Demorest's Monthly Magazine.

A WONDERFUL PUBLICATION.

Many suppose DEMOREST'S MONTHLY to be a fashion magazine. This is a great mistake. It undoubtedly contains the finest PATTERN DEPARTMENT of any magazine published, but this is the case from the fact that great enterprise and experience are shown, so that each department is equal to a magazine in itself. In Demorest's you get a dozen magazines in one, and secure amusement and instruction for the whole family. It contains Stories, Poems, and other literary attractions, including Artistic, Scientific, and Household matters, and is illustrated with original Steel Engravings, Photogravures, Water-Colors, and fine Woodcuts, making it the Homer MAGAZINE OF AMERICA.

Each copy contains a PATTERN BOOK containing in any number of the MAGAZINE, and in ANY of the sizes manufactured, each valued at from 50 cents to 50 cents, or over $3.00 worth of patterns per year, free.

Yearly subscription, $2.00. A trial will convince you that you can get ten times the value of the money paid. Single copies (each containing Pattern Order), 20 cents.

Published by W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, NEW YORK.

The above combination is a splendid chance to get our paper and DEMOREST'S MONTHLY.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON:

Joy! Joy! Joy!

"Bring hither the fatted calf and kill it!"— Luke 15:23.

Joy! Joy! Joy! We banquet to-day over this accession of human souls. In every corner of the world it has been customary to celebrate joyful events in festivity—the signing of treaties, the proclamation of peace, the Christmas, the marriage. However much on other days of the year our table may have stinted supply, on Thanksgiving Day there must be something bountiful. And all the contemplative Christians have at some time celebrated joyful events by banquet and festivity.

Something has happened in the old homestead greater than anything that has ever happened before.

whom the world supposed would become a vagabond and outlaw forever, has got tired of sight-seeing and has turned to his old home again. The world said he never would come back. The old man always said his son would come. He had been looking for him day after day and year after year. He knew he would come back. Now, having returned to his father's house, the father proclaims celebration.

There is a calf in the paddock that has been fed up to almost capacity, so as to be ready for some coming of joy that might come along. Ah! there never will be a grander day on the old homestead than this day. Let the butchers do their work, and the housekeepers bring in the smoking meat. The musicians will take their places, and the gay groups will move up and down the floor. All the friends and neighbors are gathered in, and extra supply is sent out to the table of the servants. The father presides at the table, and says grace, and thanks God that his long-absent boy is home again. Oh how they missed him!

HOW GLAD THEY ARE!

to have him back! One brother, indeed, stands pouting the back door and says: "This is a great relief; nothing bad has my soul been having about instead of greed; weal is too good for him!" But the father says: "Nothing is too good, nothing is good enough." There sits the young man, glad at the hearty reception, but a shadow of sorrow flitting across his brow at the remembrance of the trials he had seen. And real gladness! Let the covenants of music. He was dead, and he is alive again. His soul is lost, and he is found! By such bold imagery does the Bible set forth the merry-making when a soul comes home to God.

1. First of all, there is THE NEW CONVERT'S JOY.

It is no tame thing to become a Christian. The most tremendous moment in a man's life is when he abandons the Devil. The greatest time on the father's homestead is when the boy comes back. Among the great throng who in the parlors of this church professed Christ one night, was a young man, who next morning rang my doorbell and said: "Sir, I cannot stand myself with you, like a young man of twenty years, thirty years, forty years, fifty years—waiting, waiting, watching, watching; if only it might be possible to get far away. I know not the history, but you know it, you know it! When a young man went forth into life, the legend says his guardian angel went forth with him, and getting him into a field, the guardian angel swept a circle around where the young man stood. It and honor, and he must not step beyond that circle. Armed foes came down, but were obliged to halt at the circle—they could not pass it. And when the young man with almoned hands, stretched forth and crossed that circle, with the hand, and the tempted soul took it, and by that one fell grip was brought beyond the circle, and died. Some of you have stepped beyond that circle. Would you not like this day, by the grace of God, to stand back? This, I say to you, is your hour of salvation.

