Town Council holds an adjourned meeting next Tuesday evening, at which time they will decide on the annual financial budget.

A meeting to complete the organization of the Society for Civic Betterment, adopt the constitution and elect officers, will be held on Monday evening, January 16, 1922, in the Civic Club Hall, at eight o'clock.

H. O. Packard, President of the Poultry Raisers' Association of Hammonton, was elected president of the New Jersey State Poultry Association at its annual meeting held in Trenton, in recognition of his ability and services rendered to the poultry industry of South Jersey.

Mrs. Mary Curtis Belcher, who has lived in Hammonton for thirty-one years, passed away on Monday morning, Jan. 2nd, and the funeral services were held from her late residence on South Third Street, Thursday afternoon, conducted by her pastor, Rev. Charles O. Mudge.

Some of the facts of her life may be interesting, as she was one of the older residents of Hammonton. Mrs. Belcher was born in Mercer, Me., June 7, 1843, and was in her seventy-ninth year. She was married September 7, 1864, at Worcester, Mass., to Alton F. Belcher, who died about two years ago. They moved to Philadelphia, where Mrs. Belcher became a member of the Cohocksink Presbyterian Church, uniting by profession of faith. In 1891 she moved to Hammonton, where she lived until her death, and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church. The later years of Mrs. Belcher's life were given to her home where she was a most devoted mother. The health of her husband during the later years of his life, as well as her own health, prevented her from taking any active part outside her own home.

She was admired for her beauty of character, the consistency of her Christian life, and her devotion to her home. It is not always those who are known by the largest circle of friends whose lives are of the most value. Her sphere of service and duty seemed to be to those who were nearest and dearest to her.

The Parent-Teacher Association has designated Tuesday, January 17th, as "Father's Night," at which time a moving picture demonstration will be given, and a screen, recently purchased by them, will be formally presented to the Board of Education. A cordial welcome is extended to all members and their friends. The entertainment will be given in the assembly room of the high school, at eight o'clock.

Levi B. Joslyn, formerly one of Hammonton's esteemed grocery employes, also a singer and church worker of value, died suddenly on the street, Wednesday evening, on the way home from work, in Atlantic City. He was employed there at Studler's market. Services will be held at his late residence, 42 S. Bartram Avenue, Atlantic City, on Monday next, at 10:00 a. m., interment at Greenmount Cemetery, Hammonton, at 12:30 noon. The widow, also esteemed here, has the sympathy of all who knew them. Rev. G. H. Keller, of the First M. E. Church, will take charge here.

Stephen Milsted, Sr., died at the residence of his son, Stephen Milsted, Jr., on Jan. 6th, in his 88th year. His son and two daughters, Mrs. Finn, of Phila., and Mrs. Keyser, were with him when he died. Mr. Milsted was born at St. Leonards-on-sea, Sussex, England. He came to this country at the age of seventeen. When quite a young man he entered the service of the American Meter Co., and was with that firm 52 years when he retired in 1912. He delighted to tell his friends that he cast his first vote for Abraham Lincoln, the first time he was elected president. Services were conducted by Rev. Morris, of "The Prince of Peace," from the Oliver H. Bair Building, 1820 Chestnut Street. Interment at American Mechanics Cemetery.

Town Council.

The first regular meeting of Council was held on Wednesday evening, with all present but Mr. Jackson.

Finance Committee reported on several bonds having been presented.

Chief of Police reported several cases, showing an active month. One was the drunken auto driver who was sentenced to a stay in jail by the Justice.

Overseer of Poor, Mrs. Mabelle Cunningham, read her report, which is published in another column.

The Shade Tree Commission gave their first annual report, showing a large amount of work done, and a co-operative spirit on the part of property owners. They stated that trees had been ordered, which can be purchased by those who want them, at cost.

The Board of Health asked for the appointment of a member in place of one not attending. Action deferred.

Petition received for graveling 150 yards on Thirteenth, beyond Second Road. Referred.

Street lights were asked for at Broadway and Hammonton Ave.

