HARD PUSHER

A. C. YATES & Co.,

Now only corner 13th and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia.

It requires "hard pushing" to dispose of poor wares. All sorts of schemes are devised to "palm off" inferior clothing upon the unwary.

At Yates', corner Thirteenth and Chestnut Streets, schemes are not in vogue—the goods sell themselves. They are gotten up with great care, are superior in every way, and still are sold at moderate prices.

Correspondence.

[The following extracts from letters written from Harrisburg, Pa., by Carl Moore, have been on our desk for several weeks; and this seems to be an appropriate time to publish them.]

This is one of the handsomest cities in Pennsylvania. There are many large hotels, about forty-five churches, 250 school-rooms, besides several private schools. Here is the State Asylum for the Insane, Industrial Home, Arsenal, and many other buildings of note and importance.

Up along the Susquehanna is one of the most beautiful drives imaginable. You can see miles on miles of farms and hills, with the Blue Ridge Mountains and their ever changing colors, in the back ground. At the summit of Capitol Park stands the State Capitol. A splendid statue of marble, in memory of the soldiers who fought in the war with Mexico, stands in this park, and is surrounded by a fence built entirely of muskets used during that war. It is a very interesting thing to look at; and if those muskets could speak, what stories do you think they might tell? This park contains about fifteen acres, the property of the state. It has several fountains, well arranged beds of landscape gardening, beautiful walks and drives, scores of comfortable seats under the shade of magnificent trees. It is a very popular resort during the summer evenings—particularly for the young people.

From the dome of the capitol a scene of beauty is spread out before you. The river for miles is in full view; the city from center to circumference, with its parks, the buildings, smoking chimney stacks, busy work-shops, and lively streets, while in the distance can be seen Steelton, with its immense iron foundries, together with green fields and gentle slopes of the Cumberland valley, making a picture once seen, never forgotten.

I have been thinking of you all to day and wish I could see you "at home." Last Sunday, the sun was shining brightly into my room when I awoke. I listened for sounds below, all quiet. Outside I heard the heavy rumble of wagons from the ice factory, going into the city. Now and then the sound of the milkman's bell reached my ear; then I heard a steady hum, like a buzz-saw, as the electric car came up the hill. I jump out of bed, hastily bathe and dress, then throw open the windows to get the glorious fresh morning air.

After breakfast I start out for a long walk, turning my steps towards Vernon Street beyond the new Industrial Home, an institution which, when finished, will be for the care and education of homeless children. After crossing the railroad at Seventeenth Street I begin to smell green-grass and blossoms. Over head, on the trees, birds are singing gaily; now and then a "Bob White" adds his cheery whistle to the tuneful melody of the bird concert; bees hum lazily to and fro among the early flowers. In the great green pastures, now graced with golden dandelions and blue violets, sparkling with dew like gems in the rays of the morning sun. The cattle graze on the fresh green grass as if it were a delicious luxury after their dry winter fodder. I walk on till I come to a tall gate, then turning to the left, Cherry Hill stands in front of me. Up I go, over fences, across pastures and fields, until I reach the top. Far beneath me lies the landscape; the view is grand. Truly do I love nature. She speaks to us in language better felt and understood than we can translate or describe. From where I stand I can count twelve small towns, scattered here and there. Along the West lies the Blue Ridge. I am never tired of looking at the mountains, and love them more and more.

One short week ago I was at home with you. It beats all how time flies. When I was younger, and a boy at school, time always seemed to drag so slow—now it seems to have taken wings, and to fairly fly. A week is gone before we realize it. I went to the dedication of the Bethlehem Lutheran Tabernacle, enjoyed it very much. The music was grand indeed. The building cost $24,000. The immense organ alone cost $4,000. There were seats for 1700 people, and it was crowded.

Be not a long life, but a good one. The life free from care, and from any buffetings of fortune, is a dead one.

