Just opened,—another barrel of those Irish Mackerel, which we think are a little ahead of any previous lot, being large, (weighing from one to one and one-half pounds each) bright and fat, just the thing for breakfast this hot weather, the price, too, is an object. While the wholesale market has advanced $1 to $1.50 per barrel, we still hold the price down to old figures, viz, 10c. per pound.

Baby Mixed Cakes.

This is another new Cake, and a good one, too. Remember, fresh new goods. We think them equal to many other varieties that command a much higher price. We quote at 9c.

Pretzels.

Owing to the ever increasing demand for this class of Cakes, we have been induced to purchase in larger quantities than formerly. Consequently, we are able to name an extremely low price, viz: 12c. per pound, which, if you remember is 4 cts. below the regular price. We warrant them to be equal to the higher priced goods in every way.

Nic-Nacs.

These are also very popular, especially with the little folks and to make it interesting we make the price 6c. per pound which is just one-half value.

Don't forget us when you need Stove Wood. As mentioned last week, we have a large stock of 1st class, which we deliver free of charge, $1.50 per rank (one-fourth cord).

Peerless Coffee Cakes and Ginger Snaps are certainly leaders. Jobbers are talking higher prices for theirs, but for the present we hold the price at 5c. per pound. Quality never better.

How about Fruit Jars? It may be you have forgotten the extremely low figure we made on Jars some weeks since. We simply wish to remind you that those prices still hold, viz.:

Large Mouthed Pints, - - - 48 c. per dozen,
 " " Quarts, - - - 55 c. " "
 " " 1/2 Gallon, - - - 80 c. " "

These are not seconds, as many would suppose, but A1 in every particular.

Tin Fruit Cans are also a little off in price this season. We quote to start them, 40 c. per dozen, Wax Strings, 5 cents per dozen extra.

Pickles, in quart self-sealing jars is the latest addition to stock. These goods are put up in very attractive style, and have this advantage over many others, in that you can use the jar for other purposes when the pickles are out. And another advantage—you get a full quart of pickles and the jar for about what the pickles would cost if bought by the dozen. Try a jar the next time you want anything of the kind. We think you will be pleased with them. 25 cents.

While prices of Feed have experienced a sharp advance within a few days, you will find our prices as low as the lowest for anything in the line.

Flour has also advanced somewhat, but we hold prices down to old figures for the present. We quote—

Best Spring Wheat, $4.50
 Best Winter Wheat, $4.50
 Good Family Flour, $3.50

New Salt Hay is now in, and was never finer in quality. We have also a little choice Mixed Fresh Hay, of last year's crop still in stock.

Let us have your orders.

CYCLING PROVERBS.—Grit makes a man, but mars a bearing.

Neither men nor bicycles steer well with tight heads.

Like a friend in need, the handle-bar is appreciated when the road is rough.

The world, like a bicycle, would soon come to a stop were it not for the cranks.

Ambition is like a bicycle saddle; tho' much sat upon, it generally manages to be on top.

Politeness is like a pneumatic tire,—there's isn't much in it, but it eases many a jolt in the journey of life.

A pleasant disposition, like oil in a bicycle bearing, reduces friction and prevents a world of wear and tear.

Like a link in a bicycle chain, we may not amount to much individually, but collectively we make the wheels go around.

Like balls in a bearing, the lives of many of us must be one continued grind that others may enjoy themselves.

Life is like a bicycle run; some worry, fret and scorch along, and soon reach the end, while others take it easy and enjoy themselves as they go.

Wm. Burk, who resides near Paulsboro, while plowing one of his fields unearthed the skeleton of an indian and a collection of coins and relics.

No matter what the thermometer indicates, Washington is the hottest place in the country at present.

Don't fool with a wasp because you think he looks weak and tired; you will find out he's all right in the end.

God stands pledged to supply the man with bread who will trust in Him and do his best.

He who said, "In my Father's house are many mansions," had not where to lay his head.

The old man is a drunkard because the boy didn't decide not to take his first drink.

Few kinds of portable property can be made away with more easily than a bicycle, and when once stolen it is almost impossible to recognize and identify it.

Bicycles are frequently left standing unguarded by the curb, especially in small cities and suburban towns, and it is not surprising that they are now and then seized by thieves, who can mount and quickly ride out of the owner's sight and reach.

But it is surprising to be told that a regular business of bicycle stealing is carried on, and that an establishment in Chicago deals exclusively in stolen machines. According to the dispatch containing the information, the practice is to remove the numbers from the bicycles and the manufacturers' names, and in some cases parts of various machines are interchanged, so as utterly to destroy the identity of the bicycles subjected to this process.

The concern carrying on this business is said to have agents in all parts of the country, and to have played the part of a "fence" on a large scale.

