HAMMONTON, N. J., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1873

$2.00 PER YEAR

TO MISS MARY LOUISE IH., ON HER MARRIAGE DAY.

My daughter, deur, since now we part, Some few, brief words I'll give to thee, In kindly utterance from a heart That loves thee in sincerity, And loved thee long before the ene Who from us thy affections won.

I trust thy Future may be bright, E'en brighter than the happy Past,-That Love may never take his flight, But, lingering with thee to the last, Make thy new home his resting-place, Endeared by ev'ry household grace.

May this, thy union, be of souls No grief nor strife shall e'er estrange, But, strength ning as each season-rolls,-Know not, like them, of wane or change, And prove his love like tested gold, Whose ring thy finger doth enfold.

I will not wish thee heaps of wealth, Since these take wings and will not stay, But modest-competence, and health, And Hope's sweet sunshine by the way, These failing, one true heart to share With thine what ills thou'rt called to bear.

But, now, farewell-may all thy years Be, as the present, full of bliss-And Time, which has for some but team Bring thee no sorrow in its kiss, But find, in age, thy placid brow As free from grief or care as now.

Again, farewell-and though thou'rt fled With the fond mate thou lovest best, We will not deem thee lost, nor dead,

But as our future, frequent guest-Feeling that now, when all is done, In losing thee, we find a son. Hammonton, July 21, 1873.

Our Washington Letter:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 31, 1873.

Temporary depletion of the force in the several Government departments—The Weather—Ben Butler as he is known in Washington, salary grab District of washington, salary grave District of Columbia politics, the colored element—Important decision of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue—Ex-Senator Pomeroy in Washington—The celebrated Beau Hickman—Veterinary schools, etc.

Only two more weeks will clapse be fore Washington will be the recipient of many pleasure seekers, now at the summer resorts of the North. September frosts of the North never fails to largely increase our arrivals. During the past two months the clerical force of the several Government departments has been reduced fully to one-half. Very few, however, of the married clerks have afforded to spend their thirty days for lough away from Washington, their salaries, ranging from $1,200 to $1,800 per an num, not being sufficient to defray the attending extra expense.

With one exception, it has rained every day here during the past two weeks, and farmers around have been unable to harvest crops, and market-gardening has been greatly damaged.

Usually at this season of the year vegetables in our markets are very cheap; but owing to the recent severe storms they are now much higher. The chances of Butler becoming Governor of Massachusetts, are variously commented upon here. That Ben Butler has many most vituperate enemies both in and out of his party, there is but little doubt; that he is both feared and admired by a great number, there is just as little. Were he less offensive in his remarks when opposing bills and measures before Congress, he would well merit the honor of being leader of the House. Apparently, it matters but little to him with what strength a measure, which he is opposed to, is backed, he puts on his lawyer garb, regardless whom he offends, his side of the question is his client and to vindicate it, is his only aim. His quarrel with Farnsworth in the House two years ago, was all owing to his disregard of the foolings of the latter. He is a terror to the lobbyists, and if they could have their say they would make him Governor of Massachusetts and compel him to remain there; for when old cockeved Bon., as they call him. gets his head bent against the passage of a bill, there is but little use in pressing it.

It was thought at the time that the salary grab was being discussed in the House, that no other member, except Butler, would have the courage to enginoer it through, although, it is welt under-couraged Butler in the matter, and only faltered when the entire Southern delegation and the retiring Northern members were committed to its support, making it a reasonably sure thing of its passage.

The politics of the District of Columbia are becoming interesting. It will be remembered by your readers, that the District has become strongly Republican. Out of 21 logislative districts only three or four elected to the Legislature, are Democrats. Nominations for the legislature are now being made. Heretofore, the Central Republican Committee bas, in the main, controlled the Republican nominations and is attempting to do so now, but its efforts are met with strong opposition. It is thought that in several districts there will be two Republican nominees in the field. The colored element is very strong here and are, consequently, very potent in the body politic. They are very jealous of their rights. The mixed school question has, for two or three years past, greatly occupied the attention of the District, the colored people generally favoring mixed schools, while the majority of the whites opposing it. The issue in this election will, doubtless, be on this question.

