Rev. Thos. S. Cline preached in the M. E. Church last Sunday evening, by invitation of the pastor. A number of his former schoolmates and friends formed a part of the audience, and listened to a very good sermon. The solo by Miss May Bishop was ably rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wightman, of Hornellsville, N. Y., spent a few days with W. T. Davison and family, on their honeymoon trip. Mr. W. is teller in the First National Bank in his thriving city; Mrs. W. is a niece of Mr. Davison.

During the thunder storm last week, a fine young willow tree but a few feet from Dr. J. A. Waas' residence was struck by lightning. The tree was not shattered, in the least, but was so burned that it turned black and died. A narrow escape for the house.

The people who saw the races on June 6th, at the Park saw just as good racing as can be seen at any meet in this vicinity. Those on the 4th of July will be of the same high order, and all who wish to spend a delightful afternoon will do well to visit the Park. Races commence at 3 p. m., sharp.

The second anniversary of the ordination of Rev. J. C. Killian was celebrated on Tuesday evening, at the Baptist parsonage. About thirty-five members of the Church and congregation met at Mr. L. Beverage's, and walked over to the pastors' in a body, taking him completely by surprise. After a good program and a social time, the company adjourned to the dining room, where a table was spread with eatables. It was late when the visitors dispersed, with words of appreciation and kind wishes for the pastor.

The Woman's Relief Corps had their State meeting and election of officers last week Thursday, at Asbury Park. There was a large attendance and great enthusiasm. South Jersey had never been recognized in the distribution of offices and there seemed to be a disposition to slight us again; but Mrs. A. H. Sutton, President of our local Corps, was present, and "took a hand" in proceedings, which resulted in three South Jersey women being enrolled among the honored. Mrs. Sutton being elected a member of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Reuben Woolman, of Philadelphia, an enthusiastic geologist, was in Hammonton this week, on business, and incidentally investigated the rumored discovery of buried forests at Winslow Junction. He found better foundation for the discovery than did another recent searcher for long buried history. The buried forests actually exist, and Mr. Woolman spent some time very pleasantly and profitably in the clay pits where the deposit is found, and carried away numerous specimens for further study.

Perhaps Prof. Morcer, of the University of Pennsylvania, was not disgusted with the result of his search for the "Indian canoe" so extensively advertised as found near DaCosta two weeks ago; but his language indicated something far less than satisfaction. After viewing the fragments, he said, in substance: "It might have been an Indian canoe; possibly a dug-out; or it might have been the work of a later white man or negro; or it may be the remains of a dead tree: there is absolutely nothing about it of historic value, or to prove its origin." One of the discoverers, when asked how he came to find it, replied, "I really don't remember." Then came the natural question, "Why, how long ago was it?" and his reply: "Oh, about four years, I guess." So much for the wonderful rolls of by-gone days.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

The Presbyterian Sunday School held their exercises on Sunday evening, 14th inst, though rain interfered somewhat. The programme, entitled "The Good Shepherd," proved very interesting.

Last Sunday morning the Methodist Sunday School presented "The Young Crusaders." Each division of the army reported through its commander. All parts were well carried out, and the whole constituted an intensely practical sermon on our duty to each other, to our God, and to our country, and appeared to be appreciated.

The Baptists' programme, on Sunday morning, was unusually interesting. The floral decorations, though not profuse, were tasteful. A fourteen foot boat, with masts and ropes, with evergreens, boquets, and floral pieces, were in the foreground, and used to illustrate a dialogue on "The Voyage of Life." The music was excellent; the primary department's exercises were particularly enjoyable.

The Universalist Church was beautifully decorated with flowers and a number of singing birds added their music to the occasion. The children's exercises were highly appreciated by a good sized audience. The work of the younger ones reflected much credit upon their teacher, Mrs. Berry.

The "Golden Rule" Band of Mercy meeting, which was postponed from Thursday on account of the weather, will be held in the Baptist Church on Thursday afternoon next, July 2nd, at 4:15, if pleasant. A good programme has been prepared, consisting of addresses, readings, and recitations. Every one—old and young—is invited to attend. Queen Victoria is a member of the Band of Mercy, in England.

