Trusts

in Sugar, Oil, Cotton, and in many other things were never more numerous than now, and never more damnable. They are here to stay, as every thinking man must and will admit; for mind, as lightning, acts along the lines of least resistance, and Trusts, when properly conducted, both expedite business and save money.

It is not against Trusts, as such, but against the methods employed by those controlling them, that most sensible men are embittered.

Let us support Trusts when they benefit the public, but resist them by all honest means when they dictate ex-corrupt trade. Our

D. C. HERBERT.

We favor an amendment to the Federal Constitution that will permit the levy of an income tax.

We denounce arbitrary interference by federal authority in local affairs as a violation of the constitution and a crime against free institutions. — Democratic Platform.

President Lincoln did not hesitate to interfere when rebels defied the law, and it is difficult to see how any soldier who followed the flag to Appomattox can stultify himself by sustaining by his vote such sectional and revolutionary declarations.

History repeats itself, and never since the days when Davis and Toombs, and Mason and Slidell sat in the box and cracked their whips over the backs of Northern "Dough Faces," has the country witnessed such abject and crouching servitude as in this year.
And who would have thought that the mantle of these dignified and imperious old sinners would have fallen upon the shoulders of the Tillmans and Bryans, with their "Punch and Judy" show.
The Democratic party of New Jersey met in convention and adopted a platform favoring sound money and the gold standard. But "Simon said wiggle waggle," and they wiggled and they waggled, and they went back and adopted a platform in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, and called both the platforms "Democratic Principles," which being interpreted means, that they have sold out to the Populists and will obey the bosses.

They now favor the election of a President under pledges that he will not execute the law until called upon by the chief criminal, that they will reconstruct the courts to decide legal questions in accordance with a party platform which may change in a few months, as in New Jersey this year.

They favor an amendment to the Constitution to make the way easy to take the property of all men, for the maw of the socialist will never be filled.
Then only one step further,—"Haug out the red flag and cry havoc."

The free silver craze, with its manifest designs of robbery and plunder, is not the worst feature in the claims of these anarchists. They aim at the destruction of all government. Their defeat is a foregone conclusion. Maine settled that matter. It is now only a question of majority, and New Jersey should do her part to increase it.

Atlantic County has furnished its full share of good men, high in the councils of Church and State, and prominent in affairs. You could meet them any day on Change and in the busy marts of trade, where they were winning fame and fortune for themselves and reflecting honor upon their country, until they were chilled and paralyzed in 1892.
Their advancement was made possible by the long years of prosperity under Republican rule.

There is just as good blood and as bright boys in the county now. Restore that prosperity, and give these boys a fair chance. The man who began business since 1892 has had a hard time of it; another four years of Democratic rule might work his ruin. Take eight years out of the life of a man at the beginning of his career, and the chances are that you will find him "in shadows and in misery." This is the young man's battle and his opportunity.

Men of experience are leaving the Bryan combination. A thousand men from Chicago, who had never voted anything but the Democratic ticket, called upon Maj. McKinley and pledged him their votes and influence. Thousands of others are doing likewise.

Some good men will heed the orders of the bosses and vote for Bryan, with a feeling of horror at the mere chance that their votes may elect him. The young man has no such load to carry, and the Republican, conscious of the rectitude of his conduct and the integrity of his party, stands erect before all men. No American dreads the election of Mr. McKinley. No man entertains any fears for the honor and safety of his country under Republican rule.

The object now is to increase the majority, and all good men who can rise above party, when their country is in peril, who value the prosperity of the young men of Atlantic County more than the success of Altgeldt and his combination, are called upon to join us, so that when that unholy combination is cast out, they may fall "like Lucifer never to hope again." LEX.