It will be interesting to some of your readers, that portion at least wno are authorized to deal out intoxicating drinks to his fellow man, to know that the decision of Mr. Douglas, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, authorizes the collectors of internal revenue to issue special stamp tax to sell liquors, tobacco and cigars at a public stand at county fairs or public shows in their respective districts; or where a person has already provided a license, to close sale at his usual place of business and register a transfer to any place where he proposes to do busines temporarily.

Ex-Senator Fomeroy, of Kansas, ha just arrived from Massachusetts, where he has been visiting with Mrs. P., her relation. The Senator has an elegant residence here, well furnished in good taste, which he keeps open the year round. His few friends here intimate that he will make a vigorous fight for the Senatorship from his State, and that he has already begun to lay pipe for the contest.

Whether his abandonment of his lawsuit against State Senator York, is to quiet the troubled sea with the hope of increasing his chances of becoming U. S. S. once again, is a question quite per tineat to ask.

Beau Hickman, a gentlemanly beggar, who made himself known to all strangers visiting Washington during the past twenty-five years, has been stricken by paralysis and is now cared for by the Sisters of Charity. He is now unable to speak, and it is thought never will again. Beau was born in Virginia of rich parents and received a liberal education. But when his parents died, and coming into possession of a large amount of property, he came to Washington, where in a very short time, he squandered it all away. He being a good talker and of good ad dress, was at once enabled to do a thriving business in a systematic way, by loafing around the hotels and getting into conversation with well dressed men, and before parting with them, in a gentlemanly way ask them for a dollar. Before and during the war, it is said, he was exceedingly successful, but latterly his health failing, he has not driven his profession with the same energy. At one time he boasts of being acquainted with every public man, including Congressmen, in

In this respect we are far behind the countries of Europe, which has twenty-five voterinary colleges, from which the Bureau has information. In this country we have only one or two at the most regular colleges of this kind, and a "horse the scientific man who inquires into the lingers.

causes of the potato rot, or the blighting of a wheat crop, as of the one who studies the diseases of domestic animals upon whom depends so large a portion of our wealth and comfort. Besides this the study of the best means for preserving the health of animals often develops facts and principles of no slight value in reference to the health of the human system. The only preventive against another disaster lies in the establishment of veterinary schools in connection with existing institutions, and let men be educated at the expense of the State, as in Europe."

The Navy Yard here presents quite a lively appearance. Several vessels are now undergoing repairs, and as soon as that work is finished the Sceretary of the Navy has promised it a large war steamer

> NEW YORK, Sept. 5, 1873. THE GERMAN EMIGRATION.

The rapid increase of the emigration from Germany continues to excite uncasiness in the dominions of the Kaiser. The Hansa, a paper published in Hamburg, calls attention to the exodus from North Friesland, and makes inquiry concerning the cause, arriving at the conclusion that the people are frightened away by the conscription for the war navy. The North Sea coast has been levied upon pretty largely by the German government, which has built a fleet, and requires good sailors to man it, but the service is not enticing, and the Empire is losing its subjects. By sea and land, therefore, Germany is beginning to show signs of weakness. Its rural population is emigrating in vast numbers, because the array demands the services of the men, and because the great landlords refuse to sell lands for homesteads; and now there is a flight of the scalaring youth, who prefer to choose their mode of life without the interven' tion of the paternal government. On the whole, the new Empire is neither stable nor grand. It has aroused bitter enmity among the nations, and it has failed to win the affections of its own people-two elements of danger which might disturb the serenity of Prince Bismarck himself, and with Bismarck the old Emperor has

THE UNKNOWN DEAD. Fifty budies of mon, women and children-have-been-"found-drowned" in the waters of our city in the past five months. Out of this large number only twelve were recognized. The rest were buried as paupers, and registered as unknown. But who were the missingthirty-eight? Some no doubt were suicides, maddened by their fruitless struggle for life in the thronged streets of a great city. These, however, could not comprise the whole number of those who died and left no sign. More likely a large number were like the "missing" in battle. None knew their fate at the time, and they are not given up for dead until years have removed all possibility of doubt. In city haunts and country homes their return is expected from da, to day, tidings are sought, but not gained, and many to morrows roll slowly around, and they never come. No one can lift the curtain of death's mystery, and tell how they perished; but it is certain that many were a urdered. Empty pockets tell their own story. It is but a moment's work, and then dead men tell no tales. Fifty in five months-one hundred and twenty in a year-and more than three-fourths of the dead reported un-

OLD TRINITY'S CLOCK.