Mr. R. G. Hyde, a former Hammontonian, was in town yesterday, canvassing the matter of numbering the houses in town. It is a good scheme, and he met with much encouragement. Council will be asked, to-night, to make some necessary arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sherlock, of Elmer, tender thanks to Hammonton friends who attended the funeral of their son George, in West Philadelphia, and to those who sent floral tributes and kind words.

Several of the graduates of our high school have expressed the intention of attending the High School next year if a suitable course be prepared. This will be done. An advanced course will be provided in Latin, mathematics, literature, and other subjects of study which will be determined at the opening of the term, and will meet as far as possible, the individual needs and desires of the advanced course pupils. If those who are thinking of taking this proposed advanced course will notify Mr. Krebs, the Principal, as soon as possible, it will assist him materially in arranging the studies to meet their desires.

On Tuesday, Jacob Eckhardt's horse, attached to one of his meat wagons, ran away, starting in front of his owner's market. He came down Bellevue at a rattling pace, and just in front of Rutherford's the wagon struck the rear wheels of O. C. Combs' light wagon, turning it wrong side up and throwing his horse. The meat wagon was turned on its side and the horse released, but didn't care to run far. Damage very trifling; excitement terrific! crowd great! Mr. Combs had but just taken his little daughter from the wagon; and one could not help a thankful thrill as his neighbor ejaculated—"Oh, what if—!"

WANNING OF THE HONEYMOON.

Polly's pointing, Polly's dooming. If I love her—so she said; When I proffer—so the scoffer, Polly shies and shakes her head.

THE GOOD OLD TIMES.

Farmer Blewitt was a little, dried-up, leathery old man, and he used to wear a red coat and a black hat.

"Come, father, we must get at that piece of wheat and cut it!" Blewitt got up and yawned and followed his son to the barnyard.

"What in the nation are you doing with those old stables?" said Blewitt. One of the boys looked at him and said: "Doin' 'em."

"Why, durn it!" said Blewitt, "you can never run those bundles through a threshing machine!"

"Thrashin' machines?" said Charley, "why you know as well as I do that I shall have to thrash this wheat out mornin' and night while going to school this winter."

"Blewitt was a man of determination, and he arose from the lounge and went to the door to consult with his wife.

"Well, then, who is President of these United States?" "Why, John Adams, of course," said Blewitt.

"Doin' 'em!" said his wife, "why spintin', of course. I must get out forty yards of full cloth for you and the boys and twenty yards of pressed flannel for me and the girls."

of a rapier or a thrusting machine or cars. On the lounge at the house he himself down and tried to calmly think things over.

"Don't you know bleedin' was played out fifty years ago?" said Blewitt. "How he wanders," said the Doctor.

"What do you want of such blamed pictures as this?" said Blewitt from the lounge. "Why don't you go down to Takom's at Albany and get photographs?"

"Why, you know," said Mrs. Blewitt. "Why has he been in jail for debt for the last ten years?"

"Why, husband, the mail goes only once a week, and then he will be three days coming up on the stage, and furthermore, it will cost a shilling—12 cents—to send a letter to Albany."

There is one little dream of a beautiful dream. "Rub-a-dub!" it goes; There is one little dream of a big sugar-plum.

And dolles peep out of those wee little dream. With laughter and singing; And loats go floating on silvery streams.

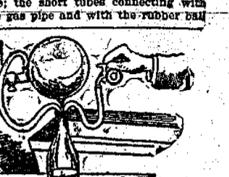

Would you dream all these dreams that are toy and dream? They'll come to you sleeping; So that the two eyes that are weary, my sweet.

Great Pedestrian. A well-known figure of Bishop Phillips Brooks represents him as saying "It is not likely that any very honest truth, when a very honest man has presented for his admiration, 'Well, that is a baby!'"

Jewels in London Banks. A prominent article by Mrs. Langtry against the Union Bank of London in respect of her lost jewels, it may be of interest to state that there is at present in the strong room of one of the oldest private banks in London a large quantity of jewels, plate and other valuables, which were deposited for safe custody by French refugees shortly before the outbreak of the revolution.

Chilly Travelling in Norway. It is cheaper than in any other European country.

Almost every child has endeavored at some time to fill a toy balloon, which had been purchased on the street for them, by holding it over the gas jet but the balloon, to the child's astonishment, has refused to fill. This is because there is not sufficient pressure.

