To-morrow—Boys' Day.

All boys and young men are urged to attend church to-morrow. Not only are they invited by the pastors throughout the State, but by Governor Edge, who emphasizes one's duty to God and country.

This is what our popular Governor has to say to the boys:

State of New Jersey, Executive Department,
March 2nd, 1917.

TO THE BOYS OF NEW JERSEY:

As you are probably aware, a proclamation has been issued which sets aside Sunday, March 25, 1917, as Boys' Day in New Jersey.

The idea of marking this as a special day is to encourage the boys of New Jersey, through the assistance of their parents, in the duties of citizenship. Every boy faces this responsibility, and the sooner he is impressed with the seriousness of it and the sooner he is equipped to shoulder the responsibility in the way that it should be shouldered, the better it will be for the state and for the nation.

The Young Men's Christian Association is going to promote this special day in the hundred or more cities and towns of New Jersey where these associations are located. Through the high and preparatory schools, the industries, and the state institutions, the Young Men's Christian Association is coming in direct touch with about fifteen thousand older boys. A majority of them will cast their first vote on or before the next Presidential election. In other words, they will become full-fledged citizens, and to them shall be delegated the task of taking a part in the government of their municipality, and state, and country. In case war is declared, they will be the ones to respond to the call of the colors, and I might say that they represent twice the war strength of New Jersey.

It has been suggested that in addressing you boys of New Jersey I lay emphasis upon loyalty to God and country, purity for God and country, and sacrifice for God and country. Certainly I could urge nothing better. Loyalty, purity, and sacrifice are of the essence of good citizenship; citizenship cannot exist at all unless there is purity; citizenship is merely a misnomer where there does not exist loyalty as between citizen and the sovereignty; and of course all citizenship necessitates certain sacrifices. The state calls for the services of its citizens in the ordinary functions of government, and yet it must not be expected to pay for every dollar's worth of service received. The people cannot afford it. There must be co-operation among the citizens, and a willingness to run the affairs of the state at personal sacrifice, if need be. Of course, there is another kind of sacrifice in time of war; but whether during peace or during war, the basis of good citizenship is sacrifice.

With the assurance that the boys of New Jersey will enter into the spirit of the coming Boys' Day in a whole-hearted fashion, and with the confidence that the majority of the boys of New Jersey of to-day are going to be the leading and active citizens of to-morrow, I am,

Most cordially yours,

WALTER E. EDGE, Governor.

For March 25, 1917 AN ENEMY TO BE HATED Isaiah 69:5

No man can love God aright who does not love goodness and hate wickedness. It is as much a duty to hate what is evil as to love what is good.

"Love your enemies," Jesus said; but that implies a command to love that is not in some good in our enemies, though we may not be able to see it.

HIS EQUAL IN HEIGHT

When Lincoln was on his way to assume the office of President, the train was delayed at Freedom, Pa., by an accident to a freight train that was a little way ahead.

