To Miss Annie Rich.

On her fifteenth birthday, Jan. 21st, 1882.

BY L. E. L.

Fifteen years, all bright and joyous,
Have borne thee on thy sunny way;
Time, so fleet, with changes various,
Around thy path in sunbeams play.

Sweet and varied are the pleasures
Attendant on thy youthful way;
Bright and fair thy young heart's treasures,
Made dear by friendship's magic ray.

As the lark, in Spring's fair morning,
Sings sweetly on the wing, so gay,
So may music—songs of gladness
Attune thy voice from day to day.

Thus thy happy birthday finds thee;
And as thy years glide on their way,
May they each a garland weave thee,
Of roses ever fresh and gay.

So may all thy life, dear Annie,
Be like the fragrant flowers of May;
But thou'lt ever fondly cherish
The memory of this glad birthday.

FROM BRECKENRIDGE, COLORADO, TO HAMMONTON, NEW JERSEY.

LETTER NO. III.

To the Editor of the South Jersey Republican:

Over Kenosha Pass we descended where the passage is by the side of abysses which cause the traveler to shudder in spite of himself, as he finds himself hanging over their verge as the train follows the curves down into the canyon. Away up near the mountain top we saw the little springs from which tiny rivulets flow, which, uniting as they speed along, make the Platte River, that for many miles is nothing but a bubbling brook. But the tributaries flowing into it from between the hills on both sides swell its volume to a river, now and then finding room to spread itself out into a broad stream, but generally penned up within a narrow, rocky bed at the foot of the precipitous mountains that hem it in like a stupendous wall on either hand. In many places its flow is obstructed by what are almost mountains of rock—huge granite blocks which have become detached from the lofty cliffs above and have fallen into the stream. The stream is like a cataract in many places when the descent is greatest and the canyon the most ragged. The town of Webster is situated at the head of the canyon, and there are other stations in it where there is room for a few houses. Language would fail me were I to attempt a description of this canyon as I saw it by daylight. There are several others in the Rocky Mountains, which are said to surpass this in grandeur, but this one suffices to reveal to the observing traveler enough of sublimity for one day. We were nearly half a day in passing around through the sinuosities of the canyon, ever and anon coming to some pass that seemed darker and wilder than the others, overhung with frowning precipices seeming loftier and more rugged than the last. Within the recesses of the canyon there is one of Nature's monuments, called Dome Rock, a resort for pleasure seekers from Denver. It is like a great cathedral, built by the geni of the hills, who from their subterranean abodes have outwrought a magnificence and exhibited an art in construction which our architects can hardly imitate.

Besides the road on which we travel, another—the Denver and Rio Grande—is laid out through this narrow canyon, on the opposite side of the Platte to the other, and graded much of the way. For long distances, this road must be blasted through the solid rock forming the mountains, which rise perpendicularly for hundreds of feet from the water. At some places they are tunnelling through the mountains, to avoid the greater trouble of going around them. As we emerge from the canyon we soon come upon a cultivated country irrigated by water from the Platte. Denver derives its water supply from this river, taken out before it leaves the canyon. The city is situated about twenty miles from the mouth of Platte canyon. It was after dark when we reached Denver, where we remained over night. Our route east lay over Union Pacific Railroad. From Denver a branch of this road runs to Cheyenne, and over this we must travel. This city lies a little east of north, and at a distance of about ninety miles from Denver. We left the latter city at about eight a. m. Our road for a time lay along the Platte river and through the cultivated lands of Colorado. The cultivated areas seem like a small garden patch in comparison to the many square miles of territory that lie waste only as used for grazing lands, or comprised within the mountainous section forming the entire western portion of the State. Good crops are raised, and various kinds of fruit successfully cultivated, all by irrigation. A vast amount of money and labor has been expended in digging irrigating canals and ditches through the country. Besides those supplied with water from Platte, there is a canal or wide ditch said to be forty miles in length, the water taken from the Cache le Poudre Creek before it descends to the plain, over which it flows for miles by the side of the ditch, but on too low a level to serve for irrigating purposes. We passed through Greeley, which is the nucleus for a large agricultural district, from which has radiated the enterprise that within a few years has made this part of the desert to bloom as it does. It is a fine town, with splendid streets and finest trees in its gardens, containing some fine buildings, among which is a public school-house. Well watered, and in the midst of cultivated fields, it is a real oasis in the desert.

Where are we Drifting?

BY MRS. A. V. MUNGER.