FILLING A TOY BALLOON.

which is to be filled, while the water jet is connected with the third tube, reaching almost to the bottom of the bottle.

With this bottle the filling becomes easy enough. After the gas has filled the bottle it is turned off, and the water opposite is turned on, and the water in the bottle rises, forcing the gas, which has no other way out, through the short tube into the balloon; when sufficiently filled it is held with a string, taking care to place six others, which are then fastened to the ceiling, where these balloons are stored until wanted for commercial purposes.

When he had done brushing his moustache and smoothing his finger nails Raymond closed one of his dried cigars and lit it, while casting a sorrowful look at the others—those which he was not to smoke. Then he turned himself on his divan and began to reflect.

He looked down at his diagonal pants and white Marseilles vest and muttered, as he went to the house: "These are times will do for me!"

And now Prof. Lombroso has stirred a hornet's nest about his ears. They are vigorous and vindictive hornets, for they have boiling in their veins the fire of the world's wrongs.

THE AMBIGUOUS STORY.

THE DOCTOR'S FALSE PROPHECY.

AWAKENING from a state of lethargy, Comte Raymond de Villeneuve beheld his doctor gazing on him sadly.

"I have once more," breathed the Comte, and he smiled as he stretched out his arms.

"My poor friend," sighed the Doctor, "I am glad to see you are well, but you are not to be so easily satisfied."

"I am, Comtesse de Villeneuve!" He rose from his seat, very pale. "Odette!" he exclaimed.

But the young woman remained standing on the threshold, her features contracted with anger.

"A trick! What do you mean?" "You wrote me word that you were flying, and I find you up and well, writing your letters. Good-by, sir."

"Miss Bertha, do you know that I really have no proof that I existed previously to the fifteenth century, and the oldest known painting in which it appears is a portrait of a lady in the academy at Venice, painted by Caspar Brant in about 1525. The legend concerning the origin of the art is as follows: A young fisherman of the 'Statio' was betrothed to a young anguist, full girl of one of the lakes of the goon. Industrious as she was beautiful, the girl made a new net for her lover, who took it with him on board his boat. The first time he cast it into the sea he dragged out a large, exquisite petried a sick grass which he hastened to present to his fiancée. But war breaking out he was pressed into the service of the Venetian navy. The poor girl, seeing the departure of her lover and contemplating his last gift to her, Duw while absorbed in following the intricate tracery of the wreck grass began to weep. And amidst the threads weighted with small beads which hung around her net. Little by little she wrought an imitation of the petrification, and thus was created the loblin lace.

"Mrs. Winkles doesn't approve of the theater," said the observant woman. "What makes you think that?" "I was with her when she purchased her new hat. She bought a little bit of a thing."—Washington Star.

THE CREAM OF CURRENT HUMOR.

It is probable that in a great majority of cases biliousness, so called, has no relation to trouble with the liver, but is, in fact, nothing more than a lack of digestion. This is because the absorption of these germs of putrefaction by the blood which gives rise to the familiar phenomena of biliousness; and because the poison is generated and exerts its influence in the system before the process is called auto-infection.

As we all know, if the food taken into the stomach is not properly digested, it undergoes fermentation. The absorption of these germs of putrefaction by the blood which gives rise to the familiar phenomena of biliousness; and because the poison is generated and exerts its influence in the system before the process is called auto-infection.

In treating an acute attack of biliousness the digestive canal must be immediately relieved of its unmanageable burden by an emetic or a brisk cathartic—or in some cases by both. After this has been thoroughly done we may ally the irritation of the stomach, which has caused the vomiting, by swallowing bits of ice or draughts of some acid drink, like un-sweetened lemonade. The headache and feverishness will usually disappear with the relief of the stomach and bowels. Rest and quiet will complete the cure.

Repeated attacks of biliousness are liable to be excited by some organic disorder, especially of the heart or liver, and affections of these organs should be carefully excluded by a medical examination.