A CIRCLE OF VIRTUE

ILL. I notice, also, that when a prodigal comes home there is

of religion.

Oh, it is a grand thing to preach this gospel I know there has been a great deal said about the trials and the hardness of the Christian life, and wish some one would write a good, rousing book about the joys of the Christian ministry. Since I entered the profession I have seen more of the goodness of God than I will ever be able to celebrate in all eternity. I

I know some boast about their equilibrium, and they do not rise into狂热, but I confess to you, that when the nurse was with me, and the long-absent family were all together again. Oh, if you would start for the kingdom of God to-day, I think some of you would find nearly all your friends and nearly all your families to go along with the halo of the nobility of coal required by others. See to it that the furnace, the range, and stove are properly regulated that all the heat generated is properly utilized and that none escapes unnecessarily up the chimney, and that no coal is carried out with the ashes. Of estates, there should be no leavings, no waste, while the housekeepers, by examining their wife in the direction indicated, will be enabled to curtail their expenses.

is it possible?" was my rejoinder, and in ten minutes we were the greatest friends in the world. We sat in the drawing room of the Grand Caffon Hotel for nearly an hour, chatting gayly of America and England and ourselves. At the end of that time she said:

"Well, it's a humiliating necessity, but we must eat to keep alive, and if you will excuse me, I'll go down to luncheon."

I rose also and answered: "You are quite right—if there were no proxy side to life, we should not appreciate the poetry of it—and then after a moment's hesitation I added: "I am a foreigner and don't quite understand your rules of conduct over here, but we must eat to keep alive, and if you will excuse me, I'll go down to luncheon."

Yesterday—only yesterday—a friend met me in Nashville paper containing an article concerning myself; almost along side of the criticism on my poems, in a column headed "Personal Intelligence," there appeared as an item of local interest the announcement of the engagement of "the beautiful daughter of our esteemed fellow citizen, Colonel Euclid Tressahar," to the son of some equally esteemed inhabitant of Nashville, Tennessee.

I cut out the article on myself and my poems with the paragraph attached to its side, and, folding it in small top, I put it in my pocket.

"Neal," said my friend, "Neal at the service of Mademoiselle?"

"Tressahar—Pauline Tressahar," said she, "Let me give you a card."

I sum bled her for her card case, and I for mine, and standing in the doorway of the hotel parlor, we gravely exchanged cards and bowed formally to one another.

"I live in Nashville, Tennessee," she said, "and if you ever come there it will give papa—Colonel Euclid Tressahar—

the greatest pleasure if you will come and see us—you will come, won't you?"

I assured her that I would, and we went down to lunch. The head waiter gave me a menu and a check, and I ordered a tiny little meal, with some coffee, during which operation she watched me with a nervous perplexed look which I perfectly well understood.

It was a round face, with just that slight squintness of jaw which promised to give it a wonderful strength of personality as years went on—her coloring was perfect, faintly flushed with the dawn of womanhood, with white temples and throat, and a high, pale forehead, the whole framed in a careless torrent of hair like to liquid gold. A pair of great wandering eyes, but with fearless, blue eyes, a finely modelled nose, just the least bit tip-titled, and a mouth like those of the cherubs in Raphael's "Madonna" in the Sistine Chapel. She was a little girl, and her figure was just taking unto itself the sweet sinuous curves of womanhood, which showed themselves as she moved to her seat with all the untutored, unconscious grace of perfect and healthy developments. Our eyes met as she sat down. She looked at me with a full, frank gaze in which there was an undefined something of half recognition—she had evidently known some one who resembled me, and then, having satisfied herself of my non-identity, she turned her attention to the older lady and their respective breakfasts. A moment afterwards I heard quarrelling with Robert last night.

Just pass over from these tame joys in which you are indulging—joys of this world—into the raptures of the Gospel.