For The South Jersey Republican.

Looking at the outgrowth of sin and infidelity on every hand, both in our own country and in foreign lands; at the measures which, being adopted, prove inadequate to suppress the growth of crime, we are led to wonder where the Evil One is obtaining reinforcements and who are enlisting volunteers for the service of Satan?

Let us see: Where are the enrollment Officers? In Russia, Nihilism; in France, Communism; in Germany, Socialism; in England, Liberalism; in our own beloved country, we find them all united, with a sprinkling of other isms, such as Mormonism, Queidaism, to say nothing of Stalwartism,—each being subdivisions of the Grand Army with which Satan intends to subjugate the world.

We have an example of the work they are best fitted to perform, when we consider the crime, and listen to the blasphemies of the one now on exhibition at Washington. We can form some idea of the depth of depravity into which a human being may sink, through the influence of evil associations. Time was, when the criminal Guiteau was an innocent babe upon his mother's breast, with no apparent difference between him and our own children. With no christian influence at home, and the many poison-atmospheric influences abroad, is it any wonder that in him was formed the material to do an assassin's work?

Parents, what is the influence in your own homes? Are the children brought up to be unselfish; preferring one another? Do they never see any unfairness on your part? Is your example a high and holy one? Do you surround them with christian influences? Do they see you take the Bible as your daily guide? Or do they hear you speak lightly of religion? Of the Church? Of God's people? Are you picturing real or imaginary faults of professing Christians, and holding them up before the young, just as of pointing them to the example of Christ? Is it not better to follow a good example than a bad one? Though many may fail, do not point out their failures as discouragements, rather live your example, that it may bear imitation. I was surprised, on my visit to my native State, to mark the growth of ir religion in the short space of four years. The children of pious parents, or those professing Christianity, abating themselves from the worship of God; and seeking, rather, their own pleasure and amusement on the Sabbath day. I found among them an organization of "Free Thinkers," as they style themselves; or as one has expressed it, the "getting out of the Old Rut." Our Fathers worshipped the Great Jehovah. For eighteen hundred years the light of Christianity has been steadily increasing. The narrow way which leads to life eternal has indeed become a well worn rut, for it bears the imprint of the feet of every great and good man for nearly nineteen centuries. The feet of many Martyrs to the cause of Truth have pressed it; and Christ himself has left the lustre of a glorious example to lighten the way.

Fellow Christians, this is no time for idleness. The broad gate stands wide open. Satan is beckoning to your children and to mine, to leave the "ruts," as they term the way of Truth, and enter the unexplored, pathless wilds, with no landmark, and only the light of human reason which they substitute for the Divine.

In another article, I propose to give your readers the benefit of some examples which have fallen under my observation; and the lesson to be drawn from them.

DR. ROGER'S WORM SYRUP instantly destroys WORMS.

WE NEVER DRINK. — During our late war a party of seven or eight soldiers from the Eighth Maine regiment were on the stage as it drew up at the stage house in Lincoln. While there a poor blind man came into the office, slowly feeling his way with his cane. He approached the soldiers and said, in the gentlest tone:

"Boys, I hear you belong to the Eighth regiment. I have a son in that regiment."

"What is his name?"

"John—"

"Oh, yes; we know him well. He was a sergeant in our company. We always liked him."

"Where is he now?"

"He is lieutenant in a colored regiment, and a prisoner at Charleston."

For a moment the old man ventured not to reply; but at last, sadly and slowly, he said:

"I feared as much. I have not heard from him for a long time."

They did not wait for another word; but these soldiers took from their wallets a sum of money, nearly twenty dollars, and offered it to the old man, saying:

"If our whole company were here we could give you a hundred dollars."

The old man replied:

"Boys, you must put it in my wallet, for I am blind."

But mark what followed. Another individual in the room, who had looked on this scene as I had, with feelings of pride in our soldiers, immediately advanced, and said:

"Boys, this is a handsome thing, and I want you to drink with me. I will stand treat for the company."

I waited with interest for the reply. It came:

"No, sir; we thank you kindly; we appreciate your offer—but we never drink."

The scene was perfect; the first was noble and generous—the last was grand. Pink-eye may be a very bad thing, but it's double-discounted by red-eye—otherwise Jersey lightning.

The CENTURY Magazine, Scribner's Monthly

For the Coming Year.