A Legend About Lace-making. Lace-making is by no means so old an industry as most persons suppose. There is no proof that it existed previously to the fifteenth century, and the oldest known painting in which it appears is a portrait of a lady in the academy at Venice, painted by Caspar Brant in about 1525. The legend concerning the origin of the art is as follows: A young fisherman of the 'Statio' was betrothed to a young anguist, full girl of one of the lakes of the goon. Industrious as she was beautiful, the girl made a new net for her lover, who took it with him on board his boat. And amidst the threads weighted with small beads which hung around her net. Little by little she wrought an imitation of the petrification, and thus was created the loblin lace.

An Apple's Strategy for a Meal. In the Transvaal some of the fruit gardens are much exposed to the ravages of large synanthropic apes, and a good guard has to be kept, and the fruit is often lost. In some of these gardens grow certain shrubs which are much affected by wasps, the insects liking to attach themselves to them. These wasps, though small, have a very venomous sting. Baboons have often been noticed eating fruit in one certain garden, but feared to gather for fear of attracting the assaults of wasps. One morning the farmer heard terrible cries, and with the aid of a good field glass he witnessed the following tragedy: A large, venerable baboon, chief of the band, was catching the ranging apes and sticking them into the shrubs whereon hung the wasp's nests. This he repeated again and again, in spite of the most piteous cries from his victims. Of course the wasps assumed the defensive in swarms, and the baboon was obliged to throw fragmentary remains to some female and young baboons a little further off.—Westminster Budget.

Who Gets the Knew. "Mrs. Winkles doesn't approve of the theater," said the observant woman. "What makes you think that?" "I was with her when she purchased her new hat. She bought a little bit of a thing."—Washington Star.

"I should think," she said sympathetically to the young man who acts, "that you would get tired of saying the same thing over and over." "I'm answered with positive sadness, 'It isn't that that makes us tired. It's hearing the same thing over and over when we ask for the salary that never comes.'"—Washington Star.

For Accurate Information. Mrs. Walker (sighing)—Half the world doesn't know how the other half lives. Mr. Walker—Don't you get on your sewing society and find out.—Harper's Bazar.

A PATENT

PEACH CARRIER OR CRATE.

The long-felt want for something better than a tottering small bottomed basket for shipping Peaches in, has been found at last, in the shape of a crate that holds two baskets. This carrier has a spring bottom, like a buck-board, that prevents fruit from being bruised in transit,—on wagon or cars, on the way to market. It is light, but very strong, and intended for a return package. The cover is hinged on, which saves the annoyance of tying or wiring covers on baskets.
Price complete, $15 per 100.
Baskets for carriers, $3.50 per 100.
Sample can be seen at Brown & Co.'s store. For sale by

BASE BALL.

HAMMONTON VS. ENERGETIC A. A.
At last the spell has been broken, and the Hammontons were beaten last Saturday through the energetic work of the Energetic A. A.

It was a good deal luck, and bad luck at that, that our boys lost the game. It was about nip and tuck before the eighth inning, when Brown left and Geppert took his place. The change in the affairs of the game can hardly be attributed entirely to the new pitcher, though the visitors began then to hit safely, and Gartside, our new catcher, who had been doing very well, could hardly hold Geppert.

A number of errors were made in the beginning of the game but they now began to multiply. Cunningham led off in the eighth with his overthrow to 1st which was found after Fredrick had tallied. Four runs were counted in the two innings on passed balls, and two scored on Naylor's muff of Davis' fly. The same ill luck which seemed to attend our boys in the field, carrying the visitors' hits out of our fielders' reach, seemed to drop our brilliant drives right into the mits of their outside sentinels. Their fielders had nine put out. Willis squeezed Holland in the second and fifth, and Conley and Watt in the ninth. Fredrick elicited considerable applause by his catch of Watt in the sixth; he also mitted Gartside in the seventh and Cunningham in the eighth. Watt distinguished himself by running catches of Esper in the fourth and Frederick in the sixth and fine throws to 1st,—in the latter case in time to shut the runner off from first. Maths caught Willis in ninth. Notwithstanding the number of errors made by our team (which were not so overwhelming after all), the game was very interesting.

A party of Hammonton's young- or roughs visited Mr. Davison's home one evening this week, and made a hideous racket with stones in tin cans, etc. They demanded "Drink!" The reason—if there was a reason—was that he was entertaining his niece, and husband, who were on their wedding tour. Mr. Davison has the names of the boys.