THE WORLD CANNOT SATISFY YOU; you have found that out—Alexander longing for others to tell him what he wanted to hear, in his own bottle, Drunkenness, by dissipates around the world! Voltaire cursing his own soul, while all the streets of Paris were applauding him; Henry II., consuming with hatred against poor Thomas Becket—all illustrations of the fact that this world cannot make a man happy. This is not my personal opinion, but the opinion of the saddle on which Queen Elizabeth rode, shouted in the street: "God save the Queen!" One moment the world applauds, and the next moment the world amathematizes, comes over into this greater joy, this sublime solace, this magnificent beatitude! The night after the blessed Ascension, the angels of the universe were gathered in the upper room, and the ambulances had not come one Christian soldier lying there under the starlight began to sing:

"There is a land of pure delight," and where he came to the next line

there were scores of voices uniting: "Where saints immortal reign."

The song was caught up, all through the fields, among the wounded, until it was said there were at least ten thousand wounded men rendering their voices as they came to the verse:

"There everlasting spring abides;

Death like a narrow garment divides

Life from the land of pure delight."

Mr. EDITOR:—It seems that some of our townsmen are determined to place the credit of the success of the chicken business in Hammonton without any regard to justice. First, Mr. Pressey was put forward as "father" of the business. Then Mr. Jacobs is posed as another paternal ancestor; and, to cap the climax, the "old hen" was trotted forward as the true "father." Let us inquire into the merits of these several claims.

About six years ago, Mr. Pressey made a hot-air incubator; and later, a lamb brooder. Then began the broiler business, and there may have been nine or ten persons engaged in it during the next three years. It did not flourish.

Mr. Jacobs boomed Hammonton as a chicken centre for several years, and, strange as it may seem, not a stranger settled among us to engage in poultry business for some three years, until an event occurred of which I shall speak presently. The great American Kicker's booming did not accomplish enough to entitle him to the name of "father."

The "old hen" deserves much credit for her share in the business, but it has been wisely said that it is no trouble to hatch chickens, but to keep them alive, there's the rub. Mr. Pressey furnished us with a means of hatching, but it remained for Mr. E. S. Packard to furnish a safe means for keeping them. In 1855

Mr. Packard introduced a hot water brooder, which caused a revolution in the chicken industry, and proved that the business could be so successfully conducted on a town lot as on a five acre farm. The next year, strangers began to settle here to engage in the raising of broilers. The lamb-brooder has been before the public for five years, and there are about 140 in use in this place to-day. Mr. Packard was introduced about three years ago, and there are 275
now in use here.

The "old hen" should convince any fair minded person that a good share of credit belongs where we would place it.

HEBREW STORIES.

Curious Case of Insanity.

Match May be Done With Little.
"Here, my little son," said an Athenian to a little Hebrew boy in a spiritual way. "Here is a penny, buy something for me with it." Let it be an article of such a kind that I may eat some myself, give some to a guest, and have some to take home with me for my family. The witty boy went and bought salt!

"Salt!" exclaimed the Athenian. "I did not tell you to buy me salt!"

"Quite right," answered the boy wittily; "but did you not tell me to buy you some article of which you might eat yourself, have enough for a guest, and have some to take home with your family?" This is the article that answers the purpose, you can eat your fill, give to another as much as he wishes to eat, and have a good supply left to take home for your family."

The Tailor and the Broken Mortar.

An Athenian, passing through the streets of Jerusalem, found a broken mortar. As he now thought to show his wit, he went into the shop of a tailor and addressed him thus: "Mister, be so good and put a patch on this mortar for me, and I will pay you for it to do," replied the tailor. "If you will provide me with the patch, I will make up the hole in the mortar."

So saying, he offered him a handful of sand out of which to make the thread!

In like manner did another Hebrew boy, "answer a fool according to his folly," thus:

"Buy some cheese and eggs!" once said an Athenian to a little boy, who went and did as he was told.

"Now my little son," said the stranger, "sell me also which of the cheese is made of the milk of white cows, and which of the milk of black cows?"

"Ab," replied the boy, "you are older than I am; show me first which eggs have been laid by black hens, and which by white ones!"

New Fads in Men's Dresses.