With the November number began the new series under the title of "The Century Magazine," which will be, in fact, a new, sturdy, and well edited "Scribner." The page is somewhat longer and wider, admitting pictures of a larger size, and increasing the reading matter about Fourteen Additional Pages.

The following is a summary of the leading features of the year:

A new novel by Mrs. Burnett (Author of "That name of Lowell," etc.) entitled "Through One Administration," a story of Washington life.

Studies of the Louisiana Creole, by Geo. W. Cable, author of "The Grandissime," etc. A series of illustrated papers on the traditions and romance of Creole life in Louisiana.

A Novel by W. D. Howells, Author of "A Chance Acquaintance," etc., dealing with characteristic features of American life.

Ancient and Modern Sculpture. A "History of Ancient Sculpture," by Mrs. Lucy M. Mitchell, to contain the finest series of engravings yet published of the masterpieces of sculpture. There will also be papers on "Living English Sculptors," and on the "Younger Sculptors of America," fully illustrated.

The Opera in New York. By Richard Grant White. A popular and valuable series, to be illustrated with wonderful completeness and beauty.

Architecture and Decoration in America. Will be treated in a way to interest both householder and homeowner, with many practical as well as beautiful illustrations from recent designs.

Representative Men and Women of the Nineteenth Century. Biographical sketches, accompanied by portraits of George Eliot, Robert Browning, Rev. Frederick W. Robertson (by the late Dean Stanley), Matthew Arnold, Christina Rossetti, and Cardinal Newman, and of the younger American authors, William D. Howells, Henry James, Jr., and Geo. W. Cable.

Scenes of Thackeray's, Hawthorne's and George Eliot's Novels. Succeeding the illustrated series on the scenes of Dickens's novels.

The Reform of the Civil Service. Arrangements have been made for a series of able papers on this pressing political question.

Poetry and Poets in America. There will be studies of Longfellow, Whittier, Emerson, Lowell, and others, by E. O. Steadman.

Stories, Sketches, and Essays. May be expected from Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, "Mark Twain," Edward Eggleston, Henry James, Jr., John Muir, Miss Gordon Cumming, "H. H.," George W. Cable, Joel Chandler Harris, A. C. Rowland, F. D. Millet, Nath Brockard, Frank H. Stockton, Constance F. Woolson, H. H. Boyesen, Albert Stickney, Washington Glendon, John Burroughs, Parke Godwin, Thomas Salvis, Henry Kiss, Ernest Ingersoll, E. L. Godkin, E. D. Washburne, and many others.

One or two papers on "The Adventures of the Titic Club," and an original Life of Bewick, the engraver, by Austin Dobson, are among other features to be later announced.

The Editorial Departments. Throughout will be unusually complete, and "The World's Work" will be considerably enlarged.

The price of The Century Magazine will remain at $4 per year—35 cents a number. The portrait (size 2 1/2 x 3 1/2) of the late Dr. Holland, issued just before his death, photographed from a life-sized drawing by Wm. T. Eaton, will possess a new interest to the reader of this magazine. It is offered at $5 retail, or together with "The Century Magazine" for $6.50. Subscriptions are taken by the publishers, and by book-sellers and newsdealers every where.

SATURDAY, JAN. 21, 1882. PLEASANT STREET HOUSE Hammonton, N. J.

LOCAL MISCELLANY.

Have you filled your ice-house? Mr. Anderson, flour and feed dealer, put in a carload of corn, Thursday.

Mr. L. H. Parkhurst is building himself a new barn, wherein to bestow his general assortment of goods.

Miss Matwood's juvenile classes in music, at Hammonton are in full season every week.

Please remember Rev. J. C. Jacob's lecture, next Wednesday evening, subject: "Things I have seen in my Travels."

The new firm in the milk business, Messrs. Holt & Berry, we speak from experience, when we say they give satisfaction.

Because of illness, Rev. Mr. Probst was unable to preach last Sunday evening. Prof. E. P. Sherman filled the pulpit very acceptably.

Mr. S. E. Brown is finishing off this house-wood work inside and outside. He will have a cosy, comfortable and convenient home.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Newcomb, of Hammonton, spent some weeks in Hammonton, left for home on Thursday morning.

Prof. Chandler has been very sick for some ten days or more, at the residence of Mr. Bassett. He was not able to attend to his teaching classes, this week.

There was a surprise party at Hon. George Elvins' last week Friday evening. The weather was not favorable, but the evening was passed very pleasantly.

The next regular meeting of the Atlantic County Teachers' Association will be held at Egg Harbor City on Saturday, Feb. 11, 1882.