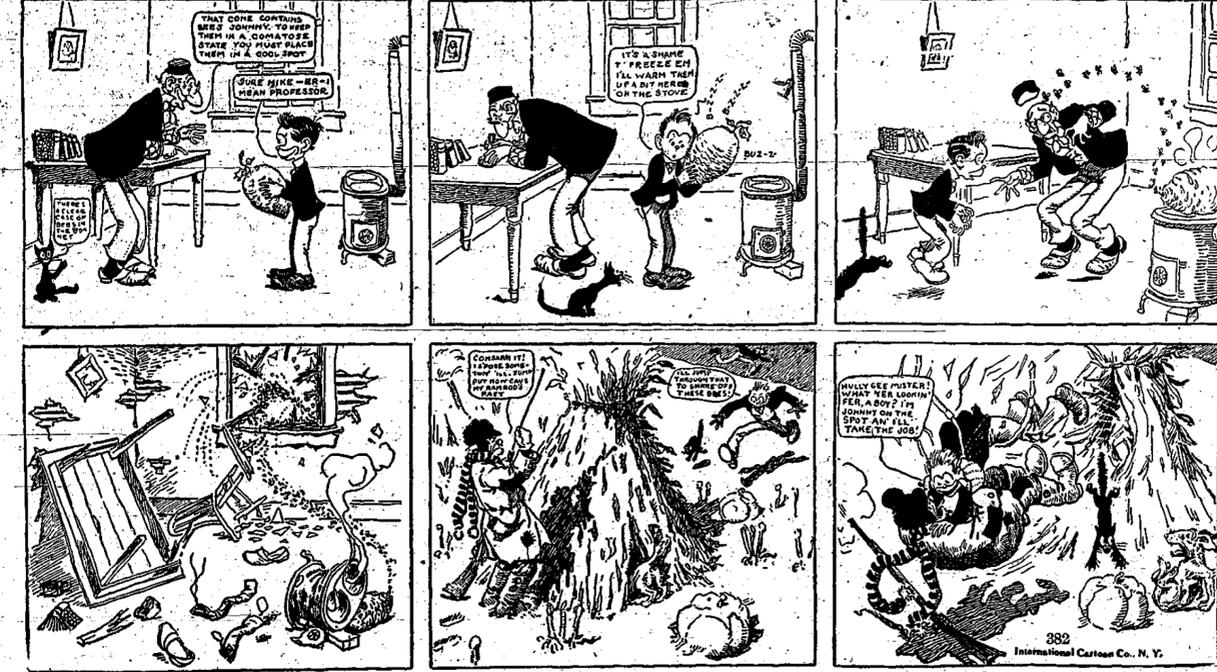

"The gates were up and the way clear when Mr. Gardham drove by," the ranchman interrupted a little sharply. "Why did you go off and leave your team standing idle in the street instead of moving along?"

Positions were still scarcer now; and with a thought of the people at home who were dependent upon him the young fellow worried over the apparent delirium into which he had fallen.

A QUESTION OF SPEED

"P" This lot of planks fast, Tom! Mr. Gardham will be round great quick, and I'm afraid he has the idea that you're slow."

"I was blocked by a long freight car at the crossing," Tom explained. "The locomotive stalled for fifteen minutes."

"The gates were up and the way clear when Mr. Gardham drove by," the ranchman interrupted a little sharply.

Positions were still scarcer now; and with a thought of the people at home who were dependent upon him the young fellow worried over the apparent delirium into which he had fallen.

He had left the yard with a full hour's time in which to make only a twenty-minute trip. Outside the gates he had turned up the grade that led round a street corner and down to the railway crossing.

Near the corner he had suddenly spied in the roadway a heap of wood, evidently dropped from a house-creeper's wagon. There was one piece from which his nails protruded, and a jagged pile of tin on a fragment of roofing timber nearby.

HEAVY LUMBER

One pile in particular had met with Mr. Gardham's disapproval. It stood on the farther side of the sand pit and was made up of especially long planks.

"See that!" Mr. Gardham cried, with a frown. "The yard engine at the moment pointed out along the siding, and the car that it was hauling was almost scratched by the projecting timbers."

Mr. Gardham remarked that it was time for him to take his son down town to meet Mrs. Gardham. At the mention of Benny, Tom glanced toward the sand pit and discovered that the boy had left the ford he had been building in the sand and was gingerly toward the face of the lumber pile.

Tom had driven to the top of the grade and, rounding the corner, had stopped his horse at the level ground. There he had left his team, and running back had picked up the debris and dumped it into a convenient open pit.

THE ENGINEER

The engineer of the locomotive was in the wrong side of the cab to see the boy's predicament. Tom realized that everything depended upon him.

"Oblivious of the fact that the car was bearing swiftly down on him, the boy continued his interesting climb. The shrieking of wheels as they crunched over the switch points drowned Tom's warning shout."

Tom was nearer than anyone else to the child, but even he was too hundred yards away. He bounded along the track toward the lumber pile, and Benny, hurried after him as fast as he could.

"Come down, Benny, quick!" Tom shouted as he drew near the pile. "Come!"

The boy turned a questioning face toward Tom, and then started to obey. But to Tom's dismay, he saw that the youngster's feet had wedged tightly between two planks!

