HAMMONTON, N. J., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1917

No. 43

Election day comes on Nov. 6th. The Senior Editor was on the sick list part of the week.

Mrs. C. M. Winchips is spending the winter in Germantown.

Hammonton Loan Association meets on Thursday evening.

Little Ha-Ha Council's social will be postponed to Nov. 12th.

The Needlework Guild's meeting will be held on Thursday, Nov. 8.

B. F. Henshaw is missed by his many friends, being quite sick at his home.

Nathan F. Adams and family are to return to Hammonton in the near future.

Rev. C. D. Clauss, of Allentown, Pa., spent part of this week in Hammonton.

Guns are watching the calendar for Nov. 10th, when rabbit season opens.

Deer season continues next Wednesday. But one buck was brought in this week.

Hammonton Band will have a benefit at Eagle Theatre on Thursday evening, Nov. 8th.

St. Mark's Church believes in doing its bit,—subscribing for a fifty dollar Liberty Bond.

Tuesday next, the 30th, is the last day for registration,—only one week before general election.

Arthur Hoyt rode his wheel from Philadelphia yesterday, for an over-night visit with relatives.

The Polyannas will hold their regular monthly meeting, Saturday afternoon, at the M. E. Church.

On Monday, Nov. 12th, the schools will resume their regular schedule of two sessions per day.

Mrs. Annie Albright, enjoyed a trip to Niagara Falls, stopping off at her old home, Dover, N. J.

St. Joseph's Church presented the Red Cross Society a much needed sewing machine for their work room.

War Relief Department of the Needlework Guild acknowledges with thanks donation from Mrs. McIlvaine.

Orville P. DeWitt, a lawyer from Camden, has office hours in the Godfrey Building, Friday evening and Saturday.

All interested in forming some sort of men's organization are urged to be present next Friday evening, in Firemen's Hall.

The Baptists invite all men to their meeting to-morrow afternoon, at three o'clock. A speaker from Philadelphia will be present.

Miss Emma Faunce has so far recovered from recent illness that she expects to resume her duties as teacher of music, next Monday.

The Rural Delivery route from Winslow is to be changed to Hammonton. This will necessitate some rearrangement of the present routes.

Mrs. Theodore Baker is in St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia, suffering from a broken hip, received on Oct. 17th, while walking across her lawn.

It is stated that members of the Lenz family will return to vicinity of Hammonton,—the construction company having a large contract along the Delaware.

Washington Camp, No. 73, P. O. S. of A., will attend the Baptist Church Sunday evening, Oct. 28th, in a body. Meet at the Camp room at 7:15 p. m.

Gordon Babcock Enlists.

Another one of the young men from Hammonton has volunteered to serve his country in France.

Edmund Gordon Babcock has enlisted in the department of aviation. He was offered an extended leave of absence by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce. Before leaving, the office force gave him a beautiful Wallace wrist watch.

The President and Secretary of the Chamber gave him a silver and gold cigar case, in appreciation of his work.

A farewell reception was tendered him at the Adolphia.

His many friends wish him God-speed.

Hallowe'en Carnival.

This year's program for next Wednesday night's parade is fully up to the standard, although not quite ready for publication as yet.

A meeting of the committee was held last evening and doubtless final details were completed.

All merchants are asked to enter floats in the parade. Lodges are also expected, as well as hundreds of individuals, comic and otherwise. The Home Guards will be dressed up, each squad different, tho' all members dressed alike in their own squad.

It is suggested that stores and residences be decorated with lights, lanterns, etc. to add to the fun.

Prizes will be awarded as follows:

$10 for most in line.
$5 for best appearance.
$5 for most comic costume.
$5 for best float.
$2.50 for second best float.

HELP BUILD A BIGGER, BETTER HAMMONTON.

Use the Planks in This Platform.

- 1.—A refusal to grant any license for the sale of intoxicating liquors.
- 2.—The establishment of Road Districts, that work on the highways may be more expeditiously and economically performed, and that any taxpayer may know if his district is receiving proper consideration, I believe over one thousand dollars a year can be saved on highway work in Hammonton.
- 3.—The appointment, in a fair, open manner, of a non-partisan Advisory Committee, the members of which will enable Council to ascertain public sentiment on leading issues. This committee will be composed of representative men of all parties—foreign-born as well as American-born citizens. The recommendations of this committee will not be binding upon Council, but will receive deep, respectful consideration. Some bad mistakes have been made in the past which such a committee would have prevented.
- 4.—The appointment of a new committee in Council, a committee designed to bring into closer working relations the Board of Health, Water Commissioners and Council. For years there has not been a proper agreement between these bodies, and this new committee would arrange to have all parties in harmonious accord.