Passengers are not compelled to take a "handing rest" while awaiting trains at the Hammonton Depot. Easy railway seats have lately been provided.

Rev. Mr. Nye's lecture, Tuesday evening, upon the topic "What is truth?" was not so largely attended as his previous ones.

Some parties had a hearty laugh, last Monday. A little fellow ran to the gate, waving his hat as usual to a comrade some distance away.

Mr. Maurice Raleigh, Esq., the well-known proprietor of Waterford village, and of the Alston mill, died suddenly of heart disease, in his 62d year, at Philadelphia, on Tuesday last week.

The lecture at the M. E. Church, last Saturday evening, was not so largely attended as we had hoped, though enough were present to make it interesting.

Our last week's communication upon the railroad question seems to have aroused much attention. On Monday, the Philadelphia Press gave the results of a "Sun-day interview" of the officers of the W. & A. C. Railroad and the C. & A. Then the Camden Post had quite a lengthy article on the same subject, but those who copied the original articles.

spiritual Laws.

BY MRS. MARIA M. KING.

The beautiful world open to the senses of physical man reveals as much of grandeur, of harmony, as he is capable of appreciating in his infantile state; but what a world lies behind this, of which he is all unconscious! This philosophy has scarcely as yet fathomed the causes of things sufficiently to infer the existence of a world of causes with in the world of effects with which his senses have to do, a world as far surpassing the latter in the intrinsic qualities of its conditions—its laws and forces, as force is superior to gross matter. Materiality has proved a veil that has not only hidden from the senses the interior world, but has also darkened the mind, obscured the judgment, and prevented clear-seeing intellectuality, which might have discerned the spiritual analogically.

Spirit underlying matter as its motor force presupposes spiritual laws underlying physical, spiritual senses underlying material, and a spiritual world, or spiritual nature, upon which these laws, these senses, may react. It may not, therefore, with propriety be said, that the theory of a spirit world, spirit spheres, and a resurrection of man after death into a life where nature reveals itself in transcendent glory, is "like the baseless fabric of a dream."

This theory is based on law, and is indestructible.

"The heavens declare the glory of God." The glittering firmament, "the floor of heaven," suggests more of vastness, of unspeakable grandeur, than aught else in nature.

There are the measureless "voids of space," which to the eye of physical man, seem bridgeless chasms separating star from star, and suggesting the idea of nothingness, vacuity, as the prevalent condition outside the atmospheres of worlds. Latterly, science has negated this supposition by its hypothesis; and, correspondingly, the spiritual philosophy fills this awful blank with life forces potent for binding the universe in one, and establishing the relationship of worlds and the law of their necessary interaction, and also for fixing the connection of material worlds with spiritual spheres.

Ethereal spaces, vital with physical ethers which are the highways over which suns and systems propel their individual forces to and fro, are also highways for spiritual beings, who travel "from world to luminous world afar," as on ethereal seas, whose waves beat upon the strands of spirit spheres and material worlds, supplying a medium of communication between the two states of existence, as real as an ocean intervening between continents. Spirit spheres are within the universe as well as material worlds, and are located with reference to the position of planets or circles of physical suns, whose physical forces predominate, by the laws of attraction and repulsive force, prevalent to infinity. Therefore, spirits go through space from one to the other. They must, however, to do this, change conditions or states, by putting off, or taking on, materiality. The spirit, shorn of its mortal body, finds passage way to its spirit home on a current of spiritual ethers (on the bosom of the river of life) flowing through space, by the laws of attractive force, to the plane where the spirit sphere is to which it belongs. Born a spirit, it finds nature fitted to it still, for space to it is a spiritual world which it can traverse by its new powers in a manner as it did the earth by its physical powers. On the other hand, spirits wishing to visit a material world must avail themselves of a current of force material in character flowing toward the latter; and, to do this, must take on materiality to a certain extent. The law in either case is imperative. Elijah could not have gone to a spirit "heaven" unshorn of his physical body; neither a Gabriel visit the earth from thence without assuming for the time something of materiality, in a word, without materializing himself to a sufficient degree to be able to react with physical forces. Spirit takes on material forms by condensing ethers of the proper quality around their vital organs, and so appear to material vision, otherwise they could not be seen; neither could they produce any phenomena or even remain in the atmosphere without weighting themselves to it, by causing an affinity of force between their bodies and material nature.

