MERCURY.

It would be difficulty to say which of the properties of mercury first strikes us as its most remarkable peculiarity. That it is only metal liquid at ordinary tempersturce, is scarcely more noticeable than its great weight. Its singular mobility, to which it owes its common Saxon name of quick silver (that is, live silver, the word being the same that is used in the Scriptural phrase. "the quick and the '), is but a consequent of the two first-mentioned properties. Its chemical power of forming two series of salts, so uplike in their reactions and in their physiological effects, is almost without a parallel. Its compounds are very sensi-tive to heat, the indide changing color like a chameleon. The sulphodycnide is used in making the curious but danger-ous toy called "Pharaoh's serpents," because of the ease with which it is decomposed by heat. The one very unfortunate property, of which we desire to peak more at length is, that it gives off diffusive vapors at all temperatures, even when frozen, which requires a cold of 40° below zero, Fabrenheit. In the old daguerrentype process, the vapors of mercury were employed in developing the picture, and M. Merget (as we mentioned on page 135, Vol. VI.) discusses its application to a method of "photography without light:" We cannot wish success. to any process where the operators shall be in the least exposed to the action of this dreadful poison. We hope rather that the use of mercury may be diminished, not increased, and other and better substitutes may in all cases be found. are told that the us of silver is not much more expensive, while the reflecting manity's sake let us use the silver. Prof. Hyrtle delivered a lecture on Merculy in Vienna recently, when he exhibited the leg bone of a man, whose death had undoubtedly been hastened by mercury. On striking the bone heavily upon the table, out fell thousands of little, glittering globules of mercury, bright, metallic mercury, which rolled about apon the black surface before him, col lecting here and there into drops. This mercury had been absorbed during life.

The mort lity among those who work in quickeilver mines, or in the works where it is produced, is known to be frightful. In the mines of Idria the men work atternately one month in the mines and one in the smelting house. Of 506 men employed there in 185, not less than 122 were salivated, and even cattle in the neighborhood of the works were similarly affected.

The use of mercury for reducing gold and silver by the amalgamation process is also dangerous, unless great ca'e-is taker. The manufacturer of barometers and the mimeters is exposed not only to the visible vapors of the heared mercurya bu: still more frequently to those which paper, $5. rise from the metal spilled on the floor and spontaneously evaporating. A Vieans professor of botany, while conducing a series of experiments on the respiration of plants, used mercury to close the bell jars and separate them from the timespheric air. The volatization of this metal in his labratory caused him a long and dangerous illness.

The latest method that has been pronosed for rendering the vapors of ther cury, ever present in the o king-glass factory, leve burtful, is chloride of line. The chlorine uniting with the mercury forms calomel, which is not absorbed through the peres of the skin as the metal is. For washing the hands and clothing it is, no doubt, useful; but whether i, will accomplish all that is hoped for it, remains to be tested by actual and, prolonged use.—Buston Jonmal of Chemistry.

color, with the and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, fallen hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophicd and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling-the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous.

Its occasional use will prevent the hairfrom turning grey or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambrie, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this ef-fectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vas and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and Other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citimens, of the classes, of the field of the fact, that Chenny Pecronal will and does relieve and ours the afflictuag disorders of the Throat and Langs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, oured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proteon beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public maxrety for full profession. By curing Cougha, the forerunners of more serious disease, it mays annumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most scoptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection sgainst the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which boset the Throat and Chest of Childhood, Chenny Pectonal is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and seved to the love and affection centryd on them. It acts specifiy and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No ene will suffer troublesome influence and pain securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Brenchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and aucoessful chemical investigation, no cost or foll is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently repossible perfection. It may be confidently re-lied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and espable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.
