Mark 4: 10-20. Memory verses, 23.

LESSON PLAN.
TOPIC OF THE QUARTER: Jesus the Mighty Worker.

GOLDEN TEXT FOR THE QUARTER:
Blessed be that man in the Father, and the Father in me; or else believe me for the very works sake.—John 14: 11.

LESSON TOPIC: Supplying the Receptive.

LESSON 1. The Law of Supply, 10: 14. Outline: 1. The Non-receptive, 10: 15-16. 2. The Receptive, 10: 17.

GOLDEN TEXT: If any man have ears to hear, let him hear.—Mark 4: 23.

DAILY HOME READINGS:
M.—Mark 4: 10-20. Supplying the receptive.
T.—Mark 4: 1-9. Parable of the sower.
W.—Matt. 13: 1-23. Matthew's parallel narrative.

F.—Matt. 25: 14-30. The law of increase.
S.—Job. 42: 1-17. Job's abundant supply.
S.—Eph. 3: 1-21. Supplied through Christ.

LESSON ANALYSIS.
I. THE LAW OF SUPPLY.

1. The Parable of the Sower (Matt. 13: 1-23). Behold the sower went forth to sow (Matt. 13: 3).

To each according to his several ability (Matt. 25: 15).

The seed is the word of God (Luke 8: 11).

Who giveth us richly all things to enjoy (1 Tim. 6: 17).

The Receptive Supplied: Unto you is given the mystery of the kingdom of God (11).

Whoever hear, let him shall be given (Matt. 13: 12).

Give us this day our daily bread (Matt. 6: 11).

If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know (John 7: 17).

Whoever will, he may bear more fruit (John 15: 2).

III. The Non-Receptive Decried: Unto them that are without, all things are done in parables (14).

To them that are given, all things are revealed (13: 11).

Take away therefore the talent from him (Matt. 25: 28).

God gave them up unto a reprobate mind (Rom. 1: 28).

Evil men and impostors shall wax worse and worse (2 Tim. 2: 13).

1. "When he was alone, they... asked to him the meaning of the parables (Matt. 13: 34).

2. "Unto you is given the mystery of the kingdom of God (11).

3. "The sower sowed the seed in the field; (4) The sowing; (5) The harvest.

II. THE NON-RECEPTIVE.
1. Ravaged by Satan: Straightway Satan and taketh away the word (15).

The evil one... snatcheth away that which hath been sown (Matt. 13: 19).

The devil... taketh away the word from their hearts (Luke 8: 12).

Satan entered into Judas (Luke 22: 3).

Let he fall into... the snare of the devil (1 Tim. 3: 7).

1. Cause of opposition: When... persecution ariseth, straightway they stumble (17).

Yet hath he not... endured for a while (Matt. 13: 21).

Because... multiplied, the love... shall wax cold (Matt. 24: 12).

In time of temptation fall away (Luke 8: 13).

They went out from us, but they were not of us (1 John 2: 19).

III. Their Fruitfulness:
Bearing fruit, thirtyfold, and sixtyfold, and a hundredfold (20).

Some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty (Matt. 13: 23).

Bring forth fruit with patience (Luke 8: 15).

Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit (John 15: 8).

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace (Gal. 5: 22).

1. "Upon the good ground," (1) Elements of fertility; (2) Sources of fertility; (3) Results of fertility.

2. "Such as hear the word, and accept it" (1) The hearing ear; (2) The receptive heart; (3) The decisive will; (4) The devoted life.

3. "And bear fruit," Spiritual fruit: (1) Their characteristics; (2) Their varieties; (3) Their values.

LESSON HIGHLIGHT READING: SEED AND SOWING.

I. In Nature: Seed perpetuates vegetable life (Gen. 1: 11, 12, 29).

Each seed is distinctive (1 Cor. 15: 38).

Sowing a perpetual ordination (Gen. 8: 22).

Demand constant effort (Ecc. 11: 2).

Often pursued with difficulty (Psa. 136: 5, 6).

Sowing illustrative of religious recompense (Job 4: 8; Gal. 6: 7, 8).

Constant effort succeeds (Isa. 32: 20). Requires heaven's blessing (Isa. 55: 10; 1 Cor. 3: 9).

2. In Grace: The word of God is seed (Luke 8: 11; 1 Pet. 1: 23).

Seed illustrative of Christ's kingdom (Matt. 13: 12, 23).

Sowing illustrative of preaching (Matt. 13: 19; Mark 4: 14).

Sowing illustrative of spiritual life (1 Cor. 9: 6).

Sowing illustrative of religious recompense (Job 4: 8; Gal. 6: 7, 8).

Sowing illustrative of the resurrection (John 12: 24; 1 Cor. 15: 35-38).

