix, till the very hour of death. Almost her last words are words of courage to her friends. "Weep not," she says, "I have promised for you." Her very last are a psalm from her prayer-book—"In the O Lord, have I put my trust." And then she lays her head upon the block as peacefully as ever she laid it upon her pillow. No "grizzled, wrinkled old woman," but in the full bloom of ripened womanhood—forty-five no more—Mary Stuart pays on the scaffold, suffering the penalty of her treachery at Edinburgh.

The spirit of the stern old Puritans is satisfied, and the prophecy of the Good Book receives a new and pregnant illustration—"Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." LYMAN ABBOTT, in Harper's Mag. for Feb.

THE OLDEST FREEMASON.

A correspondent of the Newark Courier writes to that journal as follows:—"In looking over the death roll published in the Courier, I observed a notice of the death of Hon. Samuel Thatcher, of Bergen, Me., aged 90, and a paragraph stating that he was the oldest Free-mason in the United States. This reminds me that the venerable Peter Merkel, Esq., a Free-mason of long standing, and an honored and much respected citizen of Sussex county, is still alive, hale, hearty and vigorous, and in the full possession of nearly all his faculties. The old gentleman is 91 years of age, and if the paragraph referred to is correct, he must now be among the oldest, if not the very oldest, Free-masons in the United States. The old gentleman resides at Freedom, about three miles south of Newton. He was a member of the New Jersey House of Assembly in the years 1830 and 1831, and a member of the State Council (now Senate) in the year 1832. He was also for many years an acting Justice of the Peace, and filled many other offices of trust and responsibility in the township in which he resides."

The Treasurer's Report shows our State to be in a good condition financially, and our institutions well sustained and prosperous. I such reports as this and the statistics of Agriculture and Manufacture they could find circulation out of the State, and the prosperity of our people in the various branches of industry could be understood, thousands of those who are seeking homes in the West and N. West, no doubt would turn their faces this way, and be convinced that Jersey land is not so bad a thing after all. We have excellent opportunities for capitalists and farmers with some means. We are within a short ride of the best markets and the great business centres of the Atlantic coast. Atlantic County presents unusual attractions. Now is the time, while the property is within the reach of small capitalists, to look after it.

The N. J. State Temperance Alliance

held their second annual meeting in Taylor Hall, Trenton, on the 23d. The reports of officers showed a healthy and vigorous condition in the organization and that a great effort was being made to adopt Local Option throughout the State.

The following resolutions were adopted: We, the New Jersey Temperance Alliance, thanking God for the removal of all constitutional difficulties from the question of Local Option, do again call upon it on our banner, with increased confidence in its feasibility and importance and do now here

Resolved, To labor unceasingly, employing all legitimate means at our command until the right of the people to protection from the wrongs of the liquor traffic shall be recognized by the laws of the State and sustained and enforced by a wholesome public sentiment.

Resolved, That the Executive Committee and Board of Managers be directed to consider the propriety of printing and distributing our present laws, with an appeal to the friends of temperance urging their faithful enforcement everywhere until the better era of Local Prohibition shall have dawned.

Resolved, That temperance and church organizations in each county be earnestly recommended to take immediate and efficient steps for having a temperance lecture delivered in every school district within their respective counties.

A mass meeting was held in the evening, which was addressed by Vice-President Colfax and at which the enthusiastic exhibition indicated an earnest determination to accomplish their object.

BOOK TABLE.

The Feb. number of Harper's Magazine is unusually rich in the variety and interest of its contents. The number opens with an entertaining paper, by Albert E. Coleman, on the Diamond-Fields of South Africa, charmingly illustrated. The illustrated sketch of the life of Mary, Queen of Scots, by Lyman Abbott, is a very thrilling narrative, told with dramatic effect. "The Life of an Eastern Woman," illustrated by Edwin DeLeon, formerly American Consul in Egypt, Prof. Henry Draper gives some curious information under the title of "Druggists in Medicines." "The Great Fairs and Markets in Europe," is an interesting paper. The "Old Stager" gives an interesting account of Caleb Cushing's early career. Charles Read's story, "A Simplicity," is continued, and "O'd Kennington" also continues, by the brilliant authoress, Miss Thackeray. There are several most excellent short stories, with Poetry, among which is a poem from John G. Saxe. The Editorial Departments are full and interesting. In the Easy Chair a graceful tribute is paid to H. C. Greely. The Scientific and Historical Records are full of interesting and interesting articles, with Congressional proceedings up to Holiday recess. The Editors' Drawer has its usual fond of humor, and a continuation of "Our London Scrap Book," illustrated.

Serliner's Monthly for February, is the most readable number we have received. It has a rich fund of information, graphic descriptions of real life, and not a few articles of value and interest. Mrs. Phelps' story, "Since I died," has some very suggestive in the title, and is one who are acquainted with her work will at once perceive the opportunity of reading it. "Nash Brooks" is a full and satisfactory paper. "A Quaker's Own Recount of the Marriage Question," by an English artist, will be presented to you in some "A Court-Ball at Haverly," "Borrowing as a Social Science," "A Capitalist," and "An Arabian's Legend," are pleasant, pointed and instructive. The Tehuacanepo Soap is a valuable and interesting. The illustrated paper on "Steam," "In and out of Banquet," is full of interest and information. "How Men are used to" is an illustrated paper. "Scientific articles," Dr. Jackson's "Artificially grown" is in great demand. The poem is excellent. The "Times" are many general ideas among the best of which is "The Kingdom of the Rich," and "The Old Game" explains its usual quota of wood and iron. Nature and Science are as usual, and interesting as usual. And though not least, is a pretty little poem in department of education.

The New Jersey Agricultural Society has just issued a report giving its receipts for the year at $31,956 and its expenses at $28,595. Mr. A. Clark has been elected President for the ensuing year.