Buy $10,000 worth of silver, establish free coinage, then take the silver to the mint and have it stamped with the dollar mark, and it is $20,000. No sane man will claim that anything has been added to the wealth of the country by this jugglery. Yet the holder of the silver has his $20,000 and somebody has lost $10,- 000. He cannot impose it upon the capitalist, who will neither "yield to the song of the siren or the tears of the crocodile," and must pay it out to the poor, who need all of their earnings for immediate use, attack the "small fry" or "shear the lambs" and if the United States is the lamb the tax payer is the victim. The Government can no more create value and make fifty cents to count as one hundred cents than it can change the ebb and flow of the tide. No country ever did coin all gold and silver offered, at a ratio of 16 to 1, or any other ratio, maintain the parity and retain both metals in circulation at the same time, and never will while the price of merchandise is regulated by supply and demand. The effort to maintain the parity with the silver now in circulation by selling bonds, has increased the interest bearing debt over two hundred and sixty millions. All men familiar with the subject admit that this would fail if silver coinage is increased to any considerable extent.

It is the clear and manifest duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to procure gold and maintain the reserve.
To compel the holder of a draft to receive silver, is to make this a silver country, and the citizens, proud of his country, of her greatness and glory, would see the United States on a financial par with China and Mexico, and be forced to accept what the people of the more civilized and enlightened countries will not have.

What shame, what degradation, what ruin these mountebanks who, at every street corner, fair, or country park, talk so much and know so little of finance, would bring upon the country.

Why do sensible men still persist in theshing this straw, which has been threshed for centuries, with the hope as vain as an attempt to draw light out of darkness or truth out of falsehood. The mine owners have method in their madness,—it is clear profit to them. We are almost done with it. With what accorn the farmers of Maine rebuked the insolence. Under Republican rule and prosperity, the school-master has been among the people. On every hillside and in every valley, from ocean to ocean, close to the farm and mill, were found the church and the school house, and the farmer well informed.

A man who relies upon the ignorance of the farmer or laborer is doomed to disappointment. It is not probable that again, in our day and generation, the political schemer or "spell-binder" will endeavor to ride into place and under the delusion that he can pass his base metal and spurious logic, as genuine upon the American farmer and laborer. Xrr.

Electric Bitters.
Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish, and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, consti-

All business placed in my hands will

A New York paper attempts to prove that the man of the future will have no lungs. If that is true, pugilism and politics are both doomed.

Prize, literature, and want of sense are the three great sources of ill manners; without some one of these defects, no man will behave himself ill for want of experience.

A Boston paper sagely remarks that women look better than men on bicycles. So far as our observation extends, women look better than men under any circumstances or conditions.

Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt has shown that she is a sensible girl, who cares more for an American citizen than for a son of a decaying aristocracy. Her engagement to the son of William C. Whitney may mark a reaction in favor of home products in the matrimonial market.

A prominent missionary suggests "the only way to reach the cyclists is through tracts." If the tract is level and the person who wants to reach them is a "rescuer" it may be done. The missionary's inference from the missionary's statement, that the cyclist is a conspicuously unregenerate individual requiring the last resorts of religious persuasion, is too ridiculous to combat or even consider.

The editor of a literary publication, who has been advocating summer reading clubs and helping his subscribers to find them, has received this delicious query: "How can we get rid of our president? She is well meaning, but she has no grip. She is really a disadvantage, but has no idea of it. She will never resign, and our personal liking is so great we cannot bear to ask her to go out." The editor was completely stumped, and has passed the problem on to his other subscribers.

A Chicago man is the first to invade the realm of fishes with labor-saving machinery. Oscar Plath, according to reports from Washington, is the person who has invented a rod that jerks the fish out of the water by a spring attachment while the fisherman may sleep or otherwise employ himself. The owner's only duty is to bait the hook and the fish and the rod do the rest. Next to the process of catching the fish, this device is the most advantageous to unskilled labor of any that have recently appeared.