5.—The adoption of an ordinance regulating the transportation question—one designed to promote the welfare of honest, scrupulous Hammonton citizens, and to hold in check out of town drivers, who often reap a harvest here and sometimes leave a bad odor behind.

6.—An ordinance that will prohibit, except upon payment of a heavy tax, "squalter" dealers and shows from doing business in Hammonton and taking from our people a lot of hard-earned money, giving them trash in exchange. This ordinance would not prevent high-class entertainments or business propositions, but grab-all concerns.

7.—Better grade crossing protection and transportation facilities. The writer has had unusual success in obtaining improvements, for the public good, from the railroad companies, and believes that as Mayor his influence along that line would be greatly augmented.

Yours for Good Government,
THOMAS B. DELCKER, Candidate for Mayor.

CLEVER DISGUISES AND FURNITURE FOR THE UBIQUITOUS TELEPHONE

By Elizabeth Leathers.

THE UNIVERSAL use of the telephone makes particularly pressing the need for a clever disguise or a piece of furniture that will accommodate the telephone's usefulness—not to say attractiveness.

Necessary as it is, the telephone cannot be regarded as especially ornamental and reversing the old adage concerning the conduct of children, it is often desirable that the telephone should be hidden and not seen.

The location of the telephone is then the first important point to be considered, when it is about to be installed. For the convenience, when a room cannot be set aside and devoted exclusively to its use on the lower floor of a house, the best place for it is in a narrow passageway or hall, wall fixture and furniture.

The ideal location, however, is a desk or a table in a room, but a desk or a table and a few chairs, and a complete private office, surrounded by air and light, one might as well talk at one's desk as at a desk.

Such telephone rooms are frequently built into new houses, but where such conditions are not to be had, the telephone box or apparatus may often be concealed in some way and the receiver, attached to a cord of reasonable length, may be placed upon a small stand or table, with a chair or a stool conveniently near. The telephone directory can hang at one side and upon the table there may be a notepad and a pencil for recording telephone numbers, or for writing messages.

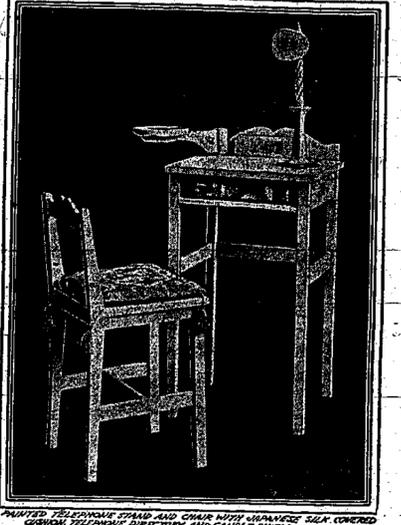

Of course any ordinary table or stand will serve in this way, but the table that is especially made to hold a telephone and the directory is unquestionably more comfortable and convenient. These are made in various heights, so that the fixture holding the mouth piece can rest upon the table at a height that dispenses with the necessity of bending over to talk through it or of making it necessary to raise it from the table when not in use.

At the back edge of the table there is a low railing to prevent the fixture from being pushed off onto the floor, an accident that often happens on an unprotected table.

Just below the top surface of the telephone table is a shelf, made sufficiently deep to hold a telephone book. This is an added convenience, as the directory is necessarily large and cumbersome, and having been consulted is usually, for the time being, set aside.

WHILE the standard type is the same, the appearance of telephone furniture can be somewhat diversified. It is possible to have a desk that is not only a desk, but a desk that is also a desk.

When the furniture throughout the room is of the same material, the appearance of the telephone furniture is not so noticeable. It is possible to have a desk that is not only a desk, but a desk that is also a desk.

THE BRIDE'S KITCHEN

I save the kitchen for the last," said the bride, as having led her guests through a series of dainty chit-chat adorned bedrooms, she turned again to the kitchen.

