Aleen O'Conner.
 A vine covered cottage all smiling with flowers,
 And kissed by the maples that rustle above;
 'Twas there that my heart knew its happiest hours,
 With Aleen O'Conner the pride of my love.
 No rosebud as fair as her cheeks'neath their blushes,
 Her eyes with the violets well could compare;
 Her voice was as sweet as the songs of the thrushes,
 And bright as the sunlight the wealth of her hair.
 There never was a daintier arm at the spinning,
 And never a lighter foot tripped through a dance;
 Her smiles and her ways were so modest and winning,
 That every one loved sweet Aleen at a glance.
 Her face was the brightest at harvest or Maying,
 Her form ever first at the gate of the poor;
 And many a heart in its passionate praying,
 Blessed Aleen O'Conner the pride of Glenmore.
 How often through wide daisied fields we went roaming,
 While the sweetest of blooms 'mong her tresses I'd twine;
 And up through the meadows we'd come in the gloaming,
 Her little hand lovingly lying in mine.
 But never again save by Memory's token,
 'Till life's latest spark shall be smouldering burned,
 Will the chain be unknit which sorrow has broken,
 For the fruit of love's flowers to ashes have turned.
 To-day's sunlight fades ere the storm of to-morrow,
 And soon o'er my life will grief's somber wings spread;
 My young heart was crushed 'neath the weight of its sorrow.
 When they told me sweet Aleen O'Conner was dead,
 But long years have fled, and the wild dunes cover
 The last resting place of my Aleen's fair form;
 Though deep are Time's snows on the brow of her lover,
 His heart for sweet Aleen forever is warm.

"Morley's" Letter From New York.

[FROM OUR OWN REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.]
 NEW YORK, June 18, 1879.
 SUMMER AT LAST.
 I would like to quote the "oldest inhabitant," but it would be useless; nobody would believe him, and I venture to say, on my personal responsibility, that I do not remember so remarkable a season. We have worn overcoats during the past week, and three days before had perspired under Panamas at ninety-seven in the shade. People get ready for the seashore one day, and the next put on their winter flannels. But now Summer has apparently come to stay till after Fourth of July, and Ice Company stock is buoyant once more.
 "WATER FARMING."
 If the title sounds funny the subject is so interesting that I profoundly regret my inability to do it justice. It is a "coming issue"—this matter of "Water Farming"—and your farmer readers and city subscribers are alike interested in it. A person not acquainted with this subject would laugh in your face if you should tell him that a three acre frog pond could be made to yield more profit to a farmer than a three acre potato patch; and that a stream of water could be "cultivated" to his great pecuniary advantage. Yet this is all as true as any fact in life. Fish are the most prolific of living creatures. A single sturgeon contains nearly ten million eggs, cod and herring millions, shad hundred of thousands, and even trout and bass several thousands. A pond or stream can be stocked with trout, bass, salmon and other fresh water fish, or eggs of the same at practically no cost to the owner. With good management these can all be hatched, and in some cases in a very few days. Once hatched the fish provide for themselves; they need neither food nor care, and they convert worthless insects and waste water grasses into the healthiest of human food. The trout or bass in a farmer's pond cost him nothing but the trouble of catching, and compare favorably on his table with his choicest poultry or pork that has cost him constant care and expense. Trout sell at their season here at 75 cents a pound, and often higher, and all fresh water fish find a good market at fair prices. The only loss of time or labor is in the catching, and to reduce this it is only necessary to make the fish abundant.
 For the encouragement of fish culture, the Government and many of the States have provided hatching houses from which young trout, bass and other fish are furnished in any desired quantity at only the cost of packing and freight.
 A dozen farmers or gentlemen owning country seats might, by the most trifling expense, combine and fill their ponds and streams with young fish that would multiply faster than they could catch them, and thus furnish luscious food for their own tables while affording profitable occupation for the "small boys" of the house, who could often earn as much with their hook and line as a full grown man would in the cornfield.
 We have a fine hatching establishment and a Board of State Fish Commissioners, who are only too anxious that people should avail themselves of this important addition to the already long list of profitable farm products.
 ROBERTY AS A FINE ART.
 New York does nothing by halves—except mind her own business. She sits on two of the most magnificent water fronts in the world and sings "Pinafore," while ten miles of wretched, rotten, rat-eaten wharves drive away her commerce. That's her business! Thousands of her little children are murdered by overcrowded and ill ventilated school-rooms, and she seems satisfied. That is "her business," too! She—well, both sides of your paper would not begin to tell how gloriously she leaves undone whatever in her corporate capacity she ought to do; and if I must draw the line somewhere it might as well be over her poor children's graves as anywhere. But when you come to private enterprise the scene changes. Fabulous sums and boundless energies are poured like water upon the thundering, dripping wheel that drives the furious, overstimulated civilization of the hour. It matters little whether the enterprise be good or evil, it is elevated by sharp competition and the attraction of acute minds to a fine art or science. Robbery is one of these fine arts now being rescued from low mediocrity. It is indeed entitled to be classed among the exact sciences. Our thieves are skillful, trained, ambitious; and are the one body of men not to be disparaged. They know when every banker puts up his exchanges; when every merchant sends his cash to bank; when every manufacturer draws out his wagon money, and the habits of nearly every man worth robbing. They are content to wait weeks or months for the safest and fattest time for plundering their victims. Court records have proven all these a thousand times. In sober earnest I aver that whomever they deem it profitable and safe to rob will be robbed; and he who boasts he cannot be robbed simply shows how little he knows of life in great cities. An acquaintance of mine who had frequently made that boast was robbed twice in one day last month. Men who are "awfully smart" may baffle the thieves, provided they wear valuables only in the waist-coat, button up tight, resolutely refuse to think of anything else, and are incapable of being thrown off their guard. But a man cannot go through life with no thought but of "pickpockets" in his mind. If these gentry think it worth while to have your watch or pocketbook, they are going to have it—that's all.