A man never gets what he hoped for by doing wrong, or if he seems to do so he gets something more that spoils it all.

True religion shows its influence in every part of our conduct; it is like the sap of a living tree, which penetrates the most distant boughs.

The home ought to be a harbor of rest; but if the wife has to make it so for the husband, none the less ought the husband to make it so for his wife.

Twenty-five years ago, the idea of producing silks in this country was laughed at. To-day we are one of the largest manufacturers of silk goods in the world, and the prices are about one-half of what they were, and the goods much better. This is one of the results of protection.

An application will be made to the next Legislature for the passage of a law requiring the list of delinquent taxpayers to be posted in every saloon and hotel in the ward or township where such delinquent resides, and the sale of any intoxicating liquors to such men shall forfeit the license of every person so selling.

The First Step.

Perhaps you are run down, can't eat, can't sleep, can't think, can't do anything for your satisfaction, and you wonder what ails you. You should heed the warning. You are taking the first step into nervous prostration. You need more tonic and health-giving Bitters. You will find the exact remedy for restoring your nervous system to its normal healthy condition. Surprising results follow the use of the great, nerve tonic and alterative. Your appetite returns, good digestion is restored, and the liver and kidneys resume healthy action. Try a bottle. Price, 50 cents, at any drug store.

To the Sleepless.

After having expended one thousand dollars for various medicines, and with various doctors, and growing worse all the while, I considered my case incurable. I was induced to try Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. After their use for six weeks I can eat meat without distress, a thing that has not occurred before for years. I believe I am nearly cured, and yet it seems too good to be true. I have no doubt but that much of the sleepless people complain of is caused by indigestion. J. W. BRADLEY, Centre Market, Newark, N. J.

Ducklin's Arnica-Salve, the best sale in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns, and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price, 25 cents per box. For sale by all druggists.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of consumption, bronchitis, catarrh, asthma and all throat and lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for nervous debility and all nervous complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has for the relief of suffering humanity, and to the glory of his country, prepared a full and complete directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by adding with stamp (naming this paper) W. A. NOYES, 820 Powers Block, Rochester, N. Y.

After suffering for years with the worst form of dyspepsia, such as indigestion, flatulency, vertigo, acid stomach, etc. I came across Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills. Using them as directed 2 months, and with great relief. Would not be without and cheerfully recommend to any suffering with the above symptoms. JAMES HENDERSON, Notions and Hardware, 153 Newark Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

If this should meet the eye of any one who would like to buy a fine business property, let him write to the Editor of the REPUBLICAN for particulars.

SAND CASTLES.
By GEORGE HILL.
Long since, in my childhood, there rambled An old maid (fair beside the blue sea, And never was a more innocent part Of overtures than who loved unaware.
What pleasures we found as enchanted we strayed
What palaces built with our magical spells?
Then often with tears in our eyes had to stand.
White waves overthrew our proud castles of sand.
We grew up together from childhood to youth, My darling was perfect in beauty and truth;
And there, by the sea, her angelic eyes were
The exquisite tale that will never be told.
Yet the tale dawned that would make her my bride.
Her cheek glowed with the out-flowing tide,
And her eyes watched, while Death's piteous hand demolished our dear, love-built castle of sand.
But though we are parted yet still she is mine, At night, through the stars, her angelic eyes shine
Our twin souls in dreamland still keep loving tryst.
And often I wake with my lips still kissed; And so, by-and-by, as in childhood, shall we together walk forth by the sea, her eyes To build on its golden and glittering strand, For ever and ever, love-castles of sand.