Of course it is for the police and criminal courts to deal with the thieves and their abettors, but the owners of bicycles can guard against loss by never leaving their machines unguarded in a public or semi-public place.

Even securing them with a chain and lock does not always prove effective against a determined thief.

There is no proof that the President went to Buzzard's Bay to confer with the sugar-trust bosses before deciding what should be done with the tariff bill.

If England and Germany get the increased trade they expect under the new tariff, it should not be forgotten that it will be at the expense of Americans engaged in the manufacture of the same goods in which the foreign trade has been increased.

How good the Democratic party is to the wage earner. It reduces his pay, then makes him pay two cents a pound more for the sugar his family consumes.

Mr. Pullman is not a saint, therefore it is not surprising that he should object to furnish houses rent free to men who refuse to work for him.

According to late advices, revolvers were freely used as Democratic vote-getters in Alabama.

There is only one sure way of getting a vote counted in the South—cast it for the Democratic ticket.

WILD HORSES.

Many of them are still found on the plains. Interesting account of the manner in which they are captured. After being worn out and pretty nearly starved.

Herds of wild horses are still found roaming over the plains of western Kansas and eastern Colorado, where the irritating itch has not yet mandered, and consequently the ranchman is still absent. There is plenty of buffalo grass on these prairies, but crops will not grow without artificial application of moisture, hence the wild horses and the almost equally wild cattle have still undisputed possession.

The wild horse isn't the least bit heavier than the Indian pony, it is like the latter, weighing from 800 to 1000 pounds, while the pony weighs from 500 to 750 pounds. It is squarely built, broad across the hips, strong limbed, high headed and stocky, with a median pony's slim, thin legged, slender body, low headed and a "stouch," but the pony is sheep-like and solid, while the wild horse is kept at home. There are two reasons for keeping the wild horses at home. First, the plainsmen know when they have a good thing, and second, a wild horse has to be broken every time he is hitched up.

There is no use in trying to break a wild horse so that he will stay broken; one might as well try to teach an Indian to wear cut papers; but these wild horses are sure-footed, long-winded, strong-nerved and horse-madly content in harness. A team of these fellows weighing not more than nine hundred pounds to the horse, will travel, work and break out at the rate of 100 miles a day, drawing the driver and an ordinary two-wheeled light wagon.

The method of capturing these wild horses is peculiar and worthy of description. They are not run down, but are waded down. Each band of wild horses has its special range, and was said to intrude from other bands. The range seldom exceeds fifty miles in extent. Those who make it their business to capture them go in parties of four, with a wagon in which they carry provisions for themselves, grain for the horses, barrels of water, lariats, etc. As the arid they take with them fifteen or twenty saddle horses in order that they may change mounts three or four times each twenty-four hours. They travel in a line, they discover with strong field glasses a band of wild horses ten or fifteen miles distant. Then they make camp leaving two men in charge of the supply wagon, the extra horses and the other two then begin their fatiguing task of walking the wild horses down. They start toward their game bearing slightly to the right, in order to get them started in a circle. The object is to keep them circling around the camp within a radius of twenty or thirty miles. This is for the purpose of being near enough to their band of supplies to obtain fresh horses and to have the tired ones to rest. When the "king" of the band first catches sight of the men, he starts off at break-neck speed, the rest following him. For a few miles they pound along in a straight line, and then begin to circle slightly. The pursuers manage to keep sight of the game and to keep them going until they begin to get tired and thirsty. The riders never rush in on them; that would spoil all their chances of a successful capture. Their sole object now is to keep the game moving and prevent them from obtaining any water or food. Surprising as it may seem, it takes about three weeks of this life. The hunters begin to get the wild horses sufficiently starved down to allow an approach within a mile of them. After this point is reached, the men can easily keep the horse going in a ever-decreasing circle, until at last they are "milled" or "driven" within a radius of not more than fifty miles. Now all four of the men come into active service. They take a rope, at least five hundred feet long, and make a slip loop in one end of it eight or ten feet in diameter, they spread this upon the ground and drive the game over it. One of the men puts the rope and generally succeeds in snaring the foot of one of the wild horses. The rest of the men are kept circling, while the man devotes his entire attention to the snared animal. A lass is thrown over the captive's head and he is choked down and a chain twenty inches long is fastened by a strap to one of his forelegs in such a way that it hobbles him. He can't make much speed, because the chain wraps around his other foreleg and impedes his progress. After the chain is attached to the horse is released and allowed to join the band. This process of capture and release is repeated until all of the wild horses have been captured.

