DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF HAMMONTON AND MAKING MONEY.

VOL II.--NO. 37.

Our Washington Letter:

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 21, 1873.

The closing of the doors of the banks of Jay Cooke & Co. and the First National Bank, in this city, on Thursday last, is the severest blow ever experienced in financial circles here. No sooner had the news spread through the city than these banks had suspended than a general panic begun. Fortunately, however, that it did not happen in the morning, for had they have had a whole day before them, under the excitement, not a single bank in the city would have escaped a run. As it was the wealthiest banks, it was noticed, even afforded their paying-tellers all the work they could do between the hours of 2 and 3 P. M. Before the next day the newspapers had educated the people up to the knowledge of the fact that the banks suspended had but little, if any connection with the others; and the result is that there has been no run on any of the banks except the Freedman's Bank and the Washington City Savings Bank. This is the second time the latter bank has had a run on it, and many of its depositors now fear that it may not be able to stand the second run. The majority of the larger depositors have faith in its solvency, and are doing everything in their power toward sustaining it. There is a general complaint against the bank on account of its not making an effort to transact business more rapidly, and the suspicion is aroused that it is for the want of funds the depositors are settled with so slowly. Another suspicious feature in its transactions is, that a depositor's check is refused unless presented by himself at the counter. This refusal is creating a great deal of complaint, and it is thought that but very few of those who are now withdrawing their deposits will ever return them.

The Continental Hotel Company, of Washington, which proposes to build a hotel that will cost $700,000, will meet on Monday evening for the purpose of obtaining the balance (one-third) of the capital stock. This hotel will be, when finished, the largest hotel in the city. The property owners of East Washington are subscribing liberally to the stock.

We are reliably informed that a paper asking the resignation of U. S. Senator Carpenter is being circulated among the members of the Wisconsin Legislature for their signature. It is to be regretted that such a course is taken. Senator Carpenter is considered one of the most brilliant men of the Senate. Next to Conkling he is the finest orator, and his place, should he resign, which is not expected, cannot be filled.

Nothing Secretary Richardson could have done would have created such kindly feeling towards him by the people than the announcement that he would order the purchase of ten millions worth of Government bonds. The anticipation of its effect in New York was a manifest relief here to everybody. Of ten daily and weekly papers published in this city, but two disapprove the purchase.

Several Republican campaign speakers of Virginia arrived here last night fresh from the field of contest. They represent that there is a manifest change in public feeling in favor of the Republicans, and it is estimated that the State will be carried by them by at least ten thousand majority.

Charles Bradlaugh, who has just arrived in this country to fill the role of public lecturer, represents the extreme section of English revolutionists in politics and religion. Though but forty years of age, he has already conquered a strong position in the public notice of the European world. Though educated carefully in the ecclesiastical and political traditions of the English government, he has repudiated them all, and now assails the institutions of his native land with an audacity and vigor which attracts special attention from the powers that be. He had the honor of a prosecution by the administration of the Jew D'Israeli, but he finally triumphed in litigation. He hopes yet to see realized his darling ideal of an English republic. In this all true Americans sympathize with him.

Among the eventualities of the proposed reaction in France in favor of monarchy, a general war in Europe is looming up. The Count de Chambord has committed himself very unequivocally to the ultramontane schemes for the restoration of the Pope to his temporal powers, and which involves, necessarily, a war with Italy. This has caused the peninsular government to draw nearer to Germany. Victor Emanuel has received warm invitations to extend his visit to the Vienna Exposition from his trip to Berlin. But this threatening demonstration has already weakened the hands of the Legitimists, and they find the Orleanist element rising. Without the concurrence of the Bonapartists, the monarchical party will fail of a majority in the Assembly. Hence their hopes of a reaction are not so brilliant as some time ago. LIFE.

New York Correspondence.

The Panic Subsiding on the Surface Only—Why the Government Should Remain Neutral in Wall Street Fluctuations—Fashionable Notes—Something about Gloves—Jottings and Local Events.

From our Special Correspondent.

New York, Sept. 25, 1873.