A BAG OF DIAMONDS.
He had renewed his courage to the slinking point. After all, what good to the old man was that bag of gems?
What good except to count over, mark their twinkling facets, gloat over their value, and laugh at those who might shake them. Palsied fingers would shake as the strings of the diamond skin treasury were rapturously untied, and its contents—life and energy—flash into pinched cheeks and faded eyes, every evening the revelation of untold wealth waits in a withered heart its only surviving mission. But what good to the world or to the man was that brief minute of ecstasy? Was it not paid for a hundredfold by nights of fear and forebodings of robbery that made life a perpetual horror? How often had Paul heard his uncle wake from his nocturnal nap with a dramatic cry: "My diamonds, my diamonds, is that you Paul? I thought it was a robber!"
His thoughts were to come true tonight. Paul tried to persuade himself that the treasures he had set his heart on belonged to him as much as as if they had been lying in a mine, the prize of the first finder.
Then came another thought. His own poverty and his great love. His uncle's ward was as poor as himself; poor, proud and beautiful. Such flowers only grow in hard and solitary places; in the nipping air, and uncovered even by the obtrusiveness of love. Straight, slender, full-lipped as a rose, with a big soul beaming in her face and eyes, with meek, silent ways, and bearing unflinchingly the blows of an old man's brutal tongue, this girl had presented to the poet's mind the image of power, of profound passion, of untiring constancy such as had enchanted him and transformed his life.

She had been first shy to him then wisely tender, as if she pitied him.
It was in the arbor at the foot of the garden, where he was seated now, behind the hedge of clipped yew, that she had nestled close in his arms, and they had known the first moment of happiness in their deserted lives.
"We must be patient, Paul."
"Patient, did she say? They had been so long enough. His plans were ripe now, and he was watching the light in his uncle's window. The old man would sleep well, he had taken care of that, to-night. If he awoke? Well, that too, was provided for. Old men are not hard to smother. The night, dark and damp, suited dark thoughts.
And the sting of long oppression, the blind feeling of revenge for years of cruel slights and insults, had long engendered such thoughts. And now came a vision of an earthly heaven, the hope of a new life beyond the seas.
"Yes, I will fly with you any time you ask," the girl had said resolutely.
"We shall be happy, rich or poor."
"Not poor. He would provide against that."

The lights in the windows of the mansion awoke now. Even the windows on the ground floor, which open on the piazza, are dark. That is his room. Paul rises from his chair, the dripping jasmine spray that sticks in his neck as he leaves the little study, he makes his heart stop for a moment. He fears even the faint crack of his footsteps on the gravel.
That is a dog baying in the distance, as if suspicious that thieves are about.
He steals past the big pear tree at the corner of the piazza, and tramping in the soft mould of the flower garden, where her jonquils and tulips grew, he creeps breathlessly to the back porch. The outer door is quickly opened. He thrusts out his hand to find the knob of the house door and feeling the taste of the wealthy New York opiate in the fitting of her art gaily wiped a tear from his glass eye.

It was a telling gesture, though the tear was not a tear of sensibility.
"But how did you find out that it was he?" he inquired, softly.
"Hand me that fan and I will tell you. I had come down stairs, hearing a noise and thinking of burglars.
I was brave in those days, and seized a heavy pair of scissors, which I carried dagger-wise. I went to my uncle's room, felt under his pillow and was relieved to find the bag of diamonds safe. Then there was a momentary flash of light, a clatter of a lantern dropped in darkness, and the sound of receding footsteps. I never saw Paul again to this day. The lattern was identified as his. I felt relieved at his flight at the moment.
But, General, you and I are old people, and for my part I can love only once, and you must not speak to me again as you have done to-night." (The Epoc).

BITS OF FUN.
The difference between missions and home church work is this: At home, ministers live off their congregations, but in mission fields the congregations live off the missionaries.—*Pittsburgh

The man who is busy working doesn't have time to read up on the subject of capital and labor, and the man who puts in his time in reading

A man at Monticello, Fla., claims to have a tree which bears quinces, pears and apples. But that's nothing remarkable. A man in this town has a is an apple tree. The species of the Monticello man's tree is not given.— by such language?

