G. A. R. Encampment.

The thirty-sixth Annual Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held in Washington, D. C., Oct. 6th to 11th.

Forty years ago, when the country was in the throes of Civil War, Washington in no way resembled Washington of the present day, and those of the old veterans who have had few chances to visit, in the interval the Capital City of the Government, saved from destruction by their valor and heroism, will hardly know the place; but the place will know them, and any one who has the right to wear the bronze G. A. R. emblem can be assured of a cordial welcome everywhere.

The Philadelphia & Reading Railway will, for this occasion, sell excursion tickets to Washington for special rate of single fare for the round trip. These tickets will be sold and good going Oct. 4th to 7th, and good to return until Oct. 14th, inclusive. By special deposit of ticket with joint agent in Washington, and payment of 50 cents additional, return limit will be extended to Nov. 3rd.

By this arrangement the veterans and their friends will have ample time to visit State, Army and Navy buildings, Treasury, National Library, Mt. Vernon, Arlington, and also make extended trips to the principal battlefields of Virginia. Arrangements have been made by which holders of G. A. R. excursion tickets to Washington will secure special rates on these trips.

For full particulars as to rates, etc., apply to any P. and R. ticket agent, or address Edson J. Weeks, General Passenger Agent, Philadelphia.

The ladies have taken this space by the year, and are responsible for all that it may contain.

"We have for so many years heard such varied and terrible things of the legalized liquor traffic," said a young minister, "that our brains have grown stupid with the repetition. Let us for a few moments try to grasp the horror of this monster iniquity of the age."

"There is, in a certain industrial centre, a covered passage-way that leads to the well-ordered chambers of death. Over this bridge the blatter of feet sounds as by the hundred and the thousand creatures are driven to their doom. They are swung onto the wheel that turns them swiftly into the hands of the master-slaughterer. In that place blood is on every side."

When will the people see these truths in the right light?

GOOD Short Stories

In his "Story of the Cowboy" Emerson Hough gives the following quarterly report of a foreman to an Eastern ranch owner, which constituted his most serious labor of the year: "Dear Sir, we have brand 500 calves this morning we have made some hay potatoes in a fare crop. That Englishman you left in charge at the other camp got to fresh an' we had to kill him. Nothing much has happened since you left. Yours truly, J. M."

One day at a rehearsal, W. S. Gilbert observed a girl crying, and asked her the cause of it. Between her sobs, she declared she had been insulted by one of the customers, who had said to her: "You are a dear, but you ought to be." Gilbert immediately looked very sympathetic, and said: "Well, you are not, are you, dear?" To which she replied, promptly, "Why, of course not, Gilbert, that's just what I'm afraid of."

The other day a Sunday school superintendent, in talking to his pupils about cruelty to animals, said: "I have a card toward a creature that has no way of protecting itself. Why, children, I once knew a little boy who cut off a calf's tail. Think of it—look at a knife and cut out the tail of a calf, and you will see a verse in the Bible that would have taught this cruel boy that he should not have cut off the calf's tail!" After a moment's silence, a small boy held up his hand, and when asked to quote his verse, ventured: "What God hath joined together, let no man put asunder."

One of the packages of seed provided by the Department of Agriculture was recently returned to a member of Congress by one of his constituents, with the following modest request: "I appreciate your good-will in sending the seeds, but my eldest daughter, Matilda, is going to marry the doctor down to the village next month, and wife and I think of giving up the farm and going there to live. If we do, the seeds won't be much good, as we shan't have a garden, so I am sending you some handkerchiefs or a nice spring bonnet for Matilda, I would be much obliged."

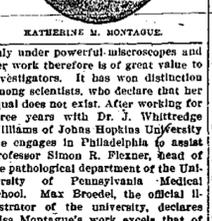

When Dion Bonducaut was playing "The Vampire" at the Princess Theatre, London, the scene represented the highest regions of the Alps by moonlight, while a thunder storm raged in the distance. One night, in the height of the season, a tremendous clap of thunder startled the audience, and interrupted Mr. Bonducaut in the middle of a speech. Lowering his voice so that it could be heard only by the property man, he said: "Very well, Mr. Davis, you are making more mistakes. That clap of thunder came in the wrong place." Mr. Davis replied in stentorian tones, which could be plainly heard all over the auditorium: "No fault of mine, sir, it was a thunder. Thunder's all out of doors; perhaps you can stop it there."