The hunt is now over, the "game" captured and raised to the dignity of horses in the minds of the men. The wagon is packed, a team attached and camp broken. The nearest water hole is sought out and the men and their three until the saddle horses and the captured animals have had time to recruit their exhausted strength. Two wild horses are not allowed to drink all they want for fear of fouling their water. They are herded carefully day and night until they have become rested and generally re-captured.

After this period of rest the "ouffit" is moved to the home ranch and after the wild horses have been held for a month they can be trusted in a field

MARINE NEWS.

REPORTING INCOMING AND OUTGOING VESSELS AT NEW YORK.

Insists Workings of the Observatories. I know the Big Harbor—How the Stations are Run—The Observer as a Life Saver.

THE Western Union Telegraph Company makes $100,000 a year reporting the arrivals and departures of vessels via Sandy Hook and Long Island Sound. It is one of the most profitable branches of the service. There is a station on the bluff of the Highlands of Navasink, coast of New Jersey, from which stretches a wire that taps stations at Sandy Hook and the Quantico grounds on Staten Island, and on its winding way to this city. These three stations report all the vessels that enter and leave port by way of Sandy Hook. The stations are called marine observatories. Those of Sandy Hook and the Highlands of Navasink are conducted by three men, who take turns of eight hours each. Their principal duty is to observe the signals which, but in addition to being marine telegraphers, they are experienced telegraphers. First of all they sight an incoming craft in the east, and then report the vessel to the east office, and then to the west office. The signals which they use are the "circus" begins."

The horses dash around like crazy creatures—and it takes a long time for them to discover that they are not going to be killed. They are not going to be killed over night and are let out quickly in the morning. By feeding them in the corral and avoiding all excitement, the horses are gradually accustomed to this close confinement. It takes three months to get them used to their quarters, and after that time they will do each night one by one of their own accord. The wild horses are now ready to use on the ranch.

All you have to do is break them every time you hitch them up.—New York Advertiser.

Marvels of Plant Life.

Nowhere is there evidence of design in nature more emphatically set forth than among certain forms of plant life which, in their various functions, seem to approach so near the animal kingdom that the observer feels that there is some strange plant animal—something that might possibly form a connecting link between the animal and plants.

In a close study of these plants we see many evidences of seeming intelligence. The plants are not found in any one place, so remarkable are the actions of certain plants that the impression is forced upon us that we are confronted with intelligence, or something strangely akin to it.

In the present paper I wish to call attention to the group which is popularly known as carnivorous plants, or flesh eaters. A familiar example is the little Venus fly-trap, which is found in various portions of the country. The plant is small and inconspicuous. The first one I ever saw caught my eye by a sudden flash of fiery red light, and kneeling on the damp grass, I fairly caught the little carnivore in the act which has rendered it so famous. There were several tender, delicate stalks in the center, one around about it near the ground four or five singular, round, pad-like objects, about the size of small buttons.

These were leaves, and their upper surface was covered with reddish tentacles that stood boldly up, each bearing a delicate drop of dew that gleamed and glistened in the sunlight like a veritable garnet. Across the top of the leaves long-legged fringe-like insect lay, caught by a second before and dying a most terrible death.

Five or six of the hair-like tentacles were three or four inches long, and holding it down and pressing its body nearer and nearer to the leaf, while other red blood-red stalks were in all positions, bending over to encompass the victim.

The sight was a horror in miniature, and reminded me of the actions of an octopus or devilfish, as the little cephalopod is commonly called. It has eight suckers, each with a sharp, pointed, bag-shaped body, and each arm has all the sinuosity, all the possibility of motion of a snake, ever undulating, quivering, as if with suppressed emotion, while over the entire mass waves and shaded shades of color seem to ebb and flow.—The Californian.

A BANANA SALE.

DISPOSING OF A CARGO OF THE FRUIT IN AUCTION—ENGAGING LONGHORNSMEN TO UNLOAD THE VESSEL—SORTING THE BUNCHES.

RECENTLY inaugurated system of selling the incoming cargoes of bananas at public auction is meeting with great success. It is estimated that fully fifty per cent. of the imported fruit is now disposed of to the highest bidder.

These sales, which occur irregularly, whenever a steamer arrives, are held on Pier 3 North River. The vessels employed in the trade register from 800 to 1400 tons. They are chartered from a cruise "light" or with a ton. The chief marine observer receives a monthly salary of $30, and his two assistants $20 and $30 respectively.

An effort was made to get one of the men to take the office to take his berth, but all refused. "We do not wish to be buried alive," they said. This same De La Motte has been a lifetime in the service and it will be hard to get a man to fill his shoes. His family live at Sandy Hook with him. They have a cottage on the inside beach, near the life saving station.

It takes five hours for a steamer to reach her pier after being sighted off Fire Island. Two hours of this are allowed for the journey between Fire Island and Sandy Hook, one hour from Sandy Hook to Quarantine, an hour's steaming from Quarantine to her pier.—New York Mail and Express.