 All these thieves are well known to the police, but the blue coats are believed to be in alliance with them, and several recent investigations develop the fact that there are professional burglars on the police force, known to have plied their nefarious arts on their own beats, and yet neither imprisoned nor even removed from the force! There are many excellent and noble men on the force, but as a body they have sadly degenerated in the past few years; and when Gotham, sometime in the dim future, makes up its mind to attend to its own business, it will have a lively time looking after the accomplished criminals who have graduated during the present reign of police inefficiency.
 MORLEY.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16, 1879.
 A thorough examination of the appropriation bills concocted by the Ex-Confederate managers of the House, and forced through without time for investigation or discussion, reveals so much malicious mischief that the Republicans of the Senate propose to discuss and expose their objectionable points. The general appropriation bill, with the judicial expenses and the political features left out so as not to endanger the precious salaries of the Confederate Congress, was passed on Friday, but not until Senators Blaine, Conkling and Windom had ridiculed it through and through, because of its incongruous, ungrammatical and unexplainable character. Senator Blaine roundly denounced it as a disgrace to legislation, and said it would cost more to interpret it than an extra week's session of Congress would cost. But as there is nothing positively dangerous in it, the President will approve it if he can be assured that the account-officers of the Treasury can understand it. The Army bill which has passed the House and is now in the Senate, is considered by the Secretary of War, upon an informal investigation, as in no sense interfering with the execution of the law it is intended to embarrass. Many Senators, however, claim that the bill virtually suspends the authority of the President over the Army, and that this of itself would justify a veto. They will oppose it at every stage, and it is thought the President will not approve it with its clauses prohibiting the use of the money appropriated for purposes clearly within his authority. Of the supplemental judicial bill, Attorney General Devens says that if it becomes a law in its present shape it will suspend the operations of all the Federal courts after July 1. The jury clause, he says, would prevent the execution of internal revenue laws, and would render prosecutions, in which political interests were involved, absolutely useless. The Republican Senators take the same view and will assail this scheme to cripple the Federal power, and there seems to be little doubt that the bill will be disapproved. Some of the Democrats still threaten that if this or any one of the bills is vetoed they will adjourn and throw the responsibility of their failure on the President. The President in that case, so his friends say, would call another extra session of Congress within twenty-four hours, especially as any failure of means to carry on the Courts would be attended with the most disastrous results. There remains but sixteen days of the present fiscal year, and within this time Congress must yield to the necessities of the Government. The Democrats are loth to back down from their position, but it is untenable, and they must surrender or accept the consequences usually attending a very mean and a very lame conspiracy.