A TEMPORARY LULL OF THE SPECULATIVE STORM.

The change in the aspect of Wall street from the turmoil and painful agitation of last week is strikingly noticeable. The closing of the Stock Exchange, the Government declaration to buy an unlimited offer of five twenties, the action of the banks in resolving to issue loan certificates, and the intervention of the Sabbath, all contributed to calm the troubled waters and induce a better and clearer view of the situation. Friday and Saturday will long be remembered for the fierce and unprecedented excitement of the street. It was uncommon, and at times fearful enough to make men tremble for the prospect ahead. A deep pall of impenetrable clouds hung over the monetary skies, and no where seemed to appear a solitary ray of light to illumine the course of the future. On Monday things changed somewhat. There were no hurrying crowds, no pale and anxious groups, no heavy fringe of vacant-eyed spectators on the sidewalks. In fact had not the Stock Exchange been closed, there was little to indicate that the street had so recently passed through a terrific financial hurricane.

REASONS FOR THE GOVERNMENT REMAINING NEUTRAL DURING THE CRISIS.

The idea that there is a duty imposed upon the President, or on the Government, as it is generally put, to protect the public against the consequences of even such an extraordinary event as the panic, is not an idea consistent with the principles of our Government. The people claim the right of doing their business as they deem best, and leave to the Government the two simple duties of enforcing contracts and keeping the peace. With this notion of the right on the people must go the corresponding notion of its duty. We choose to have our own way about business; we must therefore take care of ourselves. Our Government is not an individual body, with a separate and independent duty. Its duty is made for it by the law. The law is made—clumsily, perhaps, but still made indirectly—by the people. We have no reasonable claim on the Government, therefore, to step out of the limits assigned by law to save us from disaster of any kind. Much less have we any such right when the Government is confined, as it is during the recess of Congress, to the Executive branch, which has not even the limited power of original action which is allowed to the representative branch.

FASHIONABLE NOTES.

Making a bonnet is not what it used to be, a siren calling of lace, velvet, and feathers together by stretches of marvellous length, that held the airy fabric together by the eyelids. Since plings and folds are given up, very nice work is needed to give the edges a finish.

Three-button gloves are strictly fashionable for the street, with four buttons for evening. Whether plain or embroidered gloves are used is a matter of fancy; both are equally fashionable. Those with the welt or embroider, at the wrist take the look of length from a slim hand, while long, plain wrists are more elegant for a full one.

JOTTINGS.

The Seythe, the Granger's new paper recently started here, has some terrible hits in its second number on the Panic, and its causes. The Seythe takes the ground that there will be the greatest crash ever known before January, and shows why it is inevitable. The paper is a great success.

One of the most beautiful and perfect things to be seen in the musical line, is at the Piano establishment of Horace Waters & Son, of 451 Broadway. It is styled the new Concerto Parlor Organ, and the specialty of this instrument is in its concerto stop, which is produced by an extra set of reeds, so toned as to resemble the human voice in a very striking manner.

TARTAR.

The banking house of Henry Olives & Co. of New York, suspended on Tuesday, and on Wednesday the house of Hawes & Macy had to suspend.

CHAPTER CCCLV.

An act to set off part of the township of Mullica, in the county of Atlantic, and to annex the same to the town of Hammonton, in the county aforesaid.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That all that part of the township of Mullica, in the county of Atlantic, lying and being within the following boundaries, to wit: beginning at a point in the mid-channel of the West's mill or Bats's Forge stream, intersected by the southerly line of the town of Hammonton; thence (first) in mid-channel of said stream by the several courses and distances thereof, down the same, to a point at the mouth of Pan'her branch, and in the middle of said stream; thence (second) up the said Panther branch by the several courses thereof to the middle of the westerly county bridge in Nasco road, over the said Panther branch; thence (third) south thirty-six degrees and thirty minutes west to mid-channel of Clark's Branch or Pleasant Mills stream; thence (fourth) in mid-channel of the same, and up the same, by the course aforesaid, to the point of intersection therein of the aforesaid Hammonton town line; thence (five) along the aforesaid Hammonton town line to the place of beginning, and the same is hereby set off from the township of Mullica, and annexed to and become a part of the town of Hammonton; and the inhabitants, with their taxable estates within the district above described and annexed, shall be entitled to all the rights, powers, and privileges, and subject to the same government, regulation and liabilities as the other inhabitants of the said town of Hammonton are or may be entitled or subject to by the laws of the state.

