A WOMAN'S LIFE WORK.

The Sick Made Well, the Weak Strong. Dr. Nivison's Homes.

From the Atlantic City Daily Union.

I write this letter from Dryden Springs Place, Doctor S. S. Nivison's summer residence, and interesting Medical Institution, which has stood twenty-eight years the social test so long put to bear upon it. Its owner may well be proud of its success, for where do we find such a "health place," so favored by nature so admirably managed and so steadily gaining in popularity.

Society is more fastidious and exacting to-day, than it was a quarter of a century ago, for where people could be attracted in crowds by sensational advertisements, they now avoid going, as if held back by invisible hands. Few health resorts, were ever less advertised, few, if any, advertised themselves more fully through their own merits. At Dryden Springs Place this day, we find gathered a large and choice number of patients and guests, representing the most critical and refined ladies and gentlemen, professional and private, from our large cities east, west, north and south. They are indeed a harmonious sequence to the aesthetic and scientific mind which creates the surroundings and forms the life of Dr. Nivison. There are some serious cases here, which during this season have passed through critical stages of long contracted difficulties that have yielded steadily and most satisfactorily under the Doctor's skillful treatment. These induce other less afflicted to take new courage and feel inspired to do all on their part to facilitate the intricate processes of restoring broken health. Every day I see demonstrated the stern purpose and lofty intention that made Doctor Nivison long ago say she would institute: "not merely resorts of pleasure but actually reliefs for the weary and overworked, for those suffering from any and every mental and physical malady." From the start she felt it imperative to select with the utmost discretion, favorable localities for her work.

Could there be many more felicitous than those she decided upon? Last Spring I visited her Sanitarium at Hammonton, N. J., and was truly surprised at its admirable situation. Dryden Springs Place for a summer and the former for a winter sojourn form a circle all the year round, as they offer exceptional advantages of climate, scenery and accessibility. There is no place on the Atlantic coast so favorable for invalids during the cool months as just that most elevated point between Philadelphia and Atlantic City. Indeed, with the temperate atmosphere of mixed pine and ocean air, good water, charming groves and a wide vista of rolling country, many have preferred it to Florida. Dryden Springs Place is only a short distance from Ithaca, close by the well-to-do town of Dryden. The splendid roads that lead here from all directions furnish an inexhaustible chance for carriage and horseback riding, while from the surrounding heights extensive panoramas, including Ithaca and Dryden Lakes make it delightful for travelers. No monotony is here possible. The invigorating mountain air is so magnetic that throat-bare nerves soon learn to appreciate it. Nearly three thousand feet above tide-waters, the country is saved from the poisonous causes of malaria—from mosquitos and other annoying insects, and insures to the wearied and heated brain of the city sojourner the relief of most delightfully cool nights—the chiefest panacea of all. But what of the waters, on which so much unanimous praise has been lavished? This whole region is rich in natural and mineral springs, yet those of this Place are especially fine. They comprise waters of many different qualities, acting specifically as a cure in the most marked cases of rheumatism and skin diseases; in fact, each spring has worked marvelous results in the greatest variety of cases. As a recent visitor remarked, the Saratoga waters are more cathartic, but the clear, sparkling, magnetic, diuretic and exceedingly palatable waters of the Dryden Springs are unexcelled. It is possible to consume larger quantities with more immediate benefit while being saved from the oft unpleasant experiment of too sudden and free uses of mineral waters in general.

The country supplies in abundance the best articles of food and it is a valuable item in the household management to find so choice a table so generously served as here. No wonder that sociability and conversation become affable and piquant in tone and topic; it would be difficult to tell which attracts and stimulates the more, the palatable viands or the spirit that prevails at the meal time. Yet were the dining room the only noticeable department where a happy refinement was so exceptionally prevailing, one would be tempted almost to disregard it; but it is only a perfect part of a whole, which bears the signet of the owner's individuality. Had Doctor Nivison been a woman of meager nature, selfish aims and stunted principles her home would have had a corresponding appearance. As it is she has made it attractive, joyful, and free from every petty disagreeableness which seems almost a matter of course in many similar institutions.

One has but to see her enter her cheerful parlors and the comfortable sick rooms to see where the secret lies of such a courtly and all permeating influence. I have known women whose personal presence captivated, controlled, swayed and commanded society. I have met none, who so naturally and without intrigue or artifice drew hearts and won highest esteem and confidence. We will agree that such personal qualities, mental and moral as hers, are inestimable in a hostess and physician for when they are replaced by opposite traits of character, neither happiness nor success is the result. I would like to give you a full account of Doctor Nivison's personal and professional history, but such a task must be performed by an abler pen than mine, justice and true representation are only to be expected from our peers. Still when I learn of this noble woman's extraordinary activity, as a physician, philanthropist, and founder of institutions, I must confess to my inability of grasping readily the vast "ensemble" of such a career. I have gathered by chance some facts from books of reference, monthly articles and descriptions of those brilliant summer seasons, which bestow relief to the sick while opening wide arms to the gay throngs of youth and beauty, causing the Music Hall (or Assembly Room) to resound in melody and mirth. I have also before me letters most soul stirring, from helpless sufferers, who have come to die under merciful care, and who have left here restored to all the vital health that remained to be saved for comfortable and useful living, and have listened to accounts of cures, which surely, no mere hear say could ever have made me believe. From what source could the strength have come which already in youth's prime inspired the mind and settled the purpose unhesitatingly of this earnest thinker, prompting her to go forth, as it were to go into a wilderness to build a world of her own and leave to posterity monuments of universal power. Only one set apart, and divinely chosen from the beginning, could have sustained such a burden and accomplished such tasks. Doctor Nivison cannot be placed in the ranks of ordinary workers in the field of the last thirty years' sterling reforms and momentous agitation. While one in spirit with all that is best in the revolutionizing movement of our day, she has stood alone and created an individual sphere of her own, with enterprises on an original basis as broad and as generous as her soul is benevolent, and this with talent and power so great as to create in order to perfect, and substantiate in lasting form, conceptions faithfully and practically carried out.

Such men and women become leaders, and such it is that coming generations will bear grateful homage as they themselves shall be called upon to live and die for immortal truths. While one of the most prominent early graduates of the Woman's Medical College, Philadelphia, her far-seeing spirit realized the limitations of any one-sided school or professional method, and while eagerly and laboriously studying them all, she must be free to practice according to the urgent demands of each individual case. When, soon after graduating, in her professional capacity as one of the Medical Faculty of an institution now among the first in the land, (Clifton Springs, N. Y.) she delivered an address in which she announced that one of her most unerring aims was that of founding permanent and public sanitary homes, "as cosmopolitan and catholic as the needs of humanity; not water cures, not magnetic cures, not Homeopathic, not Eclectic, nor Allopathic cures, but homes, an escape from pathos and ills." The mind of Dr. Nivison was early drawn to the critical consideration of the great humanitarian problems which confront every thinking person, namely: How best to provide the ways and means answering the wants of humanity. First in consideration came the young, that they should have provided everywhere and always, whether born of poverty or of wealth, that which nature has so bountifully bestowed for the nurture, training and development of every human being. Next in order came the problem of sickness and how to meet it in all its phases. In fact, it may be said of Dr. Nivison to-day, that her life efforts have been spent in grappling with these three great social problems: Poverty, Ignorance and Disease! She boldly outlined her glorious project at Ithaca, her beautiful "Cascadilla Place," now one of the main buildings of Cornell University, when she drew the plans and formulated the broad principles which characterized and now stand incorporated in the charter of that institution by its founder, Ezra Cornell: "I would found an institution in which any person can find instruction in any study." She had indeed gone further than did her more conservative successor. She had declared this new institution should be opened alike to young men and women, a then bold but happily blessed ideal of later accomplishment. Would that a medical college, such as she had planned, and hoped for in connection with the Cornell University were also now in operation. We will hope that this may be realized in the near future. In this connection it cannot be out of place to state, that when some few years ago Doctor Nivison was so wrongly scandalized by mistaken parties in Southern New Jersey, who set in motion the most cruel and unjust reports as touching her work in behalf of homeless infants, that her foremost defenders were the President Andrew D. White and other prominent members of the Board of Trustees and Faculty of Cornell University, men and fellow citizens who had known her from youth, and been living witnesses of her earnest and eventful career as physician and philanthropist.

The summer here is drawing to a close. The last reception given a week ago by Doctor Nivison to her house and invited guests from Ithaca and Dryden, was marked as this year's most successful social entertainments at the Springs. On that delightful occasion we were rather reminded of some of our fashionable watering places, than of sanitariums and the sick. A personal lady friend of Doctor Nivison, from New York City, had gratuitously consented to add to the pleasure of the evening, with several fine selections from her inexhaustible classical "repertoire." A pianist of so rare a merit, is not often inclined to lavish their treasures outside their private circle, but when truly music-loving hearts become the recipients of such bestowal, the delight of giving and receiving become mutual. Another lady from Northern Europe, gave a very interesting lecture on the people and on travel in those far-off lands. While I am writing, the Dryden town band is serenading the Dryden Springs Place and they add quite a gay spirit to these beautiful grounds, with their stately old trees and smooth lawns. The applause from the piazzas and the merry voices are really inspiring. I cannot help expressing my wish that this admirable little Music Hall with its exceptional acoustic properties might one day be used for artistic purposes on a large scale. Our conservatories of art and music, such as Eben Tourjee's, of Boston, need a summer resort for both professors and pupils and where could any spot be found so preeminently suited for vacation and gathering place of artists and amateurs. It is certain that the ardent studies and close confinement in winter, will demand of American youth a thorough recreation in summer, and yet they might have all this without too great a change, were they thus to combine pleasure and rest with the congenial presence of artist companionship. In fact, our times and our whole society need just this. We are too active for a dull regime of medical treatment, and we cannot be benefited by any, unless our refined and cultivated senses are somewhat respected and administered to. Never will this and the coming generations be willing to plod the slow humdrum routine of the old times. It is not to be pulled down that we seek assistance in our weariness, it is to be helped up—helped to health and happiness by the happiest conditions. Doctor Nivison must have a and this or otherwise she would never have gained the trust of her patients nor conquered disease as she has, she may well look back upon her work with humble and grateful self-consciousness of well done, and yet, as is her constantly repeated mode of expression: "She but aims to achieve that which is in harmony with Divine Order, and by this end, to seek harmonious and orderly methods." Yes, it is true, no aim can reach higher than the Divine Law which governs a universe and ultimately calls forth the Great Harmony of life which is the one eternal aspiration of the soul.

The Republican.

(Entered as second class matter.) HAMMONON, ATLANTIC CO., N. J. SATURDAY, AUG. 31, 1889.

A midnight stroller visited our garden the other night, and made free with the best heads of cabbage, turnips, etc., and trampled down much that did not tempt her appetite. She wandered about at will, leaving split-hoof tracks everywhere, but nothing to establish her identity. We condescended with our neighbors, who received less damage, but mourned that she did not leave any clue by which we might secure some compensation for the raid.

On another page will be found a letter concerning Dr. S. S. Nivison, proprietor of the Sanitarium at Hammonon, N. J., and Dryden Springs, N. Y. Knowing Miss Nivison well, and recognizing her skill as a physician, we commended the letter to our readers. The Sanitarium here will be re-opened October 1st. A large force will be sent from Dryden, soon, to put the place in order, as a number of distinguished guests and patients will arrive as soon as they can be received.

Oh, yes! lager beer is a tonic? It tones up the system in grand shape! doesn't it? Over in the first ward—Magnolia District—across the railroad—lives a man who considers a keg of beer an indispensable article in housekeeping. Last week a neighbor called, and the reception was so very cordial that he tarried—in fact, they both tarried—around that keg until the beer or their capacity was exhausted, and then the visitor essayed to say farewell; but the villainous compound had not worked its will, and an unawies word-drew a hot-reply, which provoked a blow, and at the end the host had a black eye, a broken leg, and a big doctor's bill. A pretty costly keg of beer. Yet you can't blame the lager; it might have remained in the brewer's vat, or in the keg, or even in that man's cellar, and never wrought harm to any one. It isn't fit to pour into the human system, and proves it by endeavoring to work itself out, through pimples, nose, blotched face, bloated body, or a fight. Don't touch it.

We stopped at the Council Room on Tuesday morning, and while quietly attending to the business that called us there, were somewhat startled by hearing a vigorous cry of "Hallo, there!" As the sound came from the rear, we opened the hall door, and saw the face of a fellow-man, close behind the substantial iron bars which form the cell doors in our look-up. He was evidently in search of information, for he besieged us with questions like these: "What am I in here for?" "Who put me in?" "How did I get here?" "When will they let me out?" and so on. As we had heard something of his adventures the previous evening, we did our best to enlighten him, answering: "Drunk and disorderly; Marshal Fairchild; fell out of a wagon; I don't know," etc. It was another case of misplaced whiskey. If he had kept away from the Rosedale rum-shop, he might have slept in his own bed, and need not have mournfully told us that he was a three-year-old, and never had a key turned on him before. As it was simply a case of helplessly drunk, he was soon released, with a few words of good advice.

To all persons interested in Sewing Machines: Main Road, Hammonon, N. J., August 25th, 1889. Last January I bought of Mrs. C. M. Jordan a No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine, and a few weeks later, becoming convinced of its merits, purchased another. These machines have been used in my family for making both light and heavy vests, and have given great satisfaction, more so than any one of several kinds of sewing machines which I have used. The machines run so lightly, and no jar, that it can be safely operated by women who have found it to be impossible for them to use other machines.—A fact illustrated in my case. I can accomplish at least one-third more, in a given time, with this machine than I could have done with any of those I have heretofore used. There are no delays by the breaking or tangling of the cotton, for the machine is so thoroughly made and adjusted that it works like clock-work. Use less thread and silk than other machines.

Main Road, Hammonon, Aug. 12, '89. I have used the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine about fourteen years, and it has always given satisfaction. Reliable and always ready. Consider it one of the best machines ever made. S. M. GATHCART. Try one of these machines before buying any other. Mrs. C. M. JORDAN, Agent.

Either of the following engravings: "Evangelina," "Bayard," "Monarch of the Glen," or "The Bird's Nest," without advertising on them, also $1.25 each given with one 25 cent or two 25 cent bottles of Ideal Tooth Powder. These are not cheap illustrations, but works of art. A. D. Bowman, Dentist, Nicholia, Idaho, says, "I am using your Ideal Tooth Powder, and find it superior to all others."

The engraving "Evangelina" arrived early on the 15th of December, and it seems like a Christmas gift. Trusting that Ideal Tooth Powder may flourish, remain, and prosper, respectively, Eliza Farnham, Denver, Col. One of these engravings without advertising on it costs $1 retail is given with each 25 cent bottle of Ideal Tooth Powder.

WORTH KNOWING. Mr. W. H. Morgan, merchant, Lake City, Florida, was taken with a severe cold, attended with a distressing cough and running into consumption in its first stages. He tried many so-called popular cough remedies and steadily grew worse—was reduced in flesh, had difficulty in breathing and was unable to sleep. Finally tried Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and found immediate relief, and after using about a half-dozen bottles found himself well and has had no return of the disease. No other remedy can show so grand a record of cures as Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Guaranteed to do just what is claimed for it. Trial bottle free, at Cochrans' Drug Store.

If this should meet the eye of any one who would like to buy a fine business property, let him write to the Editor of the REPUBLICAN for particulars.

The Republican.

SATURDAY, AUG. 31, 1889. LOCAL MISCELLANY.