A British official report of the second massacre at Goria, Armenia, states that 1,800 people, men and women, were slaughtered or burned to death in a cathedral where they had taken refuge. The unspeakable Turk killed all the men on the ground floor, looted the cathedral treasures, and then the stairways to the galleries occupied by women, and set the building on fire. The British Government, which could have aided Turkey to account for this horrible cruelty, having paralleled its history, has not even uttered its protest against it. Its silence is almost as awful as the silence which it has condoned.

It seems that the runaway accident by which Anna Corbin and her coachman were killed was caused, indirectly, by the fact that a team of spirited horses were being used for the first time without harness. What followed was only to be expected. To put such a nervous, sensitive animal as a horse into the new and strange relations of an open bride, after he has been accustomed to the restraint of harness, is to invite an accident. But this lamentable occurrence should not be allowed to check the movement to free the horse from the cruel alms of blinkers. It is time to let him see and hear as he pleases, and why they were ever adopted by horsemen is a conundrum. They should never be put on a horse, for he can be trained to do much better without them; but if he has been accustomed to them, they should not be taken off injudiciously, nor should he be recklessly driven without them until he has learned to adapt himself to his new condition. Anna Corbin's death resulted from some body's fatal folly.

ELECTRICITY ON THE OCEAN.

Useful in Many Ways on Steamers and Shortens the Voyages.

Owing to the general use of electricity on board trans-Atlantic steamers, mariners are accomplished, and it is largely due to the assistance of the electric current that the recent phenomenal record-breaking runs were made. The electric installation on the steamers St. Paul and St. Louis represents the most recent achievements of the electrical engineer. Nowhere else is the application of the current applied to such a large range of work. Here may be seen almost every important application of electricity, apart from the trolley car and electric welding. The telephone, the telegraph, the light, the incandescent light, electric motors for divers' purposes, electric elevators, search lights, electric cranes, call-bells and numerous special devices are to be found, all within the space of 500 feet. These numerous applications of the electric current are described in an interesting article in Electrical Digest, which treats particularly of the steamship St. Paul, although the installation of the St. Louis is almost identical. The new engines infernal from the St. Paul's 600-light generating equipment which operate a set of 1,780 incandescent lamps. The applications of electric motors are many and various. For ventilating, for instance, no less than ten motors of nine horse power each are employed. So complete is the ventilation that afforded that every passenger can regulate the admission or exhaustion of air according to his own liking.

The ashes are hoisted from the fire room by means of four motors, one for each stove hole. There are two motors of ten horse power each for the refrigerating apparatus and one of eight horse power for an electric elevator. There is also a large organ operated by an electric motor. The vessel, of course, is provided with electric bells and annunciators in profusion, while wiring to the extent of twenty miles is required for the lighting and motor circuits alone. Besides the electric search lights there are also a number of portable reflectors, two and a half feet in diameter, each containing six lamps of thirty-two candle power, which are used in the hold.

Every electrical invention conducive to comfort and perfection in navigation may be found in this vessel. In front of the pilot house is an electric button which blows the whistle. Within the pilot house is another electrical contrivance which, in connection with a clock movement, sounds the whistle automatically for ten seconds at every minute during fog. There is also a set of electric switches for the mast and the electric and starboard lights. Among the special devices are electrical shaft revolution indicators, one connected to each shaft, and an electrical rudder position indicator. By means of these devices one can control the great rudder of the ship with the certainty and ease with which he might that of the smallest sailboat. The pilot wheel operates a pump, which in turn injects a column of glycerin through a small hole into the rudder, where the rudder head comes up and the plunger in this cylinder opens and closes a steam valve.

The rudder position indicator is an electric device, which operates on the same principle as the electric range-finder used on war vessels. The instrument indicates by the position of a needle above a dial the exact position of the rudder and the number of degrees either to the right or to the left of the zero point at which it may be maintained. This was first installed on the St. Paul. It indicates on a dial the direction in which the engine is running, and also shows the number of revolutions per minute made by the shaft. Previous to the introduction of this apparatus it was necessary, with apparatus of the kind now in use, to count the number of revolutions in a known time, and also to watch a direction pointer. It is claimed that these two devices, the rudder indicator and the shaft revolution indicator, are capable of affording a great saving in power and time, and it is claimed that they aid a saving of at least two hours' time was effected on a recent record-breaking trip across the Atlantic.

The orders are transmitted to the engine room by means of a system of dial telegraph, whereby any order indicated by a needle on a dial on the bridge is indicated in the engine room on a similar dial.

TRUMPET CALLS.

From the Horn Sounds a Warning Note to the Unredeemed.

EVERY man who hears the cross in Christ is called to follow him. Nothing pulls toward heaven like a good example.

No life can be a failure when God directs it. Whoever loves God loves light. A little religion is hard to keep.

Sin always feels the safest in the dark. Humility dies the moment it looks in the glass.

When God measures men the standard is Christ.

The devil gets many a boy by getting his father first.

Who whispers meet, the devil can sit down and rest.

The man who hates light will run from a shadow.

Babes in Christ should never be fed on watered milk.

The devil has some very good friends who belong to church.

The man who lives for Christ knows that Christ chose him.

A city's righteousness men are a better safeguard than its police.

Don't be a saint in church and a heathen on the street car.

The wise man can learn something from the mistakes of a fool.

For God of faith is never in a hurry for God to explain himself.

Christians should grow as soon as they begin to measure themselves.

There is a good deal of laziness that goes by the name of sickness.

If angels had to live with some men there would be more fallen ones.

Do as much good as you can and God will see to it that you do enough.

In nine cases out of ten the man who has riches paid too much for them.

Can't you think that the man who can drink or let it alone never does.

The first step toward heaven is taken when the heart says good-by to sin.

When Adam left Eden, an angel went before him, whose name was Hope.

The devil has to keep busy to hold his own in the house of a praying mother.

Give a lion one day the start and truth will be his for the rest of his life.

Many a prayer for a revival has failed because the preacher didn't want it.

If the sun never went down there are some crimes that would not be committed.

If there is any dog in a man it is sure to growl when his food is not to his liking.

The devil stands the best chance between a bright student and a drowsy home.

Many a man whose prayers are too long sells goods by a measure that is too short.

Many a man will fight for his creed, who never has a word of encouragement for his wife.

Plant a good man anywhere in this world, and the devil will immediately begin walking up and down in that neighborhood.

Something is the matter with the preaching when the devil can sit unmolested to ruin a town in sight of a church steeple.

Stranger Friendships.

When any one knocked at the door, he called out "Come in!" in a loud voice. Peltown, content in the house, had a friend of a spider, which he named. The spider, on seeing Peltown, came in and sat on his head, and he called it "Peltown's spider."

At this point she broke down and wept bitterly. "Dear me! This must have been boiling over with rage."—ChicAGO Enquirer.

"Tell me," said the young man passionately, "is my answer to be spelled out in three letters or two?" "Three," called the summer girl, shyly. "Darling!" "That is to say, it is 'no'."—ChicAGO Enquirer.

HANDSOME CLUB HOUSE.

Commodious Home Erected by the Milwaukee Yacht Club's House.

The Milwaukee Yacht Club's house, which is shown in the illustration, is the most elaborate of its kind in the West. It contains seven large rooms, all finished in the natural color of the wood. On the lower floor are the parlors and library, and on the floor above than the ordinary treatment, but preserves for the use of the patient, if not the entire limb, at any rate a much larger part of it than would be left after amputation. He uses hot water freely. After the skin has been shaved and cleaned from all fatty substances by ether, etc., in the usual way, a jet of hot water, 110 to 114 degrees Fahrenheit, but not higher, is made to irrigate the injured surface, and to penetrate the hollows and under all the detached parts of the wound without exception. This removes all clots and micro-organisms. The hot water is antiseptic, stanches the flow of blood, and helps to compensate for the loss of heat from bleeding, and especially from the traumatic shock. A RAT'S FRIENDSHIP.

Singular Attachment Between a Rotten and a Wretched Porter.

George Wilson, a colored porter at the Virginia hotel, who works for J. B. Brown & Co., is the object of the singular affection of a rat. About two weeks ago he caught a large gray rat in a wire trap in the storeroom and called one of the firm's men to his catch. The subject of disposing of the rat by poison, downing or by the aid of a rat terrier dog was discussed, and, pending a decision of the question, Wilson fed the rat in the cage for a day, and then let the rodent go. To his surprise, the rat returned to the trap the next night and was found the following morning awaiting George's visit with manifestations of pleasure. He was fed again, and exhibited his appreciation of his colored porter's kindness by rubbing his head along the bars, licking Wilson's finger and acting much as a cat does when purring forth her affection. Wilson stroked the rat through the bars of its prison, gave it more food and let it go again. It appreciates the delicate bestowed upon it by returning nightly to its cage to be fed. A singular fact is that the rat calmly ignores the presence of anyone else, and only will arouse itself and show delight when Wilson approaches. The rat is colored friend has as yet made no attempt to handle it for training purposes, but it shows genuine pleasure when he is around, and yesterday played about the storeroom while he was at work. After being released the rat usually climbs the wall and passes through a convenient hole into a room there. The life of the rat is not like that of a human being, and only a few days ago it was shot by a hunter. It is not so, however, when Wilson is around. Mr. Wilson, when he comes in the morning, dismounts, and, calling to Wilson, takes the rat's hand, and the animal follows the colored man anywhere and he perfectly docile in his presence. Perhaps one secret of Wilson's influence over dumb animals is his uniform good nature and kindly disposition. You can rest these qualities in Wilson's face, and he is a genuine good-natured, kindly Virginia dandy, one of the best of his type.—Hartford Courant.

BASE BALL.

HAMMONTON 18. HIGHLAND 8.

They wish they hadn't tried to get even with us, last Saturday. McCarthy was away for stick-swingers, most of the time, and local battery was not quite as scientific as usual. The result was plenty of batting, and that kept the fielders limbered up all through the game.

The Highlands' second baseman was Childs, of the Philadelphia Athletics, and his work on the infield and at the bat, did credit to the Athletics.

It was another see saw game, up to the last two or three innings.

The first was a goose-egg for Hammonton; and with the help of a three-bagger by Meehan, the visitors tallied three. The thing was reversed in the second,—the goose-egg dropped on the visitors, and Luderitz put a dandy drop over in the bushes. Highland fielders killed mosquitoes there while Bakely, Small, and Luderitz rode the merry-go-round to sweet but not melodious music from the grand stand. Flavell had tried to stop the ball with his finger-tips, so Luderitz was not credited with a home run. Watt made a beautiful throw in this inning, from centre to home, just in time to catch McCarthy.

Then followed two pairs of goose-eggs. Just how the locals' half of the fifth inning terminated is not quite clear to the reporter, and a majority on the grand stand gave up the problem and simply groaned. It looked as though Bakely and Gartside each wanted the third base, which of course wasn't big enough for two, so, by agreement, they walked off the diamond and left it to the visitors. The Doctor and Hitchner had scored.

In the sixth, by a succession of good bat-work, etc., the visitors put themselves three ahead.

The seventh left the score 9 to 8 in our favor, four runs being made after two men were out, and Farrar put a circle down for the Highlands.

The eighth and ninth inning scores were 5 to 0 and 4 to 0 respectively, in favor of the locals, making the total 18 to 8. The score:

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gundersen, of Dinwiddie, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doctor King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at River Junction she was bro't down with pneumonia succeeding a grip. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little intermission, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Croft's Pharmacy. Regular size, 50 cents and $1.