Also, lights were asked for on Fifteenth Street, from the Reading road out. Referred.

American Legion asked for a re-lease of the Park; also that the appropriation for Memorial Day be increased, as they propose to celebrate it on a larger and more appropriate scale.

Letters of acceptance and thanks were received from Solicitor Corio and Engineer Remington, on their re-appointment.

Several matters were referred to the new Council, by the retiring body, including petitions for lights, walks, water, damages for poultry killed, guard rail needed at Park Ave., etc.

Bills were received for auditing the Town books. Referred.

Adjourned, to meet next Tuesday evening, to prepare the annual budget.

Synthetic Chemistry, After Learning the Secret of Making Royal Purple, Succeeds in Producing All the Colors of the Rainbow

(Told in Eight Sketches) By JOHN RAYMOND

No. V COLOR

In the dim ages of history when man first felt the desire for luxury, traders searched the world for dyestuffs, precious stones, pearls and precious metals. The risk of the enterprise was colossal. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search.

Synthetic chemistry learned the secret of making Royal Purple, a dye of the most brilliant color. It is a triumph of modern science. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search.

These colors all come from coal tar, which is a by-product of the gas-making process. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search. The only way to succeed was to have a large fortune at hand to venture the far continuance of the search.

Honolulu—Mother Eve must have had a fearful fall time if Eden resembled her home in the South Seas, according to Mrs. W. W. Her only neighbor was Edward Benner, who helped them with their work.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1922

The time is not very far distant when we shall have to make permanent roads in town, a square or two per year. We are living in an age of concrete, and to spend good money each year for temporary (and unsatisfactory) coatings of gravel, is certainly not a profitable investment.

All this section of the country was in the clutches of a small sized blizzard, early this week. Hammonton was not hit as badly as Philadelphia and other points, altho' we had cold, rain, snow, hail and winds. Houses leaked where they never leaked before. But it helped business,—rubbers, heavy clothing, the coal man, and the plumbers.

Town Council has a problem on its hands just now, of keeping down the new budget, and at the same time, satisfy those who have petitioned for new roads, street lights, water, claims for chickens killed by dogs, etc.

Another improvement, long delayed, and now asked for by the County Engineer, is the repair and safeguarding of the path approaching the Park near the pond or stream on the left. In fact, the path from Maple Street down is one series of sand, hills and hollows, dangerous at night and far from satisfactory by day. It would not cost a cent to repair and level the path; and the many thousands that go to the Park each summer would be glad to pay their share in the form of taxes for this improvement.

A Word of Explanation.

Like all publishing houses, and probably any other enterprise, the Republican office has hundreds of accounts on its books, totalling a full thousand dollars, that have run from one to a dozen years. This is certainly not a profitable feature of the business. We have spent many dollars in stamps in mailing out bills, and with little result. In many cases, the failure to realize returns was due to lack of ready money on the part of those owing us.

Recently, we were persuaded by a collection agency to allow them to take this work off of our hands. They pledged themselves not to force anyone, that they would simply remind the patrons of their indebtedness, with no hint of legal procedure. Since, we have found that they used a very embarrassing circular letter, such as we would never have consented to use; and this naturally displeased those receiving them. In some cases, the claim is made, that no previous bill had been received, and felt insulted at this abrupt treatment. At any rate, we are sure that bills were rendered before; and if they never arrived, that is up to Uncle Sam. But we take this opportunity to say that we regret having placed these accounts for collection, preferring rather to lose the money, even if we are very much in need of funds with which to pay bills and office help.

We are glad to record several who looked at it a matter sensibly, and not only settled up, but paid in advance.

FIGHT COLDS AND GRIP

The earliest victims are among those who are weak and run down and whose resisting power is low.

The pure food elements in FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE build energy to resist Cold and Grip germs.

The gentle laxative effect of Father John's Medicine helps to drive out impurities.

You are safe when you take Father John's Medicine because it is free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form.

Attended His Mind.

"I say," roared the little citizen, as he bounced into the office of the village weekly, "where's the editor?"