1. The Law of Supply: Quite a number of events occurred between the healing of the paralytic and the discourse in parables, which begins with the parable of the sower. Some of these parables are narrated by all three evangelists; the account of Mark being the briefest, and that of Matthew being the longest. The chronological order in which the parables are given in the Bible will be possible hereafter to name the events, with a reference to the points in dispute.

The call of Matthew (Luk. 9: 10) immediately followed the healing of the paralytic (Mark 2: 13, 14). The feast and discourse which are joined with the call in all three narratives seem to be a later period in the history. So far as Mark's Gospel is concerned, we may say that chapter 2: 15-22 should be placed after 5: 21, this being the only variation from the chronological order in the account of the Galilean ministry. Robinson places the second Passover (John 5) immediately after the call of Matthew. Andrews, as already intimated, places it earlier.

The sabbath controversies came next (Mark 2: 23 to 3: 6); then a withdrawal, during which the twelve are chosen and the Sermon on the Mount is delivered. Mark gives no report of this discourse; but in Mark 3: 7-19 we find a description of the multitude and the healing of the deaf and dumb.

The centurion's servant comes next in order (Matt. Luke), and shortly after the widow's son was raised at Nain (Luk. 7: 11, see the text and margin). The account of Luke places next the message from John the Baptist (Luk. 7: 18-35), which Matthew puts in a different position, adding a dispute in Galilee in the hearing of the return of the messengers from John (Matt. 11: 2-30). The occurrence next in order was the shouting of the crowd's feet by the woman who was sinning (Luk. 7: 36-50), which is different from Mary Magdalene, and from Mary of Bethany. Another circumstance in Galilee is then spoken of (Luk. 8: 1-3), which was followed by the healing of a demoniac (Mark 3: 20, etc.). This led to severe conflict, which our Lord was obliged to withdraw from his mother and his brethren. In the narrative of Mark (and of Matthew) the discourse in parables follows ("on that day," Matt. 13: 1). This would make "that day" one of the most important in the Galilean ministry. It began with the healing of the demoniac, and ended with the stilling of the storm (Mark 4: 35-41).

The full impression of the story is not secured by the arrangement of Matthew, who places the earlier events of the day in his twelfth and thirteenth chapters, and the last event in the eighth. But Robinson and others accept a fuller account of "that day," which is that of the most important in our conduct, in spite of all our efforts at seeming better than we are. In order to secure the good opinion of others, we must reserve our best for ourselves. According to Robinson, an educated man ought to know three things: First, where he is; that is to say, what sort of a world he has got into, how large it is, what the nature of the world is, and how, what it is made of and what may be made of it. Secondly, where he is going; that is to say, what chances are before him, what is the future of the world, besides that which seems to be the nature of that other world. Thirdly, what he had best do in the circumstances, what he has to do, and what faculties he possesses, what are the present state and wants of mankind, what is his place in society, and what are the duties of his position. The man who knows these things, and who has his will to subdue in the hearing of them, that he is willing to do what he ought, is an educated man; and the man who knows them but is uneducated, though he could talk all the tongues of Babel.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

Anticipation is constantly nibbling expected pleasure until it consumes it. Never fight with a weeper; you cannot blacken him, but he may blacken you. Modesty is to merit what shadows are to a picture; it gives force and relief.

Real goodness does not attach itself merely to life; it points to another world. Simple good sense explains the superiority of civilized labor over savage labor.

The oftener one changes his mind, the more frequently he makes a bad bargain. Pleasure is a useful thing, and he who gives his pleasure is a producer like any other.

It is one proof of a good education and of true refinement of feeling to respect antiquity.

One of the most perfect victories you can achieve over any man is to beat him in politeness.

The actions of men are like the index of a book—they point out what is most remote in their hearts.

He who does his best, however little, is always to be distinguished from him who does nothing.

Commerce and industry perform almost all that is good in the world, and it is no vanity for a man to pride himself upon what he has honestly got and prudently used.

Inconsistency between words and actions is generally fatal to the accomplishment of good.

A good action is never thrown away, and that is why so few of them are found lying around loose.

People who make it their business to run other people's business, never receive any cash dividends.

The silent pressure of the hand is often more effective than a whole volume of good counsel.

No man ever regretted that he was virtuous and honest in his youth, and kept aloof from idle companions.

One of the best things a man who can tell exactly how a thing ought to be done than to find one that will do it.

It is the person who talks most during the performance that always appears to do the most wrong thing.

To acquire great wealth shows great vigor, to keep it requires great wisdom and to use it well is a virtue and an art.

Genius is like a barrel on the top of a hill; it will not roll unless pushed, but once pushed it goes off itself.