If predictions are to be fulfilled, the women of society will have to look to their laurels the season just about to be inaugurated. The fashionable men are showing an alarming tendency towards discarding conventional costumes and adopting styles that are picturesque, to say the least. We find instances of the unusual splendor during the past summer, when "gilded youth," sauntered about the summer hotel porches, their pristine flannel suits relieved with broad Roman sashes, or wide metal belts and hose now prophesied that the midwinter will herald styles yet more gorgous. Some of the most courageous young men are even prepared to risk the rumors by permitting their enterprising tailors to use their names "Entente," as the French say; that their representative society men, a few of them, will actually wear the Oriental sash, minus the waistcoat, this winter for full dress. Now, these same sashes are wide, of superb quality and exquisite colorings. The dark green grounds, red or blue, with contrasting deeper tints running horizontally, and there are also deep grounds, garnet, stone, marine blue or royal purple, run with pale-colored bars. Yes they are effective; so effective, in fact, that the warning is to be repeated; the fad of to-day needs to be wary or be banished with the sun.

—The gray mare, Noontide, 2,20, by Harold out of Midnights, dam of Jay Eye See (2,10), was sold as a yearling at Woodburn's auction sale, in 1875, for $30 to a colored man, who afterward sent her at a slight advance.

—The famous brood mares Relma Victoria and Flora Belli died on the same day, February 1. The latter was 20 years old, and her record of 2,224 was made seventeen years ago.

In addition to the two $5,000 stakes to be given in the fall, the Driving Club of New York has decided to give a Fair for Old Stake for foals, 1885. $100 entrance and the club will $500.

—The gray mare, Noontide, 2,20, by Harold out of Midnights, dam of Jay Eye See (2,10), was sold as a yearling at Woodburn's auction sale, in 1875, for $30 to a colored man, who afterward sent her at a slight advance.

—J. C. Twyman, of Lexington, Ky., has purchased of Thomas C. McDowell, the 4 year old gelding, Argyle, by Stamford, dam by Knight of St. George, and will win the match race with Marmoset at Lexington on Friday, February 1st.

—The gray gelding D. K. W., that trotted last season in California and credited to A. W. Richmond, is none other than Monte Cristo, 2,20, son of Malta, by Swigert. He was sold two years ago by Ed Bither, driver of Jay Eye See, to California parties.

—A bill has been introduced in the New York Legislature by Mr. Kent to amend the Ives Pool bill by making it unlawful to sell or give or regale French pools or combinations of stake or register bets by bookmaking or by any similar system or plan of pools and bookmaking.

—Buffalo Park will give three stake events of $5,000 each for its meeting in August. The classes are 2,22, 2,24, 2,27, and horses eligible on May 20, when subscriptions close, will be eligible for the races. The horse must be named on July 15, when the third meet begins.

—Recd. from W. R. Allen made another addition to the broad mares at the Allen Farm, having purchased from J. V. Stryker, of Springfield, Ill., the year old bay mare June Rose, by Kentucky Prince, dam Atlanta, by Mescocure Duroc.

—Matt. Storms, who was seriously injured in the Shohola railroad accident last August, in which a number of Mrs. Langtry and Fred Gobhard were killed, is still a cripple. He is back in California, but was forced to send away or dispose of his horse.

—Before the Academie des Sciences in Paris, when M. Galipeau remarked that the process was already known, and quoted a case in support of its efficacy, the president of the National Association of Trotting Horses Bredsters to take charge of the Hambletonian monument fund, has issued a circular calling for subscriptions. It is proposed to erect over the grave at Chester a life size bronze statue of the great trotting horse progenitor.

—The stallion Mohican, record 2,34, owned by Mr. Muller, of Terra Nova, not at Redwood stock farm on Thursday February 7th. The horse caught cold and death resulted from congestion and kidney disease.

In February, 1887, Mr. McKeen purchased Mohican from J. D. Yeomans, of Buffalo, paying $7,000 for him.

—According to the Chemist, Edmund M. Muller has evaporated skinned milk in a vacuum, so as to obtain a permanent product, which can be preserved for many months in a dry atmosphere, and which will keep all the properties. He thinks that it may be of great use in pastry, and in various kinds of baking, and the best sugar of milk can be made from it. The skinned milk, which is collected in dairies and cheese factories, is usually given to animals, or wasted in sewage works, however, large quantities of it, and parts of butter and casein, which can be utilized by Muller's method.