Weather decidedly cool. Council meeting this evening. The Bank will be closed Monday. Dr. Peebles has started on his lecture tour. Schools will open on Monday morning next.

Miss Clara Potter is visiting her Hammonon relatives. Mr. John Woolvert has lately built a neat little barn.

Mrs. Nancy Rogers, of Elm, will teach the Parkside school. Miss Helen Seely is spending some time in Atlantic City. Miss Emma Presey is a welcome addition to the Baptist choir.

Miss Maggie Hendrickson has returned to her home, Marlton. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Doucet left for Philadelphia on Wednesday. Mr. Rutherford has sold William Lieber's farm to a Philadelphia.

Next Monday will be "Labor Day," a legal holiday in this state. Mr. G. DeFao has bought the Wackerling farm, on Basin Road. Dr. I. P. Leste spent most of this week in and about Hammonon.

Will G. Hood is steward on the schooner commanded by Capt. Crowley. You will find the best ham baked in this country at A. H. Simons' bakery.

The paper mills at Weymouth have started up again, after two months' idleness. The shoe business appears to be booming. The factories are running on full time.

Mr. I. S. Hankins, of Millville, a student in Crozer Theological Seminary, will probably occupy the Baptist pulpit to-morrow.

A. H. Simons keeps up to the popular demand, even in his stock of confectionery. Mr. A. W. Cochran and family visited his brother, Rev. F. J. Cochran, at Trappe, Md.

Miss Ernestine Stockwell, of Schenectady, N. Y., visited her brothers over Sunday. Benj. Heydinger, of Brooklyn, is spending a week in Hammonon,—unexpected, but welcome.

Now that the canning season is at hand, it means a considerable outlay for Jars, Cans, Rubbers, Sugar, Spices, etc. Everything in this line is very reasonable this year except sugar. We keep Mason's porcelain-lined jars—half-gallon, quart, pint,—quart, tin cans, extra rubbers for different sized jars, extra porcelain tops (generally difficult to obtain), sealing wax—two kinds, common bottle wax, and self-melting, self-sealing wax strings, the nearest thing out for sealing cans: no melting of wax, no burning of fingers, the heat of the fruit will melt the wax. Try a dozen. Preserving kettles are in great demand just now. We have both the porcelain and agate kettle. Earthen stew-pans, stone pots, and jugs are also much used. We have quite an assortment. We might mention, also, Resin, Spices—both ground and whole.

THE NEW YORK MAIL AND EXPRESS

The Advocate of the Best Interests of the Home - The Enemy of the Saloon. The Friend of American Labor. The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is in the broadest sense most carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the entire country - North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, mis-called news, which defiles the pages of too many city papers.

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The MAIL AND EXPRESS is the recognized National organ of the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

Demorest's Monthly Magazine.
 A WONDERFUL PUBLICATION.
 Many suppose DEMOREST'S MONTHLY to be a fashion magazine. This is a great mistake. It contains the finest fiction, the most interesting and valuable articles, and the most beautiful illustrations. It is a magazine in itself, and is worth the price of a dozen magazines in itself. It is a magazine that is read and enjoyed by all classes of people. It is a magazine that is a pleasure to read. It is a magazine that is a treasure to own. It is a magazine that is a necessity for every home. It is a magazine that is a source of information and entertainment. It is a magazine that is a source of inspiration and guidance. It is a magazine that is a source of comfort and joy. It is a magazine that is a source of strength and courage. It is a magazine that is a source of hope and faith. It is a magazine that is a source of love and kindness. It is a magazine that is a source of peace and harmony. It is a magazine that is a source of wisdom and understanding. It is a magazine that is a source of truth and justice. It is a magazine that is a source of life and light. It is a magazine that is a source of hope and faith. It is a magazine that is a source of love and kindness. It is a magazine that is a source of peace and harmony. It is a magazine that is a source of wisdom and understanding. It is a magazine that is a source of truth and justice. It is a magazine that is a source of life and light.