Still silent, but being put in order, is the news from the spire and clock room of old Trinity. The works of the clock are all in perfect order, and the remaining work to be done is the gliding of the hands and numbers for the dials. The bad weather of last week delayed this part of the work, but shortly we shall have the time marked by the newly burnished hands, and the chimes of old Trinity will mark the hours with a sound as welcome as ever, and perhaps fresher, from the how many have benefitted by the terms

AN INNOVATION THAT NEVER BE-CAME POPULAR.

Alderman Richardson, who owns the Atlantic street and Fifth avenue railroad. Brooklyn, to prevent the conductors from making more than their regular salary. purchased about $800 worth of patent punchers. When a passenger paid his fare, the conductor closed this punch over a card, and the piece slipped out, fell inside the punch, and a spring rang a little bell. Each of these little detectors was worth $25. Early the other morning thieves entered the car stables of the Alderman, at East New York, and stole the small safe containing all the stamps, and all the money which the conductors had returned on their last trip. The Alderman had discharged nine conductors list week, and he is of opinion that the robbery was committed by some of these men.

The Coroner's Jury in the case of the Broderick-murder reached a singular decision. The only witnesses were the surviving members of the family, and they, as was natural, testified with great gentleness as to the crime of the husband and lather. Their statements appeared to be taken as conclusive by the Coroner. and the verdict was that the homicide was committed in self-defense.

Those who seldom visit this city, must necessarily-torego-much-of-interest-whicha permanent habitation would afford. An instance of this kind can be cited, by referring to the delightful gratuitous operatic performance which can daily be heard at Horace Water's piano warerooms, 481 Broadway, which has become the head quarters of our musical celebrities.

Some of the animals have returned from their summer tour to Central Park. Among these are two zebras and that ourious little bovine creature the gnu. -THAT PLAGUED-PUPPY. - A good story is told of a mechodist minister, while attending a protracted meeting. It appears the minister's wife was rickly, and on his way to the church he called on one of his neighbors, who was making sausages; the good lady of the house rolled up a few links in a paper and presented them to the minister to take home. He placed them in his coat tail pocket and west to church. While standing on the steps of the church conversing, a little dog scented the sausages, and kept jumping up catching the dominies pooket, jerking it protty lively, and he cuffed the puppy away several times; but going in and entering the pulpit, he took up his Bible to commence the services. One of the deacors, wishing to speak to him, walked part way up the pulpit stairs, caught the aforesaid coat tail, giving it a jerk to make him turn round; but instead of doing so, the minister gave a tremendous kick backward, taking the old deacon in the face, and tumbling him down stairs. and without looking around, thus excused himself to his laughing audience: "You must excuse me, my dear hearers, but I have a few sausages in my pocket, and that plagued puppy has been trying to steal them ever since I have been here."

Within less than three years, the Burlington and Missouri River, Railroad has sold along its line, the almost incredible number of 498,988 acres of land. to no less than 4,525 purchasers who bought on a credit of ten years at six per cent. interest. Nothing could more emphatically express the appreciation of our farmers for good land, for a more magnificent region than that which borders the line of the Burlington and Missouri River Railroad cannot be found in this country. There are now fully six millions of foreign born citizens in the United States-men who have crossed the ocean to enjoy our advantages. The dog was stolen from a ship carpenter's chest. I know where his shop is. We entered the house at the basement. The housekeeper's son went in and left the latch up so we could get in without trouble. After we got into the cellar I heard the bell ring nine. It seemed to me we were here in the dark an hour or an hour and a half. It seemed a long time, perhaps it was not so late, when a man came down and a late, when a late so late, when a man came down and said, "I've finished the old man." We

POPULAR FALLACY AND DECEPTIONS .-It is an infirmity of a man to cling to the teachings of a past generation, and to stubbornly resist the light of reform and progress. Health-reform and Teme-growth are jealously watched over by the Poison Bitters compounders.
