Sir Samuel Baker's Expedition.

A letter from Khartoum in the Cologne Gazette, dated the 2d of January last, says that Sir Samuel Baker was, according to the last accounts, in Fatu ku, whither he had proceeded after an engagement with the natives in the kingdom of Kamvast, the result of which was that he had to retreat with a loss of thirty men. He had only 200 soldiers with him; the remaining part of the expedition, with a great quantity of baggage, is still at Gondakoro, as the Bari, who were to furnish porters for the expedition, have all left the country. A Bold Exploit.

The following is from the diary of the late Mr. Adolphus, the barrister and historian: "May 8th, 1840. We had a dinner party, among them Mr. Mathews and Curran, who told an amusing story of an agent-to-a nobleman in Ireland. It was known to some rufflans in the neighborhood that he had collected a large sum for rents due to his employer.
In the middle of the night he heard thieves breaking into his house. He jumped out of bed, and arming himself with a carving-knife, stood behind the door, and closed it, so that only one could enter at a time, which one would be shown in the moonlight while he re-mained in the shade. Four of the thieves entered, and were dispatched one after another, those without not knowing what happened. The fifth saw a gleam of the blade in the moon-light, seized the man and a tremendous scuffle ensued. The agent struck several blows with his weapon, but made no impression. He was got down, and his antagonist over him, when, feeling the there were on the floor the corpses of

Dear Madam:

In the selection of a Sewing Machine, it is important, first, to consider the uses to which it be will put. If heavy work oxivis to be done, a slow and ponderous machine may, perhaps, DEST answerthe purpose; but if it is designed for general family service, the strength and ELASTICITY of the SEWING should conform to. the flexible character of the materials which usually predominate; while the RACHINE itself should be simple in its construction—rapid, quist, and easy of movement and not liable to disorder. IN all these respects, the WILCUX & GIELS Silent, Family of thine stands for in advance of all others. The superiority of this machine for all light sawing is obvious; and its polutarity is rapidly extending the WIR over. A th rough examination of it, is respectfully solicited:
