NO. XXXV.

Does Protection favor "special interests?" Is it merely a scheme to "tax" the masses for the benefit of the "favored few?" Is it really a robbery of the "plain people" by the "monopolist manufacturers" protected by our Tariff?

If it is, then indeed is the faith of the Protectionist a very poor one, nor can there be the least justification for such a system of extortion.

But ask the importer, alien as he is in his business and too often alien, too, in citizenship—ask him, as he laughs in his sleeve and pockets the enormous profits reaped by stimulating foreign industries and giving employment to foreign workmen, whether Protection or Free-Trade favors "special interests."

Ask the capitalists and men with fixed incomes, interested only in having things "cheap" no matter who suffers, if Free-Trade favors no "special interests."

Ask the free raw material manufacturer, won over by selfish considerations of individual advantage, whether Protection really only helps "special interests."

Ask these men, and then admire and commend the righteous indignation with which they all oppose Protection for no other reason than because it favors "special interests."

Protection is too broad, too liberal, too national a system to favor any "special interest" in the Free-Trade sense of the term. It protects American labor anywhere and everywhere, on farm and field, in forest and mine, on ship and in factory.

But if to stimulate American industry, give motive to American enterprise, add to American wealth and advocate American doctrines and support for our own citizens against the world—if that is favoring special interests, then, indeed, does Protection do so.

And we glory in it.—American Economist.

The following dialogue is reproduced in The Bulletin of the American Iron and steel Association. It occurred between the District-Attorney of Allegheny County and the workman (under oath) who offered to bail Burgess John McLuckie, arrested for participation in the recent labor disturbances at Homestead: "What is your name?" asked District Attorney Burleigh. "Owen Murphey, sir." "Where do you reside?" "In Homestead." "How much real estate do you own, Mr. Murphey?" "Well, sir, I own a house of 14 rooms with a lot 69 x 140 feet in Homestead." "What is its value?" "Ten thousand dollars." "Anything against it—any judgments or mortgages?" "No sir." "Own any other property?" "Yes, sir;" and then Mr. Owen Murphey, mill worker, proceeded to designate seven other pieces of real estate which he held in fee simple and free of all encumbrance in the borough of Homestead, the aggregate value of which was $15,000.

A second workman was sworn, who asserted that he owned real estate to the value of $10,000. Comment is unnecessary, but we cannot resist the temptation to inquire: Where under the shining sun, except among the Tariff oppressed workers of this Protection-plundered land of ours, could two steel workers, or any other kind of workers, be found who between them had laid away $25,000 from their earnings?

The latest step in the establishment of McKinley industries is the transfer from Huddersfield, England, to Jamestown, N. Y., of the immense manufacturing plant of Henry Lister & Son. This firm makes worsteds, woollens, ladies' mantle cloths, rugs, shawls, silk yarns and silk and mohair plushes. It is safe to count on Jamestown for the candidates of Protection next November.

Two drug stores at Asbury Park were raided last Saturday night and their proprietors arrested on a charge of illegal liquor selling.

PAINT! PAINT!

HAMMONTON.

When you buy the Hammonoton Paint, you do not buy seven-eighths of a gallon for a gallon, or three pints for a half gallon; nor do you get one of those packages that weigh 12 to 14 pounds, and containing so much alkali that it appears to be so thick that it is impossible to use it without thinning; but in buying the Hammonoton you get a full standard gallon of paint, weighing 14 to 16 pounds to the gallon, made from the best materials known to the trade, and costs the consumer from $1 to $1.50 per gallon for honest paint.

If the purchaser doesn't want honest paint, and wants to be honest to himself, then be sure to buy the Hammonoton Paint, and the manufacturer will give a receipt with every gallon sold telling you how to make two gallons of paint out of one of the Hammonoton. It will cost 33 cents for the extra gallon.

One Dollar.

And then here comes Commercial Paint, in 30 shades,—the best wearing paint ever put on the market for so low a price as $1 per gallon, and guaranteed to be a first-class wearing paint. If any one should not want to pay so high a price for a good exterior paint, then work the 33 cent racket, and get two gallons for $1.33. Manufactured at

Many of the small lakes of the alkali and saline regions of California, Nevada and other parts of the world are saturated and deposit their salts when the water is removed by evaporation or when salts are added from the follow.

THINK OF THE OLD AND THE NEW.

It is a queer time now, says "Gleaner," in "Success with Flowers," in these glorious winter days to look forward to winter, but if you open your windows bright with flowers begin this month.

The very first thing to do is to secure lots of Nasturtiums. They do beautifully in the house, and the bright blossoms will be like imprisoned suns in the dark days.

I keep a pot of days sure to have a few flowers in the house, and it lightens up the patches and darning over so much, especially as their delicate scent suggests all lovely things.

After they are all started in the garden, I will find and stick them in the earth under the parterre plant.

Pot the small ones in September, with earth not very rich, and if you give them a stick to climb on, it's all they ask.

In the latter part of August look for small plants under the summer log for small ones to plant in the garden.

Another pretty annual for a bracket is Sweet Alyssum, their delicate white blossoms showing well with the Nasturtiums.

I have seen a hanging basket that was lovely. I saw it drooping over the side, make all the neighborhood declare they would have one just like it next winter.

Perhaps you can find late in the Fall a thrifty Marigold in the border; pot it and gradually introduce it to a hot room.

The blossoms will give a dash of yellow to the window that will complete your collection.

Now these are all from five-cent seed packages, and are a change from the inevitable Geraniums seen in every window.

Africain Elephants.

A singular circumstance connected with the African elephant is that he has never been tamed and utilized for industrial purposes.

His numbers have much diminished of late years, but vast herds of them still rove through the interior, and wait for capture and domestication.

Farish valuable assistance in building and in road-making, to say nothing of their utility as beasts of burden.

They are left to their original savage condition, a state of things that arises from the lack of tame elephants to assist in catching and subduing them.

The greater part of the elephant-training of India is performed by the same domesticated and without such auxiliaries the domestication of the huge African ones is an impossibility.

The importation of trained animals and plants into Africa presents so many difficulties that it is hardly probable that the experiment will ever be tried.

A National Song.

One of the commonest of proverbial expressions assumes that a song is the cheapest of all things, and the richest country on earth is without a national song.

Thirty years ago it offered six hundred dollars for one; but the song was not forthcoming, though the condition of affairs in our country seemed calculated to call forth all the lyric energy that any poet possessed.

And indeed a few fine poems were produced, but no song that fairly claimed the prize.

We have the "Star-Spangled Banner," and sometimes we sing it and make ourselves think we are enthusiastic, but the keenest critics of us feel that it is too clumsy to be a good song or a good poem.

I suspect it has a fault even more radical than its uncouth rhythm. It is not good art to make a picture of a picture, or to symbolize a symbol.

To illustrate this, hold up by side a photograph of an oil-painting, and one from life. Though the American flag is to our eyes the most beautiful of all one can find in a forest of shipping in any great seaport.

And though it represents the finest country and the most progressive people on earth, and though your heart sometimes comes to your throat when you think what has been achieved under it, still, it is only a picture and a symbol.

No star-spangled rhymes, or allegorical representations of Freedom tearing the sky into strips of bunting, will ever make an effective and enduring national song.

When the song arrives, we shall find that it somehow deals directly with the national power and destiny, with an original conventional symbol or picture of it.

THE RED-WING.

On a hillside sat a blackbird—winged, on the sun and the shining weather, then he looked there as he hung.

Over the maze of the swamp-woods tangled, and the spots on his wings were red as fire, and his notes rang sweet as Apollo's lyre.

The summer woods were a haze of blue, and a red and a white bird, and the blackbird hissed out and true.

Till the 11th which was mute in the flowered air, and his notes rang sweet as Apollo's lyre, and his notes rang sweet as Apollo's lyre.

A black had leaped for a dragon-fly, and struck the spray from the sleeping water.

White and early, there on high, under the blackbird's wings was red as fire, and the spots on his wings were red as fire.

A sign for the must be born, and I don't know whether you called strain has a charm for rain, when blackbirds sing in the sunshine.

With the spots on his wings were red as fire, and his notes rang sweet as Apollo's lyre.

A CELEBRATED TREATY.

BY T. C. BARBAUGH.

The common histories to which we have access tell us, in a line, of the purchase of Louisiana, but leave us in the dark as to what really brought about that wonderful acquisition of territory, from which we have been formed some of the greatest States of the Union.

The inner history of that purchase is replete with interest, and we learn that Napoleon got rid of the land, not because he had the good of this country at heart—for he had not, in reality, but from motives of statecraft, for which he was famous.

In 1783 France ceded to England the whole of that region east of the Mississippi, except Florida, and all west of that river to Spain.

This was the end of French territorial dominion in North America, but she had been brought about by the Seven Years' War, which cost thousands of lives and millions of money.

The cessation to Spain enabled her to control more than one-half of the Western Continent.

The Spanish crown held on to Louisiana until 1800, when, by the treaty of San Ildefonso with Charles IV, the territory was ceded back to France.

It was said by rumor at the time that the cession by Spain to Napoleon would include the entire navigation of the Mississippi and place it in many ways at the disposal of the French.

The American people, and especially President Jefferson, grew very uneasy under the circumstances, and our ministers at Paris, London and Madrid were instructed to defeat the scheme, if possible, but the inactivity of the United States government, and the slowness of national travel, for the treaty had been confirmed and France had a powerful foothold on our shores.

Defeated in his first designs, Jefferson turned to another point. He resolved to attain the free navigation of the Mississippi, which so much of our produce would be compelled to pass to the sea.

In point of possession, Spain still controlled the mouth of the great river. She refused us the right of deposit at New Orleans, and there was danger of armed collision between her soldiers and our people.

Affairs were approaching a crisis, and Mr. Jefferson instructed Robert Livingston, our minister at Paris, to obtain from Napoleon, if possible, the free navigation of the Mississippi and the right of deposit at New Orleans.

Farther than this, Jefferson did not look at the time. He had no idea of requiring that vast territory embraced in what was then known as "Louisiana."

By-and-by, James Monroe was sent over to see Mr. Livingston, and these two diplomats were told to negotiate for the acquisition of New Orleans and the Florida, for it was believed that they were about to fall into Napoleon's hands.

Indeed, the treaty of San Ildefonso was but imperfectly understood.

Now, how cunning Napoleon was. In the first place he was at war with England. He hated that country with all his nature.

She was the natural enemy of France, and he stood ready to steal a march on her, and to cripple her in any manner possible.

He believed that England would attempt to take this new territory of Louisiana, and thus obtain another foothold on the Western Continent.

He saw the danger which would menace France if this was done. He had to do one of his saddest things. A few lines of treaty have restored Louisiana to me and now I must expect to lose it.

Message—now a recognized agent in the cultivation of health and beauty—is a comparatively modern practice with us.

In ancient India, Egypt, Greece, and Rome, however, massage was common, and considered essential to the preservation of health and beauty.

The word massage is derived from Greek; masso I knead. It has been used by the ancients in the sense of operator masseur on all the muscles of the body.

It is very probable that the ancients were well acquainted with the use of massage to protect themselves from the attacks of the many enemies to bird life which are found in tropical regions.

These enemies the most persistent and formidable are snakes and monkeys. There is also a class of parasites which often make a raid against the sociable weaver birds, and drives them from their dwelling.

The number of eggs in each weaver's nest is from three to five; they are of a bluish-white color spotted with brown.

Another of the many African weavers, which are not so common, is the yellow oriole which builds its nest in a different style altogether.

They also are very sociable birds, and as soon as they have fixed upon a suitable locality (which is always near water), they begin to build with such surprising industry.

The Republican.
(Entered as second class matter.)

SATURDAY, SEPT. 3, 1892.

REPUBLICAN TICKET.

For President,
Benjamin Harrison,
Of Indiana.

For Vice-President,
Whitelaw Reid,
Of New York.

We called at the stocking factory last Saturday afternoon. Of course the employees were out, but we found Mr.
Cottrell there, with his coat off, busy setting up new machinery and clearing the decks for this week's business. We saw twenty-two knitters already in full operation, and twenty-five more are to be put in immediately, with the necessary complement of other machinery.
That means many more employees.
There is no "season" for the hosiery business; the goods are sold all the year, insuring steady work.

We visited several of the school houses last Saturday. At the Central, James Smith was celebrating basement floors, and carpenters were arranging partitions, etc. The furniture was as nearly arranged as could be before the Principal arrives, as his wishes should be considered.

The Union Road building has been raised eighteen inches, to secure a dry cellar.

At Middle Road, the out buildings have been general repairs made.
Margolia has a new floor, new desks,
and external improvements.

Undoubtedly the most interesting encampment of G. A. R. men ever held will convene at Washington during September. The interest manifested in the encampment has been national, and the Government and local authorities in the National City are making elaborate preparations for entertaining the old soldiers.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from all stations on its lines to Washington, from September 13th to 20th, valid for return until October 10th, inclusive, at a rate of a single fare for the round trip.
These tickets will be valid to stop off at Baltimore and Philadelphia in each direction without limit. The Pennsylvania Railroad Company has also issued one of the most comprehensive guides as yet compiled of the National Capital.

With a view of obtaining valuable data for campaign use in the interest of the Democratic party, Mr. Charles F.
Peck, Commissioner of the New York Bureau of Statistics of Labor, was instructed to make a thorough investigation of the effect of the McKinley tariff on wages. The inquiry covered the year immediately preceding the enactment of the McKinley law and the year immediately following it, and embraced sixty-eight industries, employing about 285,000 persons. Mr. Peck's report has just been handed in, but it does not afford the Democrats the aid and comfort which they anticipated. On the contrary, it supplements and corroborates the recent Senate investigation in the most beautiful and effective manner.
It is presumed that Mr. Peck, being a Democrat, has not unnecessarily gone out of his way to aid the Republican side of the question, so it may be taken for granted that his figures are absolutely correct. These figures show that for the year the McKinley law was in operation there was a net increase in wages of $4,377,000 as compared with the preceding year, and an increase of $31,316,000 in total production. This does not look very much as though that law was an enemy of either labor or business. Since it was enacted wages have gone up, production has increased, and the average price of commodities has gone down. Our Democratic friends had better let the McKinley law alone.
They turn their fingers every time they touch it.

The cholera epidemic in Asia and Europe has become so widely spread that our Government has deemed it wise to use unusual authority to prevent its introduction here. On Thursday the President issued orders that all vessels bringing passengers from foreign ports should be detained at quarantine for twenty days, where the physicians will do everything possible to protect our people.

Chancellor McGill has rendered a decision in the Reading Combine suit which is calculated to give the coal monopolists a vast deal of trouble. Says the Chancellor: "Equity looks at the substance and will disregard names and penetrate disguises of form to discover or deal with it." He finds that the object of the Combine is to destroy competition in the production and sale of anthracite coal, and on that ground orders the Central Railroad Company to take possession of its property and operate it. The Reading Railroad Company will of course appeal the case, and while President McLeod is disappointed, yet he does not appear to be very seriously disturbed. There is lots of fighting ahead, but the fact that the big monopoly has received a decisive setback encourages the people to believe that the State will come out on top.
This is a matter in which every householder has a vital interest.

The workmen, it must be confessed, have not hitherto looked to the Tariff in vain. They have not only enjoyed a high rate of wages, but they have also had an increasing rate for a number of years past. Labor has nearly doubled in value in all iron and steel works in the United States during the last twenty years. Within the same period there has been a general reduction in the prices of commodities, so that labor has enjoyed the benefit of both high wages and low prices.—London Industries, July 22, 1892.

The Town Marshal or Constable was needed, last Sunday, on the Fay corner, where a gang of drunken loafers assembled, indulging, as such cattle will, in offensive remarks and indecent language. That corner and neighborhood is again becoming a resort for men and boys of a kind that should be compelled to move on.

People are beginning to realize what bargains we are offering in our combination,—the Republican and the New York Tribune (weekly), or the Philadelphia Press (weekly), one year for $1.25; or the three papers—each one the best published in its own field—for $1.50. There is no honest way to get as much good reading for so small a sum of money.

The State law seems to make a Saturday half-holiday compulsory in all mills and factories, unless employees present to the proprietors a written request for permission to make "overtime" at a specified rate per hour. By decision of the Inspector, this applies to Bernhouse's planing-mill, and that establishment was strangely silent last Saturday, for the first time. It's a very peculiar law.

Best Republican Newspaper.

The TRIBUNE for 1892.

Russell G. Morr on the Tariff.

The Republican party, triumphant in 1891, whose national issues were at stake, renewed, secured by and heavily, the fight for 1892. The New York TRIBUNE, the ablest, most reliable, and best of all Republican papers, leads the way.

During 1892, Russell G. Morr of Michigan, the witty orator, will continue in the Tribune his remarkable article on the Tariff, Reciprocity, Colonge, and the Currency. These topics are all understandable; the Republican policy with regard to all of them is right, patriotic, and impregnable; but dust has been thrown in the people's eyes, and the air has been filled with fog, by lying and tricky Tariff writers. The Tribune prints from one to five, explaining these questions.

Mr. Morr begins at the beginning of every subject, and makes it so clear that every one can understand and no one can answer him. Ask any neighbor what he thinks of Mr. Morr's writings. He will tell you that they are genial, clear, entertaining and perfectly unanswerable. A specialty is made of answering all questions, asked in good faith, on the Tariff, the Currency, Reciprocity, Colonge, and the Currency. The Tribune prints from one to five, explaining these questions.

How to Succeed in Life. The Tribune will also continue the series of articles to Young Men and Women, penned by men who, beginning life themselves with few advantages, have nevertheless succeeded honorably and brilliantly. It will also reply to questions as to what young men and women should do to succeed in life, under the particular circumstances in which their lot in life is cast. The replies will be written under the direction of Mr. Morr, whose familiarity with American life and opportunities, and whose deep and cordial sympathy with all who are struggling under adverse circumstances, promise to make the replies practical and satisfactory.

Vital Topics of the Day.

Many special contributions will be printed, from men and women of distinguished reputation. Among the topics: The Silver Colonge, the latest views; Proder Function of the Minority in Legislation, to include of a paper each from a Democrat and a Republican, prominent in public life; Harmful Tendencies of Trusts; Arid Lands of the United States; Millions of the United States; Free Postal Delivery in Rural Communities; Better Pay for Fourth Class Postmasters; Importance of the Nicaragua Canal; Village Improvement; Our German Fellow-Citizen in America;—and many others.

Agriculture.

The Tribune's regular two pages work of how to run a farm and make it pay, there will be, during 1892, special papers on—Hot House Lamb; Model Farms; Tobacco Raising; Sugar Beets; Fancy High Priced Butter Making; Care of Bees; Market Gardening; Live Stock; and a variety of other equally important branches of American farming.

For Old Soldiers.

For veterans of the war, there will be a page a week of war stories, answers to questions, news and gossip. Mrs. Annie Wittenmyer will supply an interesting column of news of the W. B. C. The Tribune's War Stories of the past year have never been surpassed for thrilling interest.

For Families.

Families will value the pages devoted to—Questions and Answers; Household Decoration; Home Interests; Cooking; Knitting and Crochet; Young Folks, and the Fashions.

A great editorial pane will be printed, and fiction, foreign letters, book reviews, travels, checkers and chess and fun abundantly supplied.

Premiums.

Descriptive Circular will be sent free. Over $2000 in Cash Prizes. Send for terms to agents, and raise a club for the Tribune.

Subscriptions.

THE NATIONAL BAPTIST Philadelphia.

Prospectus for 1892.

It has not been our custom to issue a prospectus. A newspaper can never tell beforehand just what subjects will be discussed. We hold ourselves in readiness, however, with our well trained editorial force, and our large staff of special contributors, to treat any subject which may present itself during the year. Our plans for 1892 contemplate an enlargement of our news department, a perfecting of the other departments, and the bringing up of the entire paper to a still higher standard of efficiency.

PREMIUMS. The National Baptist is offering a line of most attractive premiums. For example, communion services, organs and hymn-books, valuable books of reference and general information, fountain pens. One of its most attractive offers is the one offering to the new subscriber and to the person securing the new name, each a volume of Prof. Drummond's famous addresses, attractively bound in white and gold.

AGENTS Are wanted in every Church, to canvass for new names. Liberal commissions are offered. Past experience has shown that a goodly number of new names can be quickly gathered by a good agent.

The Hon. Clem Studebaker, of Indiana, contributes an article to the magazine Good Roads, in which he says: In making my plea for good roads, I desire to emphasize my conviction that our need is for enduring roads. My study of this subject leads me to the conclusion that four-fifths of the outlay put upon our roads at the present day is ephemeral in character. The plowing, the harrowing, the leveling, the ditching and smoothing of the annual road tinkering, is quickly wasted when the next protracted rain visits the locality. The late Governor Hovey, in his last message to the Legislature of Indiana, estimated that between two and three millions of dollars in money and labor had been expended upon the roads of the State during the year ending October, 1890. The amount was sufficient to build six or seven hundred miles of substantial macadam roads, of a nature to last, with light repairs, a hundred years. Instead of such an enduring improvement to show for this great outlay, for the most part the work done was more appropriate for the preparation of an onion bed. It would be better for a country to build five miles of good macadam-road each year, and let the remainder of the roads alone, than to continue the course usually followed.

The Newark branches of the Order of Iron Hall, for which receivers have been appointed by the courts, retained twenty per cent. of the assessment called for by the order and placed the amount in bank. This money has now been withdrawn from bank and will be divided among those who paid the assessments.

It is a singular fact, but nevertheless true, that when two young men meet they address each other—"How are you old man?" and that when old fellows meet they say, "My boy."