The best application for the improvement of the countenance is a mixture in equal parts of serenity and cheerfulness.

If we are ever in doubt what to do, it is best to do nothing.

Each man is a walking coal mine, and it is his duty to decide whether it will be for his good to dig, or only rock and smoke.

When a man ventures an opinion he will find some one who opposes it. Hence it is generally well to keep one's mouth shut unless one is sure.

He who is unconsciously selfish is not as dangerous as he who is consciously so. The former betrays his selfishness, the latter conceals it.

It never was in the power of any man or any community to call the arts into being. They came to serve his actual needs, and then he called them to his aid.

There is a wide difference between waiting and delaying. Waiting is remaining inactive before the time for action has arrived. Delaying is remaining inactive after the time has arrived.

No man's work is delayed if God has called him to another work meanwhile. No man has to wait for a better work, but he has to wait for a better man.

What others think of us depends on what we are, rather than on what we try to seem. Most of us hope to be better than we are, and that is why we are not.

The full impression of the story is not secured by the arrangement of Matthew, who places the earlier events of the day in his twelfth and thirteenth chapters, and the last event in the eighth. But Robinson and others accept a fuller account of "that day," which is that of the most important in our conduct, in spite of all our efforts at seeming better than we are. In order to secure the good opinion of others, we must reserve our best for ourselves. According to Robinson, an educated man ought to know three things: First, where he is; that is to say, what sort of a world he has got into, how large it is, what the nature of the world is, and how, what it is made of and what may be made of it. Secondly, where he is going; that is to say, what chances are before him, what is the future of the world, besides that which seems to be the nature of that other world. Thirdly, what he had best do in the circumstances, what he has to do, and what faculties he possesses, what are the present state and wants of mankind, what is his place in society, and what are the duties of his position. The man who knows these things, and who has his will to subdue in the hearing of them, that he is willing to do what he ought, is an educated man; and the man who knows them but is uneducated, though he could talk all the tongues of Babel.

EUMOROUS.

It is described.—"You don't mean that you slept with a piece of that wadding cake under your pillow, you husband?" said a lady to her husband, the morning after they had attended a wedding.

"Certainly I did."

"And did you see in your dream the person you are going to marry—when I said that?"

"Oh, no, I only dreamed that I had never been married at all, Susan, I am going to save this bit of cake; I am sure to cheat it, my dear. I shall have its portrait painted by an old master, and its statue stand in the library. As an heirloom it shall descend."

She snatched it out of his hands and flung it out of the bed room window.

"My love it has descended," she said, sweetly.

"Who is that at the kitchen door?" asked Mr. Jollikin of his young wife, one Sunday, just after breakfast.

"It's a tramp, and I'm bothered to death with them," she replied.

"What's that?" said her husband, "I'll fix him so he won't trouble you any more."

He kissed her and went out and in five minutes returned.

"Well," queried his wife, "did you fix him?"

"Yes, I gave him something to eat."

"Why, you shouldn't have done that. He'll be sure to come back and worry me more than ever," she said petulantly.

"Oh, no, he won't. I gave him a pocketful of the dainty biscuits you made for breakfast."

GENEVIÈVE'S BLUNDER.—"This is your final answer to my Stubbles?" "My final answer," she replied.

"Nothing," she replied.

"When my life will be a lonely one, and my fate a harsh one, for my uncle, with whom I lived, has just died and left me—"

"Yes, and left me—"

"That fact somewhat alters the case, Henry. I cannot be harsh to one who has sustained such sudden bereavement. I do consider that you are sincere."

"Sincere! Oh, Miss Stubbles!"

"You have certainly made an impression on my heart. Give me time to think of it."

"How long?"

"After all, why think of it? Henry, I am here."

"Oh! Genevieve!"

"Do not squeeze me so hard, Henry. You poor man! Was he long ill?"

"Three days."

"It's too bad! You say he left you—"

"Yes, he has left me."

"How much? I said he had left me. He had nothing else to leave. I am alone in the world now, homeless, penniless, but with you by my side—Gracious, she's fainting!"

THE CONVERSION TURNED ON SUPERSTITION and a traveling man from Chicago remarked to a friend who was sitting on a bench.

"Do you believe in ghosts?"

"Come off, indeed, have you ever seen one?"

"You bet I have."

"I don't believe it."

"Would you believe it if I showed you one?"

"Of course."

One-Cent Postage.

The repeated demands so frequent of late for one-cent postage appear to be well supported by the very favorable decrease in the deficiency of revenues last year.

The deficiency of the Postmaster-General. The change is absolutely necessary to facilitate the rapidly increasing interests of the country.

It is not a matter of expediency, but of necessity. The deficiency is making a large profit out of the people, but it should be done at once, when every source of taxation is looked upon as a grievance.