Setting his teeth and clenching his fists, Tom increased his speed. He had been so busy that he had not intended far in the rear. The loaded car was shooting down the track now only a hundred feet away. Tom could see that its load would heavily scrape

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1917. A paper is in circulation, here and elsewhere, asking for signatures of men who are willing to pledge loyalty to their country, and support the President and his advisers in their efforts to sustain the dignity and independence of the United States. It is not a promise to enlist, nor to engage in active military service. Thousands of thousands of citizens are thus uniting to hold up the hands of the Commander-in-Chief, who is in a position not to be envied by any one, and who, being human, may make mistakes—costly beyond our comprehension. Forget all our differences, comrades, and let us be unanimous and active in defence of our country,—demanding that the Stars and Stripes be respected under all conditions, wherever displayed.

We copy the following amusing advertisement from a western paper now on our desk: "Hats exchanged. I have somebody's Ideal hat, size 7 3/8, and he has my No-Name hat, size 7 1/4. The change was made at the Monday night bean supper. Let's change back. Bert Williams." Not a bad idea. This happens here occasionally.

We regret that the one lady member of the Board of Education was not re-elected, Tuesday night. Where so many lady teachers are employed, we believe there should be at least one woman member, as questions come up between parents, pupils, and teachers which require attention, that men cannot properly handle.

People are still wondering why not one of the half-hundred ladies who attended the annual school meeting exercised her right to vote. Many of them are advocates of woman suffrage, yet they sat quietly and allowed the men-folk to settle financial questions.

Governor Edge is pleasing thoughtful people by his keen insight into State affairs, his excellent judgment, and his fearless initiative,—conducting his office with as little regard for politics as is possible. The right man in the right place.

Tuesday, the first day of Spring according to the calendar, was an ideal day,—bright and warm. Wednesday brought us an all-day rain. Thursday and Friday, a little cool, but altogether delightful.

Why can't that puddle at Egg Harbor Road and Bellevue Ave. be drained? Every rainy day the water collects, and unless one is careful he will step into a shoe-full of water. We are told that a young Hammonite emphatically declined to sign the loyalty pledge now being circulated, saying, "No, sir; I am a Republican, and if the Democrats want war, let them do the fighting!" Isn't that a fine sample of patriotic Americanism? Wouldn't such a speech delight all Germany, if made by any considerable number of our people? For shame, young man! We feel like repudiating such self-styled Republicans, and relegating them to the company of pussy-footed gentlemen whose precious hides are too highly prized to be even burned in defence of the rights of men when assailed by a foreign foe. We understand that there were several others who declined to sign the pledge, fearing that they might be called upon to serve the country they love (?) Also, that one who had already signed had his name erased on the recommendation of his spiritual adviser.

The Baptist Church has issued an announcement and invitation card, of which the following is a facsimile:

Un-Claimed Letters. The following letters remained unclaimed for the Hammon Post Office on Wednesday, Mar. 21, 1917: A. W. Goss, and Mrs. J. H. Fisher. Forester, and Mrs. J. H. Fisher. Forester, and Mrs. J. H. Fisher.

6,000 Tried and Failed TO GET A Hudson Super-Six. Last year, thousands of buyers failed to get a Hudson Super-Six. We were too far over-sold. Yet no car over $100 had so large an output. More men, we fear, will be disappointed this year. The Super-Six is better known. It holds all worth-while records. Over 28,000 owners are urging their friends to get it. And all Motorland must now concede its supremacy. Look it up now if you think you want the greatest car that's built. The Economy of It. Men buy the Super-Six because of endurance. Its speed, its power, its hill-climbing ability are all interesting factors. But the greatest of all is economy. This invention—patented by Hudson—added eighty per cent to motor efficiency. It nearly doubled a motor's endurance. All by nearly ending friction, the great cause of motor wear. This year we add a gasoline saver in the form of radiator shutters. We add a motor-meter. We use a patent pneumatic carburetor, which adjusts itself to every engine speed. And we put an engine primer at the driver's hand. Remember that this motor is patented. No one else has it.