 The Democrats are greatly disturbed by the silver question. The inflation wing has scolded and abused the hard money wing until Mr. Bayard, chairman of the Finance Committee, wrote his resignation, and a caucus had to be held to devise means to heal the wound. It is not definitely known what was done, but it is guessed that Bayard will consent to report the bill and let the softs discuss it, and then be voted down. The party is rent in twain on this question and is likely to stay so through the next Presidential campaign. The feeling against each other in these hard and soft wings is very ugly.
 Ben Hill, like many another Confederate, went wooling the other day and came home fleeced. He accused Mr. Blaine of misrepresenting the Confederate records. Mr. Blaine in return read from those records to show that Ben Hill had been the worst kind of a secessionist—one who had demanded the most humiliating submission on the part of the North as a condition of remaining in the Union. Hill's friends are mourning over the fate of their hero who has been all along claiming so much credit for what he did against secession. It seems as if Providence had sent us these rebel chiefs to awaken the North to the danger which these men are threatening.
 MAXWELL.

Recreation Again.

[For the SOUTH JERSEY REPUBLICAN.]
 This we have said could be obtained by entertainment, amusement and exercise. The word entertainment suggests the idea of pleasure and gratification. "I was entertained at the house of Mr. Jones," don't mean that I was fed on dried huckleberries and put to sleep on a hat rack. It means that I found something good and enjoyable—good food, good bed and a social element that imparted refreshment and pleasure, and I came away gratified. When Mr. Brown made an entertainment he didn't treat the invited company to pepper, denunciation and dumb screws. When I say I went to an entertainment, I don't mean I was at a funeral and looked on a corpse and heard a funeral homily. Perhaps there are some people who are entertained by a funeral service, but they are a little more grace-like than we care to be. We don't consider that nature worth a copy—it is an idiosyncrasy. The pure and well balanced mind is not entertained by what is grave, solemn and distressing, but by what is sprightly, elegant and humorous. We may be entertained by instrumental music that is without the possibility of humor, or by singing, because of the high-toned and elevating sentiment, and the beauty of the execution, where there is not a syllable of wit; or by a lecture because of its happy thought and the eloquence, and arousing power of the speaker, though there may not be a sentence to excite laughter. But the best and most popular intellectual entertainment is that which furnishes good instruction and excites the emotion of sympathy and humor.—Pathos and humor have made John B. Gough the world-renowned orator that he is. No man living can draw on the multitude as he can. Spurgeon, Beecher and Talmage have an abundant fund of pathos and genuine wit, and indulge them freely, hence their large audiences and numerous admirers. The lecture as a rule does not draw because it is too dry. A house full cannot be obtained unless the speaker has a reputation of making other people laugh. Enough grave instruction can be had from the pulpit and prayer-meeting lecture. In our musical and lecture entertainments we want much of these two elements—pathos and wit. These are recreating to burdened and weary nature. It does us good to laugh and weep. Amusing recreation, intellectual or physical, are sought after and are highly satisfactory and beneficial.—We like to have our ribs tickled—we love to laugh. There is a humorous side to every nature. Some are studiously grave; they suppress true feeling, they avoid all amusing entertainment and injure themselves. Laugh is good—it shakes us up and gives action to dormant powers, nerves and muscles. Like some bottles of medicine we need "to be well shaken before taken." The shaking brings to the surface what is good. The humorous part of our nature is not in the constitution of this life—it has its ridiculous side. Everywhere and almost every day we see something to laugh about. Those who avoid diversion, and amusing entertainments doubtless make a mistake and put away one of the best of medicines for health of mind and body. I rejoice, while I write, to hear the hearty laughter of my five-year old daughter, who is being entertained in play by a neighbor's funny boy. I give her plenty of that myself and very little of the doctor and his potions.
 A Chinaman never swears when he gets m.w.l. because there are no "cuss-words" in his dictionary. He simply opens his wash tub, butts the bottom out, kicks a dog and lets it rot.

The Republican.

H. E. BOWLER, M. D., Editor in Chief. H. C. DOLB, Associate Editor. H. G. DOLB, Business Manager. SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1879.

The Memphis Atlantic cable diary of the New York Sun, the chief blandish chaker in the country, and says by comparison Zach Chandler, Blaine and Conger are jinks of conservatism.

It is reported that inferior European goods are marked "American" and exported for sale in several countries of Europe, as a means to prevent competition.