The reduction from three to two cents postage became operative October 1, 1883, since when, with the exception of one year, the deficiency for revenue has increased annually, from which it would appear that the time for one-cent postage is actually at hand.

With such a law in force the estimated deficiency in revenues for the present and next fiscal years might be lowered to such an extent as would warrant further improvement.

MARK TWAIN'S COURTESY.

Mark Twain, if he is in the mood, will tell the story of his own courtship in a manner worthy of the greatest of novelists.

He met the lady who afterward became his wife but was not so distinguished as his original was humble, and for some time he hesitated whether to meet her.

He met the lady who afterward became his wife but was not so distinguished as his original was humble, and for some time he hesitated whether to meet her.

A Model Newspaper THE NEW YORK MAIL AND EXPRESS

The Advocate of the Best Interests of the Home-The Enemy of the Saloon, The Friend of American Labor, The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence.

A National Newspaper, Best carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the entire country—North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, miscolored news, which defile the pages of too many city papers.

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The MAIL AND EXPRESS is the recognized National organ of the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

The New York Tribune

CONGRATULATES Every American Farmer, Wage-Earner, and Business Man, the Union Volunteers, the Lettlers of the Western Territories, every Young Man and Woman, the Freedmen of the South, our American Fishermen and Ship-builders, and the Whole People Generally, on the Salvation of their Welfare

Which was won at the polls on November 6th, in the property which is likely to follow, the men of both parties will share; but to the Republican voters, workers, and press is due the credit.

During Gen. Harrison's administration, the Tribune will continue to advocate the great measures of public policy with which its name is identified. Great responsibilities now rest, not only on the new administration, but on the Republican party and press, with reference to shaping legislation so as to give practical effect to the will of the people.

It is conceded by the whole country, that the New York Tribune has initiated a great variety of the valuable and successful popular discussions of the past year. Its labor for the farmers (not yet half finished) has been aggressive and effective. Its great exposure of the sham "reform" of the Cleveland administration was crushing and final; no attempt was ever made to divert it, its position on temperance brought back numerous third party voters to the Republican ranks.

Its broadsides on the tariff and other questions have done much to prove, beyond question, that the Republican party is the best friend of the poor people of the country and of settlers of the western territories. It is fixed beyond controversy the responsibility for the defeat of much needed pension legislation in Congress.

On many other important questions the Tribune did loyal and successful work. It undertook, for the sake of the cause, many important, laborious, and far-reaching tasks, involving immense research, and useful in setting in quicker motion the forces which won the victory. Its course in the future may be judged by the past.

THE TRIBUNE is not exclusively devoted to politics. It is a general newspaper, presenting the news of the world in each issue, together with fiction, miscellany, matters for the home circle, and for Young Folks, with excellent and accurate market reports, book reviews, foreign correspondence, and two pages a week on Agriculture. For the family, it is absolutely unexcelled among newspapers.

SUBSCRIPTION.—Weekly, $1 a year; extra copy with every five. Semi-weekly, $2 a year; extra copy with every five. Daily, $3.50 a year. Sunday, $2. PREMIUMS. (1) War of 1812 Novels, complete in 6 v. 2. Cooper's fascinating "Leather Stocking Tales," 6 vols. 3. Irving's "Life of Washington." 4. Library of Tribune Extras.

Every year The Tribune prints an Almanac and Index and several bound "Extras." It is proposed to systematize the publication of these Extras, and issue them regularly each month, 12 numbers a year. The Almanac will be issued in its old form, only with new, valuable and extensive additions to the contents, the number for 1889 containing complete returns of the Presidential election. The other numbers will be made up with pages of about monthly interest devoted to latest news in "knitting and crochet." Several will contain complete novels. Others will be made up of entertaining features of special and permanent value relating to Science, Society, Literature, Politics, etc. Single copies, 25 cents. Price per year, for the 12 numbers, $2.

"Woodman, Spare that Tree."

Reader, has it ever occurred to you, while indiscriminately digging out every tree to make room for a few more berries for an already overstocked market, that you may sometime regret that you did not leave a few of the finest specimens for shade and shelter? If not, allow me to suggest a rite in an open wagon some morning or evening when a cold wind is blowing briskly, taking in some exposed places like portions of Main and Middle Roads, and also some which are protected by trees, like portions of Bellevue, and note the difference in apparent temperature. I think you will decide an extra overcoat required where the wind has full sweep. Then, if you are located where all the forest growth has already been mercilessly removed, do not fail to observe the belt of white pines back of Dr. Crowell's. See how rapidly it has grown, how beautiful it is, and what a perfect wind-break it is, and go home resolved to protect your own buildings in a similar manner.
