THE MUSICAL DOOR.

BY MARY GRAHAM.

Jack Elwood had tried to do what no boy or girl or man or woman, nor indeed any kind of a biped should attempt to do...

At first Jack was too much subdued by his new position to find any more than a meek reply to the remarks...

He would send his medicine spoon flying across the room in the most startling manner, and when the window was closed...

Occasionally, something else would come popping out most unexpectedly—a gold shirt-stud, or a small pillow, and, once indeed, the bed-spread was rolled into a compact ball...

SUPERSTITIOUS.

MRS. A. GIDDINGS PAIR. "And I wouldn't be aither beggin' a piece of work on a Friday, mum!" was the exclamation of Mary...

"Yes—didn't you know that that door was my dear Ole, hired for my special benefit? You haven't gone and sent him away, have you?"

"I cannot un-oh!" said Mrs. Elwood in a distressed voice, "It will wear off an' you'll be all right again."

"Yes—but I can't do without it—the notion of my spirit being so dull as night, and my affections dark as day, if I don't have some music in my door..."

"It's music, you mean, mother; it really was music to me, and I don't believe anyone short of Ole Bull could replace it..."

"For if I don't do this I'll forget how to throw altogether," he would say to his mother, when that lady gently remonstrated.

FASHION NOTES.

It is quite necessary, according to the American eye, to regulate our time by nature, and to be prompt to the minute as well as the hour...

To look at a watch while visiting is considered an impertinence, and as it is the fashion to wear watches...

Some farmers, even at this time, are so blinded by their own ignorance that they are offended when a man tells them truthfully that their butter is not up to the standard of the market.

It is the testimony of those who have given it a thorough trial, that potatoes of high value as a food for cows, horses or hogs to pay a good profit for the labor in taking care of it.

Mr. C. E. Fowler is making many improvements in the Park in anticipation of the summer. He succeeded in filling both of his ice-houses. The young ladies need not look forward to the ice cream season as a failure by any means.

Henry G. Thayer will give a concert on Tuesday evening, April 15th, assisted by the Schubert Trio, of Philadelphia, and some of the best home talent. Henry is acquiring wonderful skill as a violinist, is working hard for improvement, and deserves aid and encouragement.

Look out for your lead drain pipes. We are told that a gang of boys are going around and cutting off these pipes whenever they project, and using the metal in their mischievous play. It is said that a number of feet of pipe were recently stolen from Vius Cottage. Perhaps the boys do not realize that they are stealing, but a few days in jail will be the consequence, it is detected.

Many members of the W.C.T.U. united in a surprise party, on Monday evening, at the M. E. parsonage, a compliment to Mrs. Lawrence, Treasurer of the Union, beloved by all. The time was spent very pleasantly. Mrs. Randall, President, in behalf of the members, presented Mrs. Lawrence with a beautiful stand work-basket, with kind words of appreciation, to which the recipient made a fitting response.

Mr. D. E. Woolley has inaugurated a new departure in journalism, and is to publish a new periodical, the prominent feature of which will be correspondence from men, women, and children all over the United States, upon any subject in which the writer is interested. We do not fully understand the project, but Mrs. Emma C. Hewitt (lately associate editor of the Ladies' Home Journal) is to be editor. Send your address to "The Household Correspondent and Exchange," 1416 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, and receive a copy of the prospectus; or send 25 cents for the periodical one year.

Mr. Editor:—There was another terrible commotion, a "tempest in a teapot," in the Mirror office, when the Republican of March 1st reached there, and the editor rose in his majesty, and with fierce gesticulation thundered— "He who dares my words dispute shall meet Bombs' 'ere and here!"

I have only this to say in regard to the matter over which ye editor makes such a mountain. I have sustained my statements with proof sufficient to satisfy any mind that is willing to be satisfied. I have shown that Speaker Reed was not a "tyrant" in exercising his prerogative as presiding officer of the House, in which he is sustained by the ablest jurists and best parliamentarians in the country. I have furnished proof that he had precedents, and that his immediate predecessors had done precisely the same thing without condemnation on Speaker Reed. But the latter is to be denounced as a tyrant, and "arbitrary," because he had the manliness and independence to plant himself on constitutional ground, thereby silencing men who had never known discipline. For this he is honored by all honest and just men, even by some of his bitterest political opponents, save the immaculate editor of the Mirror, who could produce sufficient evidence, but any evidence that does not show said editor to be right in his ranting tirade against good men, he ignores, because they are republicans.

Our readers are referred to the article recently published in the North American Review (not ye editor of the Mirror, for he would not believe, judging from the confidence he has in Speaker Carlisle's "say so")—which shows in "proof as strong as holy writ" that my statements are true. I cannot ask you to publish this, but I would be obliged if you would copy the following: "When the writer of this article recently declared that he had heard Mr. Carlisle announce such bills as duly passed a hundred times he was utterly too quarrelled. He ought to have said a thousand times. "It is well to comprehend just what this means. Every such bill had to be signed by Mr. Carlisle personally for the very purpose of certifying that he had passed a regularly and constitutionally. Every such bill passed by less than a quorum present and voting, and signed by Mr. Carlisle—was, therefore, an association on his part that a quorum need not vote. If it was not, how could he justify his action? It is needless to have a quorum in active participation by voting how could he dare to sign a bill which he himself had declared to the House and the world had not the absolute requisite? "In this connection, also, it must be noted that many bills on which he himself had declared in open House that he would sign, were not signed by him, but by the late speaker on the very day of passage, and therefore before the Journal was even written, much less approved. How could this have been done except in happy constitutional reliance on the well-founded hope that the Journal, when born, would not state the fact?"