Interblended magnetic ethers of all grades, spiritual and material diffused everywhere, filling limitless space, supply the conditions when by all these things are possible, and by law. By the use of their bodily powers and wills, spirits float, as it were, on the wings of magnetic ethers through space, nether and farther. Their highways are as bright as the scintillations of glowing suns, and to their glorified vision, space appears brilliant with rainbow hues, which sparkle and blend in indescribable beauty, as the ethers vibrate to the myriad forces exerted upon them, like the waves of an ocean of light. The gorgeous display is for those spiritually unfolded. Those undeveloped spiritually making the passage, miss its glories, as materiality only beholds the vapory light reflected from surface substance, the mere reflex of atmospheric light. Try the gateway of death opens into a sphere of life and beauty, and the river so dark and dreaded is just on the confines of the sparkling stream whose lively current bears travelers immortally to the land of delight.

Law, intrinsic in its possibilities and in its adaptation to nature's needs, makes possible the infinite variety of piano mena which present themselves for solution to the mind of man. Who has conceived how angelic messengers traverse space on their errands of mercy, God-sent, until this age has shown the law by which it is possible? "Miracle," says the philosopher unenlightened on the subject, "therefore it cannot be true that it is so." "God works by miracles," says the religious devotee, "with him all things are possible." Spiritual science inducts the unbiased thinker into the knowledge of how many hitherto unexplainable things or spiritual visitants ministering to men in all their various ways, when the law is made plain by which it can be done. A spirit sphere located by the known laws of attraction and repulsion can readily be believed in by intelligent people, who study nature and observe carefully the phenomena of ethereal forces. So, it is intelligible to men how the gateways of the angels cut the heavens in all directions, making the interstellar spaces, like habitable countries, traversed by intelligent beings, who make the radiant worlds their stopping places, the points whither they direct their ways, when they find work to do in the vineyard of God. How else do angels supervise the universe as Divine messengers? — Religio-Philosophical Journal.

In our family of ten, for over two years, Parker's Ginger Tonic has cured headache, malaria, and in fact all other complaints so satisfactorily that we are in excellent health and no expense for doctors or other medicine. — Chronicle.

PROSPECTUS FOR 1882.

First Class Family Magazine

FOR ONLY

$3.00 per annum.

LIPPINCOTT'S Magazine.

An illustrated Monthly of Popular Literature.

At the beginning of the present year Lippincott's Magazine entered on a new series, at a reduced price, with the distinctive purpose of presenting such a variety of reading matter—for the most part light and entertaining, yet of real literary merit—as should commend it to the general mass of cultivated persons, and ensure it a welcome in many American homes. Devoting a large proportion of its space to fiction, in which short serials are made a noticeable feature, and to sketches illustrative of social life and manners, it has included in its list of subjects curricula of science, especially natural history, popularly treated, travel and adventure at home and abroad, field sports and angling, and, occasionally, political, historical and educational topics susceptible of fresh and lively discussion. The serial stories published during the year have been marked by a pleasant originality, and have met with a warm reception; while the general attractiveness of the magazine has gained for it a cordial approval and a greatly increased circulation.

The conductors of the magazine hope not only to maintain its reputation, but to enhance and extend it by constant improvement in the same direction. Their arrangements for the coming year embrace a larger number than ever before of contributions of a popular character.

A social story, entitled "STAMEN LIPPLES," which some peculiar and striking phases of American life are vividly and dramatically treated, will begin in the January number and run through six months.

The Editorial departments will maintain their present standard of acknowledged excellence, and the illustrations will be of a higher character than any that have hitherto appeared in the magazine.

CUMBERLAND MUTUAL Fire Insurance Co. of N. Y.

BRIDGETON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expenses much less than usually paid, nothing can be offered more favorably to the insured. The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year for the insured on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty five cents per year on hazardous enterprises, which is less than one third of the low rates charged by stock companies, on such risks—the other two-thirds taken by stock companies being a profit accruing to stockholders, or consumed in expenses of the companies.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.

It is an assessment that is made of five percent only, twice within ten years for which no premium is taken. It is the cheapest to the member than any other policy, and it is the largest amount of money ever given to the members and kept in the hands of the insured, having ever been paid in a more satisfactory manner than any other amount to date.

The Million Fire Mutual Insurance Co. of N. Y. The Losses by lightning are covered by the property in the hands of the insured, and the one cent per cent loss is made good without extra charge, and is made good on all policies that are issued and outstanding.