Wife—I am only talking as you do, John, if you step a tick when you get up in the morning, or run a splinter fire. Associated as I am, John, in close relations with a man who talks in this style I can't well avoid fol-

Damn it all! The baby has smeared An old vag, who had been in the habit of calling on a certain business man on Griswold street for times asked the other day how much he would like to keep away for all future time. He thought for a moment and then replied:

"Give me fifty cents and I'll never be back again."
"I'll do that. Here—let me draw up a writing to that effect." An agreement was drawn up and the vag, read it over and laid it down with the remark:
"I can't do that. There's something gold-bright about that writing."
"But you agreed to it."
"Yes, I know, but think of a man selling his manhood for fifty cents!"
"How much more do you want?"
"A dollar."
"I'll split the difference with you."
"Well, I'll sign, but I want a provision inserted that I do not hereby lose my self-respect, and that I do not forfeit the right to come up and strike the man in the next room if I get hard up."
It was added, and he signed and went off to strike a free lunch counter.

God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM (Exod. 3:14). And who shall let it? (Isa.
43:13).
All authority has been given unto me (Matt. 28:18). My power is made perfect in weakness (2 Cor. 12:9).
I. Abundantly Exercised:
"I am sick of the folks who succeed
I'm sick of the folks who fail
Of the pitiful laughter of wealth,
And of poverty's pitiful wail."
"I am sick of the folks who leer
At innocence passing by;
I will bar my door to the world;
I will lay me down and die."
But there came a change as he spoke,
And the misty were burned away;
And the midnight darkness of his despair
Was turned to joyous day.
And the sun burst forth once more,
Till his glories filled the skies,
And the magical power that wrought the change
Was one look in a woman's eyes.

THE ARLESIAN GIRL.
In going down to the village from my mill you pass by a structure built on the road at the back of a large court-yard planted with nettle trees.
It is the regular house of a Provencal citizen, with its red tiles, its large brown front irregularly pierced, with doors and windows, thrown up high like the weathercock, the pulley for hoisting the haycocks, and a few bunches of brown hay sticking out. Why had this house struck me? Why did that closed portal oppress my heart? I was never able to say why, and yet the house gave me a chill. There was too much stillness all around. When one walks by dogs do not bark; fowls flew off without crying. From within came no sound of voices—not even the tinkle of a milk-bell. But for the white curtains at the windows and the smoke which rose above the roof, you would believe the place was uninhab-ited. Yesterday, just at noon, I was returning from the village, and to avoid the farm in the shade of the nettle trees. On the road in front of the house some silent farm hands were just finishing the loading of a wagon with hay. The door had been left open, and glancing in as I passed, I saw at the back of the courtyard, leaning against a large stone table, his head in his hands, a stout, white-haired old man, with a vest too short for him and breeches in tatters.
I stopped. One of the men said to me in a low tone:
"Hush! it's the master. He has been like that ever since the accident to his son."
At this moment a woman and a little boy dressed in black passed near us, carrying big gilded prayer books, and entered the farm. The man added:
"The mistress and the younger son coming from mass. They go to mass every day since the boy killed himself." Ah, sirs, what desolation! The father still wears the clothes of his dead son, they cannot make him put them aside.
Get up there, you beast!"
The wagon slakes itself to set off, and I, who wish to know more, ask leave of the driver to get up along side of him, and it was up there in the hay that I learned this heartrending story.
He was called Jan. He was a fine peasant of 20 years, prudent as a discreet mill, stout, with a free, open face. As he was very handsome all the women had glances for him, but he only had one of them in mind—a little Arlesian girl, all in velvet and lace, whom he had met on the Arlesrueing ground.
At home they did not look on this attachment with pleasure. The girl passed for a flirt and her family were not of the province. But Jan wanted his Arlesian girl at any cost. He said:
"I shall die if they do not give her to me." It was necessary to stop there. They decided to have them married after the harvest. So one Sunday evening in the courtyard of the farm the family gathered for dinner.
It was almost a wedding feast. The bride was not there, but they drank in her honor all the time. A man came to the door and in a trembling voice asked to speak to Master Estene alone.
Estene arose and went out on the road.
"Master," said the man to him, "you are going to marry your son to a co-quette, who has accepted my love for two years. What I say I can prove.
Here are letters. Her family know all and have promised her to me, but since your son has been courting her neither they nor the beauty will have anything more to do with me."