"The sober truth, however, is that all these proceedings are strictly constitutional, and would be if the facts were as stated. The presumption always is that the body is legally constituted; that a majority is there—a quorum—ready to do business. If anybody doubts it, he can say so and have the legal inference verified. This could be properly done by the Speaker's count."

Whatever the fault and heavy wet emanations from the Mirror office may be hereafter, I shall not make any further comments, as I have proven my statements, and it would be useless to say more for the sole purpose of giving "ye editor" cause to use his "peculiar verbiage." STALWART.

The call issued by Miss Clara Barton, of the Red Cross Association, for assistance for the suffering farmers of the two Dakotas deserves a prompt and generous response. When the Red Cross appeals for help it is always needed.

St. Mark's Church, Fourth Sunday in Lent, March 16th. Holy Communion at 7:30 A. M. Evening Prayer and Sermon, 7:30 P. M. Sunday School at 3 o'clock.

Week-day services on Friday and Saturday, at 4:00 P. M., and on Friday at 7:30 P. M. List of unclaimed letters remaining in the Post Office at Hammonton, N. J. Saturday, March 15th, 1900: Mrs. A. B. Hammett, Miss Wanda Hooy.

Persons calling for any of the above letters will please state that it has been advertised. Cyrus F. Osgood, P. M. William Miller, aged 23 years, was buried yesterday, from the residence of his father, Walter S. Miller, Pleasant Mills. Deceased was very sick for a time, with la grippe, at his father's, and only returned to his home in New York recently. The change was made too soon, and a relapse followed, with fatal result.

The temperance mass meeting, last week Friday evening, was well (not largely) attended. Mr. H. W. Wilbur was chosen chairman. Opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Bundall, followed by singing "Fall into Line." The ladies of the W. C. T. U., who called the meeting, had prepared a number of interesting addresses, declaring themselves in favor of any legal measure to suppress the increasing evil of intemperance. Miss Williams read a fine poem, and the choir sang appropriate selections. We enjoyed the meeting, and believe that its occasional repetition would be beneficial.

There should be a large attendance at the annual school meeting, next Tuesday afternoon, at three o'clock, in the Central school-house. There will be one Trustee to elect, for three years, in place of S. E. Brown, whose term expires. The Trustees recommend the following appropriations: For teachers, $1250; Janitors, $500; Fuel, $200; Incidentals, $500; Building and Repairs, $375; total, $2825. In addition, a new school house is again called for, on Union Road, to cost about $1200; cost of maintaining new school, $430. Total amount asked for, $4305. When such a sum of money is to be voted on, it seems as though every taxpayer would desire to be present. It is odd, but voters will debate for half an hour over an appropriation of $400 for water supply, and never appear at a meeting where thousands are added to the taxes. So it has been in the past.

THEIR HISTORY.
In the Spring of 1882 I found this seedling in my vineyard. That season it was loaded down with fruit, and found to be firmer, harder and more durable than the Souhegan or the Doollittle. Ever since then it bore from 3000 to 4000 qts. per acre, according to culture. In my estimation, it is the best Black Cap on record, in every way imaginable.
JACOB MIEHL, Originator.

Read the following testimonials, — all from practical berry growers in Hammonton, who know all about the Pioneer.

I have been fruiting the Pioneer Black Cap for five years, and find them the best black cap, by far that I ever grew. They have been very prolific, perfectly hardy, never crumble in picking, and do not beat to pieces by the rain like the Souhegan. They have yielded at the rate of 3000 quarts per acre without any special treatment and very light dressing of fertilizer. — P. Patten.
From 1000 plants of the Pioneer I picked the first season 1600 quarts, which was three times as many as the Souhegan yielded, by the side of them, with the same treatment. It is a better shipper and a better grower than the Souhegan also. — A. Capell.
What I have seen of the Pioneer Black Cap, it's a more vigorous grower, more productive, more hardy, and better for shipping than the Souhegan. — P. J. Fitting.
We have had the Pioneer Black Cap on our place two years, and find it a much more vigorous grower than the Souhegan, — berries ripening at the same time, are similar in size and considerably firmer. We have been watching it in this vicinity, for several years, and think it will supersede the older varieties as soon as plants are plenty. — W. F. Bassett (of Bassett & Co., proprietors of the "Bellevue Avenue Nursery").
Having grown the Pioneer Black Cap, the Souhegan, and Doollittle, I saw the difference between them through the wet season last year. When the others were worthless, the Pioneer brought the top market price. I can sincerely recommend it. — P. Fitting.
Having watched the growth and fruit of the Pioneer Black Cap for several years, I purchased some, and am convinced that they are the best of all varieties. — J. Fitting.