THAT WORD "LOAFER."
Question as to the Derivation Becoming Acute in London.
The question as to the derivation of that word "loafer," which Mr. Rhodes will be likely to elevate from the slang dictionary to a more dignified position, says the London Chronicle. Despite "Notes and Queries," and the derivation, though Iona Bretnanna, from "that lofer (lover) of yours always hanging around the girls and making a nuisance of himself," the word is Spanish and, like galano and other came from Mexico, through Texas to the States. It is the Anglicized or Americanized form of gallofero, "an idle, lazy vagabond," passing, as my student of Hartford knows, through gallofero, and lofero, to lofer, and ending up with the pretense of having something English or American about it. As "loafer," a man who has no cash, and who has the loaf in his pocket, does not earn. Of the loafer, Josh Billings has given in his "Almanac" a description which would have gone to the heart of the loafer, and the loafer, or any other property that was his, if he could help it: "The loafer is a thing who is willing to be deprived of the privilege of abusing others. He occupies all the benches, seats, from the judge on the bench clear down to the ragged creature who leans against lamp posts and fights flies in August. He has no pride that is worth anything, and that anybody could hurt. During his boyhood he kills cats and robs hens' nests. During middle life he begins all the tobacco he uses and drinks all the cheap whisky he can get, and somebody else's expense, and does it at last. The loafer in America would think to be more pronounced than his British brother. If we take Henry W. Shaw's Billings—see authority."

In writing a letter, the great genius of one who remembers what should be left out.

EXCELS AS MICROBE ARTIST.

Miss Katherine M. Montague lends her Art to Science.
Both science and art claim Miss Katherine M. Montague, of Baltimore, who has taken up in Philadelphia her peculiar profession. She is a painter of microbes.
Miss Montague possesses a wonderful talent for producing with the brush the minute organisms which are visible only under powerful microscopes and her work therefore is of great value to investigators. It has won distinction among scientists, who declare that her excels does not exist. After working for three years with Dr. J. Whittridge Williams of Johns Hopkins University, she engages in Philadelphia as assistant Professor Simon R. Plesner, head of the pathological department of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School. Max Broedel, the official illustrator of the university, declares Miss Montague's work excels that of any other artist in the world.

FINANCIAL REVERSES OF LADY DUDLEY, Noted English Beauty.
Reckless extravagance, which an income of $500,000 a year could not satisfy, has led to the financial ruin of the Countess of Dudley. For a score of years has been considered one of England's most beautiful women. Lady Dudley had sold her magnificent home in London, which cost nearly $200,000 to decorate. To J. Pierpont Morgan, and only a short time since was compelled to bring off her famous jewels, they bringing $450,000 at auction. Her husband, the Earl of Dudley, who was insane, had a passion for beautiful jewelry, and at one time he had one of the finest collections of precious stones in the world. He was immensely wealthy, his income being about $2,000,000 a year. His son, the present earl, fell heir to this vast estate, but squandered much of it in extravagant living. Lady Dudley had been a leader in London's exclusive society for many years, and there were many brilliant social functions at her house. When her son married, her income of $500,000 was cut down to a tenth of that sum, not nearly enough to maintain her in the way she was accustomed to live. At one time it was said that she was engaged to marry Dr. Jameson, and there is no doubt that the late Countess Rhodes once was a suitor for her hand.

THE ONLY CHANCE.
Kind Old Gentlemen—Why do you carry that umbrella, little boy? It's not raining.
"No, sir."
"And the sun's not shining."
"No, sir."
"Why do you carry that umbrella?"
"Well, when I'm raining, he wants it, and when the sun's shining he wants it, and it's only this kinder weather I can get to use it at all." Exchange.

KILLING CHRISTIANS IN TURKEY.
A recent report shows that 2,500 Christians were murdered in 1901 by the Turks. In only sixty-one cases were the murderers punished and then with not more than four years' imprisonment.

ALONG THE WAY TO MEETIN'.

I wondered if the world so wide had heard my heart a-beatin'. With Sally walkin' at my side along the way to meetin' it seemed as if every step—just keepin' time accordin', An' sayin' "There's no rest for you 'cept 'older side of Jordan!"

I'd tried an' tried to say "the word," with patientest endeavor; The word that might, or mightn't, make her love me any more forever; But somehow, when it reached my lips, it seemed so much to utter, With my poor heart a-keepin' up that everlastin' flutter!

'Twas about my tribulation day—close by my side to view her— To pull the wild flowers by the way, an' to pick the daisies blue; But, sudden, come this word from her— "twas like a benediction!" "I'm a sinner, John, this mornin' day you're under deep conviction!"

Oh, then, I up an' told her all my heart, so soul-akin' an' true; I loved her more than all the world— that's how I stood convinced; An' then, as close she came to me, with her "oldest look" an' tender, I read my "sinners" titles clear to earth— an' "oh, you sinner!"— Atlanta Constitution.

FARMER DALE'S MISTAKE.
I WAS on a wheeling cart and stopped for supper and all night at a forlorn-looking farmhouse. I was surprised to see no woman about, all the work being done by the owner of the place, Ezra Dale. After supper I lighted a pipe and sat on the porch smoking. Dale came and sat beside me.

"You have finished your evening chores early," I said. "When my wife is without a servant, she never gets the dishes washed before 9 o'clock."
"Well, yes, I don't do it that way. I wash the dishes a week. Then I put 'em all on the wagon, drive 'em into the creek, take a mop, an' when I get through they shine like pewter."

"Don't you think a wife would be handy?"—the could-do-your-own-work type of man.
"I don't need no wife, no needles an' thread an' buttons. These are my kids!" And he handed me a case containing the articles mentioned and no more.
"Where's your thimble?" I asked.
"Don't need no thimble. I tried one once an' couldn't use it. It's harder to get the head of the needle agin' the wall and drive it through that way!"

ELWOOD NOTES.

Miss Roba Stone is substituting for a short time as teacher in Miss Ida Williams' school, at Magnolia.

Harry Langham is home from Atlantic City. Hotel Loraine, where he has been clerking, has closed.

W. A. Bischoff and family anticipate a trip to New York State next week. It is believed that the change will be beneficial to Mr. B.

L. L. Holden is much better. With the aid of two canes he can walk from room to room. He appears to feel quite independent.

Miss Jennie McDermott is anticipating a visit to Cross Keys next week.

George C. Bozarth spent a day in Atlantic City this week.

Mrs. A. E. Holden and her daughter went to Philadelphia, Tuesday. Mrs. H. expects to remain several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bentley were at Gloucester, last week, to get some lumber sawed up. Mr. B. is erecting several buildings on his place, built of lumber cut from his own pine forest.

John D. Carver has had his house raised eighteen inches.

Did you hear any unusual noise on Monday night? It sounded much like a stampede of horses in Bozarth's barn loft. There must have been a mule among them, also, judging from the awful sounds which disturbed the stillness of the night. But if you had gone there at dawn of day, you would probably have seen seeds and watermelon rinds in abundance, and then guessed the rest.

All the regular services of the Presbyterian Church will be held in their own church building to-morrow (Sunday), at the usual hours. Preaching both morning and evening by the Rev. Andrew Dillian. U.

Poisoning Dogs.

I approve of all that Mr. Buggan advocated in a previous issue. I am opposed to murder in any form, or of any creature. I consider the man who goes out with a gun on his shoulder, to shoot birds as guilty of a crime. The crane recently murdered on the Lake also had rights which even man should have respected. But man also has rights, and the laws should be such as to tax heavily those who allow dogs to roam. Every citizen should be willing to pay his share of taxation, yet the "dog tax" is frequently disregarded. No one should keep a dog unless he has facilities for so doing. I find dogs on the street at all hours,—some of them "valuable" to their owners. The man who cannot keep his dog at home, or in some manner prevent annoyance to others, is committing a wrong to those who object to being thus annoyed.