LOVE MAKES A CHANGE.
"I am sick of the world," he said; "I am sick of the world and of life Of the double-faced hypocrite, And the strain of the godless strife
"I am sick of the folks who succeed
I'm sick of the folks who fail
Of the pitiful laughter of wealth,
And of poverty's pitiful wail."
"I am sick of the folks who leer
At innocence passing by;
I will bar my door to the world;
I will lay me down and die."
But there came a change as he spoke,
And the misty were burned away;
And the midnight darkness of his despair
Was turned to joyous day.
And the sun burst forth once more,
Till his glories filled the skies,
And the magical power that wrought the
change
Was one look in a woman's eyes.

FACTS FOR FARMERS.
AGRICULTURAL NOTES AND HINTS FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.
How to Make Farm Work Easier and Home Brighter.
It is inevitable that any grower of poultry should have more at this season than he can profitably winter. Unless he has a large quantity of broilers, and these are not suitable for breeding, and thus deteriorate his stock. The selection of those to be sold should be carefully made some day in advance of the time of sale. Not much selection is possible if it is done the night before.
Thanksgiving by taking a lantern into the henhouse as is too often the way.
Uncultivated land is not wholly unproductive. In some places people make more ready money in an easier way by harvesting and selling wild berries than they can by the poor farming methods they give to their partly exhausted cultivated land. Yet where wild berries are profitably grown, cultivated berries of the same variety will be still more productive, and pay even better if properly managed. The farmer ought to be ashamed to let nature's unassisted methods excel his best efforts.
The following summary of results, as obtained by Prof. T. H. Hunt, of the Illinois College farm, in his experiments in feeding hogs, will be of interest to those engaged in practical pork-producing.
1. It required 18.80 pounds of skim milk to produce one pound of pork when fed with corn meal one and one-eighth to fattening hogs.
2. Skim-milk could not be economically fed to fattening hogs unless it was waste product which could not be otherwise utilized.
3. It required on an average four and one-half pounds of shelled corn to produce one pound of pork during an average period of 100 days. One bushel produced 13.2 pounds of pork.
4. It required four and one-half pounds of corn meal to produce one pound of pork, or one bushel of corn meal produced 13.2 pounds of pork.
5. When fed dry, shelled corn is more economical than corn meal to feed fattening hogs.
6. It required seven and one-half
pound of pork, or one bushel of ground corn produced 13.2 pounds of pork.
7. It required seven and one-half
corn produced 13.2 pounds of pork.
8. It required seven and one-half
corn produced 13.2 pounds of pork.

GEORGE ELVINS, P. M. Nature is God's old Old Testament. He who is penitent is almost innocent. The society of good people is always good society. Even vitnagar has to work to be worth anything. Immovable men, like Job, make the devil uneasy. Unfortunately, frogs are not the only croakers the world has to listen to. The man who was "born tired" is the one who usually suffers most from poverty. The great trouble with a man covering up his tracks is that he makes new ones in doing it.

A Little Girl's Experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trescott are keepers of the government lighthouse at Sand Beach, Mich, and are blessed with a little daughter, four years old. Last April she was taken down with measles, followed by a dreadful cough and turning into a fever. Doctors at home and in Detroit treated her, but in vain. She grew worse rapidly, until she was merely a "handful of bones." Then she tried Dr. King's New Discovery, and after the use of two and a-half bottles was completely cured. They say Dr. King's New Discovery is worth its weight in gold; yet you may get a trial bottle free at any drug store.