—The strength of iron in boilers is not much affected by the working temperature down to the freezing point, but when the temperature of the water is low through the absence of water on one other cause rises much above 500 degrees, then a change commences. Above 750 degrees the tenacity diminishes very rapidly, and when the plates become red hot they have lost half of their usual strength.

—The question of licensing jockeys and trainers will come up before the Conference in New York,

Another gen from the school examination papers—this time from the Boston high school, and from the papers of a young lady who had graduated from the grammar school:

—Question—What are antidotes for hydrocyanic acid?

Answer—Yes. The antidote for hydrocyanic acid is the tongue of a large dog, cautiously inhaled.

It would puzzle any one but an expert to determine by what round about means the young lady has evolved such a treatment. But others will find in the book about the deadly effect of a small drop of prussic acid, placed "upon the tongue of a large dog," the pupil, without one single thought of its meaning, had echoed the words of the book in this strange answer.

HORSES, at the Polo grounds—What is the crowd shouting and hurrying for; has our side made another run?

Jack—No; the umpteenth has just been knocked senseless with the ball.

What Culture Does.

—The Birmingham (Ala.) Jockey Club has been organized.

The price paid for Arab, 2,15, by John Shepard, of Boston, is said to have been $10,000.

Mr. Griffin, the noted race track owner, has built the Belmont track faster than it ever was.

The St. Louis Jockey Club will hang up a $10,000 guaranteed purse for 2,30 trotters, the first race of the year.

The price paid by Clay & Woodford for Sir Dixon is said to have been $10,000. The Dwyer Bros. will not deliver the horses until he shall be through racing.

—Professor Pick, of Prague, has recently advocated a new method of applying remedies to diseased skin. He takes in his hand some pure white paint, and while keeping it in a moistened state, adds a quantity of medicament substance, e. g., iodofrom, salicylic or phenic, and pyrogallic acids, and then allows the mass to cool. For use, a portion of this mass is melted in a little receptacle placed in boiling water, and is then applied to the diseased part, and while keeping it in a moistened state compresses the skin, but unless smeared over with a little glycerine, in the proper use of which some little experience is needed, the gelatine is apt to crack and fall off. In this way Pick has obtained good results by the application of a gelatine containing 50 per cent. of pyrogallic acid, or 10 per cent. of iodofrom, after a thorough washing of the parts with potash soap in a warm bath. In severe cases he renewes the applications every two days. He has also successfully employed gelatine, medicated with 5 to 10 per cent. of salicylic acid, in chronic eczema, and some erythematous conditions, and in purpura.

—The gray mare, Noontide, 2,20, by Harold out of Midnights, dam of Jay Eye See (2,10), was sold as a yearling at Woodburn's auction sale, in 1875, for $30 to a colored man, who afterward sent her at a slight advance.

—The famous brood mares Relma Victoria and Flora Belli died on the same day, February 1. The latter was 20 years old, and her record of 2,224 was made seventeen years ago.

By what authority doest thou these things? (Matt. 21: 23).

Who gave thee this authority to do these things? (John 6: 23).

I. Authority Allowed:

They were offended in him (3).

It shall be... for a stone of stumbling and for a rock of offence (Isa. 8: 14).

Then shall many stumble (Matt. 24: 10).

Upon that many of his disciples went back (John 6: 6).

They stumbled at the stone of stumbling (Rom. 9: 32).

II. Authority Hindered:

He could there do no mighty work (5).

He did not many mighty works there because of their unbelief (Matt. 13: 54).

Because of your little faith (Matt. 17: 20).

They were not able to enter because of unbelief (Heb. 3: 19).

Without faith it is impossible to be well-pleased unto him (Heb. 11: 6).

—Whence have I this man these things? (Mark 1: 28).

He rebuked him, but he spake again (3: 19).

He rebuked him, but he spake again (3: 20).

He rebuked him, but he spake again (3: 21).

source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corrupt control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemna-