Mr. Blackburn plaintively says that if the people of the South are deprived of the privilege of the United States Government, they would become a nation of outcasts. Why then, in the name of all that is reasonable, don't they stop shouting that the war settled nothing, and get down on their marrow bones and give thanks that the people of the North saved them from being the outcasts they would have been had the rebellion had been a success?—Com. Advertiser.

In the Republican caucus to nominate a candidate for United States Senator from New Hampshire, Henry W. Blair was nominated on the ninth ballot. Mr. Blair was born in 1834, received a fair education and was admitted to the practice of law in 1859. He was the Gratton Co. Attorney in 1860, and served in the Union Army as Lieutenant Colonel of the Fifteenth New Hampshire Regiment. He has served in both Houses of the State Legislature and was a member of the Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth Congresses.

Prof. Samuel A. King, the far famed aronout, is to make a series of experiments during this season, which, if successful, will be preliminary to an attempt, on his part, to cross the ocean in a balloon during the year 1880 or 1881. To better secure extended observations, the Manhattan Beach Improvement Company, on Long Island, a short distance from New York City, has extended the privilege of a space on their grounds at that season of the year to Mr. King, who will be accompanied by his wife and children, which he ascends and makes his observations, by which he expects to obtain sufficient knowledge of the upper air to enable him to reach the coast of Europe, or go to any other place.

There is imminent danger that when Congress declines to admit the bill, it will be so left as to necessitate the calling of another extra session by the President. The Democrats ought to be aware, by this time, of the fact that Mr. Hayes intends to have the necessary appropriations made and without signing the death warrant of the presidential powers at the same time too. The efforts to restrict the Constitutional rights of the President have been often enough, and in different times, to prove their utter impracticability in bringing about the desired end at present any how. A square back down is the only recourse for the Democrats now, and the sooner it is over the easier it will be for their ruffled feelings.

Ex-Governor Dingley, of Maine, who has just returned from abroad, says that John Bright declared to him that "America is bound to the country of the future." Mr. Dingley adds that it is surprising to listen to the favorable comments upon America which are now heard in Europe. Not many years ago our country was spoken of slightly and ever with derision. All this has changed. An American hears his country spoken of with approbation and even glory. Americans are treated with a respect and courtesy that is shown to few foreigners. Everywhere he went in nearly every railroad car, in hotels, on the streets, he heard a discussion of the prospects of America, with such remarks as these: "What a wonderful country!" "How rapidly America is developing!"

Edward Haulon has won the great eulging match on the Tyne that gives him the championship of the world. Now to read the accounts of the lionizing bestowed on the lucky winner, one would suppose him to be a great man, pre-eminent above most mortals in the glories of this world. Perhaps he is, but we never heard that he was particularly fitted to fill any very exalted position by any qualities save those of an extraordinarily fine physical development and his prowess at the oars. While we agree that it is perfectly right, and perfectly proper that he, and others distinguished in a similar manner, should receive a due amount of attention, yet we consider that there is such a thing as carrying it too far. This fashion of distinguishing prominent sporting characters in a manner fitting to the highest dignitaries of a nation, is becoming a little too prevalent and might profitably be modified a little.

The President remarks with exasperating nonchalance that if Congress wishes to sit all Summer he won't mind it, as he has no intention of leaving Washington before September. Congress is unable to do this sort of session, especially when the whole country is shouting: "Back down and clear out!"—N. Y. Tribune.

CUMBERLAND MUTUAL Fire Insurance Comp'y.

BRIDGETON, N. J.

Conducted on strictly mutual principles, offering a perfectly safe insurance for just what it may cost to pay losses and expenses. The proportion of loss to the amount insured being very small, and expense much less than usually had, nothing can be offered more favorable to the insured.

The cost being about ten cents on the hundred dollars per year to the insured on ordinary risks, and from fifteen to twenty-five cents per year on hazardous properties, which is less than one-third of the lowest rates charged by stock companies, on such risks—the object being to insure for a profit.

The guarantee fund of premium notes being now Three Millions of Dollars.

If an assessment had to be made of five per cent, only twice within the ten years for which the policy is issued, it would yet be cheaper to the members than any other insurance offered.

And that large amount of money is stored to the members and kept at home. No assess ment having ever been made, being now more than thirty years, that saving would amount to more than

One Million Five Hundred Thousand Dollars

The Losses by Lightning.

Where the property is not set on fire, being less than one cent per year to each member, are paid without extra charge, and extended so as to cover all policies that are issued and outstanding.