2. And be it enacted, That the town council of Hammonton and the township committee of Mullica shall select a member of each of their respective bodies, who two persons so selected shall designate some resident freeholder of the district annexed, to be associated with them as commissioners, whose duty it shall be to meet at such times and places as a majority may determine upon, and then and there to allot and divide between the said townships such property, if there be any, which now belongs to the said township of Mullica, and to determine by a calculation based upon the relative proportion of the taxable value of the property within that portion of the township of Mullica, to be annexed to Hammonton, and the assessed value of the entire taxable property of the said township of Mullica, the amount of indebtedness of the township of Mullica, to be paid by the said township of Mullica, and the proportion to be assigned to the township of Hammonton, for the territory to be annexed as aforesaid; which proportion of indebtedness shall be assessed on and collected by the town of Hammonton from the territory so annexed; and said commissioners are to make their report in writing, to be signed by a majority of their members, and file the same with the town clerk of Hammonton at least ten days before the next annual town meeting of the town of Hammonton.

3. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved March 26, 1873.

CHAPTER DCLIV.

A Further Supplement to the act entitled "An act to appoint commissioners to erect an addition and make repairs to the State House," approved March thirty-first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-one.

1. Be it enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey, That there be appropriated out of any funds in the treasury not otherwise appropriated the sum of three thousand dollars, to be expended by the commissioners named in the act for the improvement and addition to the front of the state house, making such repairs to the present roof on the state house as may be deemed necessary to prevent its leaking.

2. And be it enacted, That there be appropriated the further sum of forty thousand dollars for completing the unfinished repairs and improvements now in progress, and for paying the debts already incurred on account of building, and furniture, and for fitting up the library for the accommodation of the increased number of books agreeably to a plan adopted by the commissioners of the library.

3. And be it enacted, That the comptroller shall, from time to time, draw his warrants upon the treasurer in favor of said commissioners, for such sum or sums as shall be necessary for the purposes aforesaid; and the said commissioners shall account to the said comptroller for the expenditure as aforesaid, as required in the act to which this is a further supplement.

4. And be it enacted, That this act shall take effect immediately.

Approved April 4, 1873.

Autumn. The brown fields forget their bloom, Lost in a solemn train; Golden leaves go to the loom, Turn by their wisps, perchance.

An American Tichborne. A case in which some of the most prominent men in Pennsylvania are interested—The Tichborne case.

Some forty years ago there died in a hospital in Philadelphia a man named William Tichborne.

In 1822 the divorced wife, being in debt to her husband and believing that her son, if living, for she had not heard of him for years—was the real owner of the coal lands in Luzerne county which her late husband had neglected.

Wheeler examined the paper, and searched the record. The result convinced him that young Tichborne had, through his father, a perfect title to the property.

One day, in the fall of 1871, James Turnbull's mother received a letter from the mother of the late Tichborne.

An Amusing Experiment. The gas of our cities can be lighted by frictional electricity, excited by a dry frictional fur.

He was a forty-miner, and made several fortunes, which in turn he lost in the gaming table.

Recovering from these, he again became a wanderer. He spent some time at the silver mines of Peru, getting possession of a piece of land said to contain silver deposits.

When the agent arrived from America, Turnbull had changed his mind as to returning home, and would soon have been on his way to the diamond fields of South America.

Some of the most prominent men in Pennsylvania are interested in the case, and it will be prosecuted to the fullest extent.

In Shasta County, California, some years ago, the scurvy suddenly came to the attention of a man named Ah Gim.

Wheeler examined the paper, and searched the record. The result convinced him that young Tichborne had, through his father, a perfect title to the property.