A Man for a Woman's Pet.

Mrs. Pauline Alexander, who has been acting as matron of the reformatory for the past two months, officiated at the hospital yesterday for the last time, as the new matron takes charge to-day.

At last Mrs. Alexander called her little pet in to her, she could catch it and take it away with her. The mouse is used as a sign of life, but at night lights are flared up, sky rockets and roman candles are discharged by vessels to inform the observers of their names.

TWO distinct sets are invited to the Prince of Wales's country seat, on Monday from Friday, the former generally including a bishop, dean or three eminent statesmen, and a sprinkling of musical, literary and artistic celebrities.

By you have found carriages and luggage vans awaiting what is known as the "royal train"—a special run just when the Prince is in residence—and you and your fellow-critics have driven up to the principal entrance.

Moreover, the same hands have often made the butter that is used—as each of the ladies of the family is skilled in the art of butter-making. It is a Swiss cottage, containing five rooms, one of the five being a very pretty room, and here her Royal Highness sometimes favors her friends with the "cup that cheers," often, too, cutting bread and butter and cake with her own fair hands.

Oil of the Waters.

The excellent use that has recently been made of oil for allaying the force of the White Mountain tides, and the fact that Umbria was disabled at sea has led to the appearance of various improved methods of spreading the oil on the face of the waters.

Senator Vilas inspired a report that the President would neither sign nor veto the tariff bill. Congress besieged the White House, but could learn nothing of his intended action. The bill will probably become a law without approval. The First New Jersey Republican Congressional Convention at Cape May, on Thursday, renominated Henry C. Loudenslager for Congress.

The McKinley tariff law, unblemished by an income tax, is distinctly a more desirable, more wholesome and more American institution, and incomparably more Democratic in its nature, than the Wilson-Gorman scheme with its income tax. —New York Sun.

The cuckoo is no longer the favorite bird of the Administration. The crow has taken its place.
John H. Brown, a Paulsboro farmer, gathered 588 baskets of apples from 23 trees. He sold the fruit for $387.

Teamsters and bicyclists—many of them—seem ignorant of the "laws of the road," and hence cause confusion in many cases, and occasional collisions. When drivers or riders meet, each should turn to the right; when you overtake another and wish to pass, turn to the left. Remember bicycles and teams have equal rights to one-half the road; also that pedestrians have a right to cross at street corners.

The following ordinance passed second reading at last meeting of Town Council, was laid over for a month, and the Chairman instructed to obtain legal advice in regard to it:

AN ORDINANCE regulating the use of bicycles and tricycles along the Streets and Highways of the Town of Hammonton. Introduced June 30th, 1891.

Be it ordained by the Town of Hammonton in Council assembled, that it shall be unlawful for any person or persons to ride a bicycle or tricycle on the highways and public places in said Town of Hammonton, after it has become dark enough to require a light, without having first applied said bicycle or tricycle with a suitable lamp and bell, and marking use of the same.

And be it further ordained, that along Bellevue Avenue from Main Road to the Camden & Atlantic Railroad, and along Twelfth Street from the Camden & Atlantic Railroad to Grand Street, and on all streets one fourth of a mile on either side from the centre of Bellevue Avenue and that portion of Twelfth Street herein named, the speed of a bicycle or tricycle shall not exceed eight miles an hour.

And be it further ordained, That any person or persons failing to comply with the requirements of this ordinance shall, on conviction, be compelled to pay a fine not to exceed one dollar and costs for each and every offense, at the discretion of the Justice before whom the case may be tried.

And be it further ordained, That this ordinance shall take effect on the first day of September, A.D. 1891.

The first section is good, the second amounts to nothing, and, like most of our town ordinances, will not be enforced, if passed. We are inclined to agree with a prominent citizen who said that the Council had better repeal the bicycle-on-sidewalks ordinance, and leave each rider to foot his bill for damages in case of accident. As it is now, men and boys on wheels order women and children from the walks within a short distance of the post-office.

We would be glad to have any business man, farmer or wage worker, who voted the Democratic ticket in 1892 come forward and tell us in what manner he or the country has been benefitted by the defeat of the Republican party and its principles two years ago.

Well, the McKinley law is not very bad. The country can endure it until the Republicans revise it in 1897 or 1898.

SUMMER COMPLAINT.—Last fall I was taken with a kind of summer complaint, accompanied with a wonderful diarrhoea. Soon after my wife's sister, who lives with us, was taken in the same way. We used almost everything, but without benefit. Then I said, let us try Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy, which we did, and that cured us right away. I think much of it, as it did for me what it was recommended to do. John Hertzler, Bohel, Berks Co., Pa. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Cochran, druggist