"Want a drink, sir, perdonably?" queried the office-boy.

"Of course I do," answered the little man, "but I don't want to pay for it."

"Inch of his life," sneered the boy, "just take a seat, please. There are three others ahead of you. If you watch you'll see 'em chuck through the window one by one. When the third comes down, you can go up."

But the visitor decided to postpone his trip.

MOTHERS' CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "gentle" taste of California Fig Syrup. If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, fidgety, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation points, soothe the bowels, and wash out the bowels, and have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottles. Mother, you must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup. -Advertisement.

He got back into the motor car; the man who drove them quickly to the street, the motor car's engine and steadily to Peter, attempting to interest him in the affairs of some water company in San Francisco. When they got to the valley a city train was arriving, and Peter saw people looking at him furtively and sorrowfully. He remembered the gaze, many times; he had waited for him at the train; he glanced toward the big machine under which she always saw the car. She was usually deep to a book as he crossed from the train; but she would fling it into the back seat and smile at him as he stepped out. The dog would bound into the tonneau, and he would stand with a great plume toward the mountains—toward the cool garden high up on the ridge.

Cherry looked small and pathetic in her fresh black, and her face was marked by secret discontent. Keeping her head down and her eyes cast to the ground, she was ready enough for her self-control; she was always composed, always quietly helpful and calm when they were together. She was always busy. From early morning, when she stepped into the sick-room, to stand looking at the unconscious Martin with a troubled, impatient expression that the nurses came to know well, until night, she moved restlessly about the quiet, faded house. She supervised the Chinese boy, saw that the nurses had their rooms for rest and recreation, supervised and arranged the rooming-house children sweetly and patiently, filled the sick-room, and every day at least one long talk with the doctor. Every afternoon she sat by the bedside; she and Peter were rarely alone.

Martin was utterly unconscious of the life that flowed on about him; he seemed to need to recognize Cherry, and would stare with painful intensity into her face, but after a few moments his gaze would wander to the strange nurse, and the room that he had never known, and with a painful sigh he would close his eyes and rest. He might not be able to see, but he could feel the strange nurse's hands, and he would feel the strange nurse's hands, and he would feel the strange nurse's hands.

"O, Martin I Miss Only for You!" she said.

When he was propped in bed for his Thanksgiving dinner, and when pain would face turned with an apprehensive smile to the decorations and the gifts that made the room cheerful.

The heavy cloud lightened slowly but steadily; Martin had a long talk, quietly, with a doctor, Monday afternoon. It was inevitable, she knew that now; but it was not to be left until then.

"My dear—my dear!" Peter said to her one day, when spent and shaken she came stumbling from Martin's bedside and stood with a deadly looking from the window into the smoky October forest. His person shrank from her, his eyes were staring, his hands were clenched.

"I should have said 'no,'" she whispered, and very quickly, and very gently, she said, "I have been a fool—if I have been a selfish, wicked girl all my life, I am punished!"

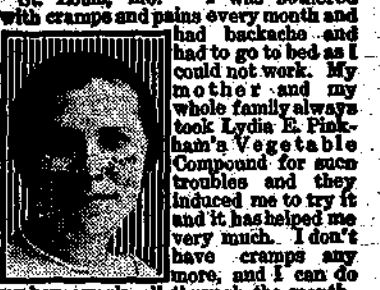

"Cherry!" he protested, heartless to see her so.

"Was it wrong for me to love each other, Peter?" she asked in a low tone.

"I suppose so," she said. "I suppose so," she said. "I suppose so," she said.

John H. Patterson, 77 years old, head of the great National Cash Register plant, said at his birthday celebration, a few weeks ago: "Keep young by associating with young things. The newspapers ate the youngsters—both every day—or at least once a week."

Save It With Flowers

If a friend has a birthday, remember it with flowers. If a friend is sick—brighten the sick room with flowers. If you have a "hearty" girl—tell her with flowers. If your wedding—express your happiness with flowers. Your last expression of respect for a departed friend—flowers for the funeral.