"The kitchen, you know, is the center of the house, or should be according to the wisest of my housekeeping friends, and it is particularly good to have it finished here, because it is the place where the bride and groom are to be seen together."

"Well, I declare," exclaimed Aunt Harriet, approvingly, "getting the better of her, I can see that you are a good deal of a housewife."

"And on the other side of the sink," went on the bride, who had not yet finished her demonstration, "is my sink, which is under the window, you know, and the bride should be able to see it from one to the other by merely turning round."

"Now have a great many cupboards," said Aunt Harriet, "and the bride should be able to see it from one to the other by merely turning round."

"That's all right," said the bride, "but the sink is in the middle of the kitchen floor. I have room enough to keep it in the middle of the kitchen floor. I have room enough to keep it in the middle of the kitchen floor. I have room enough to keep it in the middle of the kitchen floor."

TO MAKE CRISP GOLDEN BROWN TOAST

There is crisp, golden brown toast with a flavor that lingers, that is so hard to get, so hard to make, that it is almost impossible to describe. It is not a matter of degree of crispness. You cannot use very stale bread and expect it to result in toast that is crisp. Neither can you take perfectly fresh bread and produce toast that is crisp. It is a matter of degree of crispness. You cannot use very stale bread and expect it to result in toast that is crisp. Neither can you take perfectly fresh bread and produce toast that is crisp. It is a matter of degree of crispness.

The best toast is made from a day or two old bread, sliced the night before it is to be toasted. This insures the removal of each slice to be dry before toasting. As soon as each slice is removed from the toaster it should be placed on a plate and left to cool. It is not necessary to serve it as soon after being made as possible.

IN BRING FISH.

An old Southern cook for famed for her delicacies used corn meal to cover fish for frying. This is not a wartime economy, but according to this authority on things epicurean, corn meal is to be preferred to wheat flour or bread crumbs as it adds a delightful flavor to the fish and browns nicely and evenly.

Side-Stepping the Cleaner's Bill

Of course we all have things that we would like to have cleaned, but if they are to be made to look right, there are many other considerations when one may also take an addition to his bill. It is not a matter of degree of crispness. You cannot use very stale bread and expect it to result in toast that is crisp. Neither can you take perfectly fresh bread and produce toast that is crisp. It is a matter of degree of crispness.

Don't be stiner with kind words. They are worth nothing till you scatter them about.

HELPING A BASHFUL LOVER

He said that he had been asked to give a sermon on the subject of helping a bashful lover. He said that he had been asked to give a sermon on the subject of helping a bashful lover.

VERY OFTEN THE SIGHT OF A DOCTOR WILL CURE US FELLAS!

IN THE HOLLOW OF HIS HAND

THE force January wind shook the little frame schoolhouse on the Dakota prairie until the tin dinner pails under the benches rattled.

The children hurried into their traps and pulled into the box. The bottom was covered deep with straw and blankets, and there were two buffalo robes. Standing in the front, Warren reached out as close to the north side as possible. Every few minutes the teacher looked anxiously out of the window at the gray wall that was slowly rising in the northwest and each time the wall seemed to be a little higher and a little darker. The morning had been fine. The plainsmen, seeing the past, she chuckled and when she had helped the younger children into the wraps opened the door. A smothering cloud of snow as fine as flour and as sharp as cutting as so much sand nearly swept her from her feet. The "big blizzard" of January 12, 1881, was on.

He would. He feared to stay, because if he did not return on time his father would start out to look for him, and might get lost and freeze to death. His horses were the only ones that would live through the blizzard. The children hurried into their traps and pulled into the box. The bottom was covered deep with straw and blankets, and there were two buffalo robes.

where's the house? I can't see a thing. "There isn't any house!" Warren shouted in her ear. "We're lost, and you've got to keep the kids covered up while I lead the team. They won't drive. Do you understand?"

Needlework Guild Circular

The following extracts from an open letter written by Mrs. John Wood Stewart, founder of the Needlework Guild of America, to various Branches, should prove of great interest to the members and friends of the Guild.

"The year 1917 celebrates the thirty-second anniversary of the Needlework Guild of America. In union there is strength has been proven by our organization. Without the stimulus given by each Branch to every other, we could never have attained over 300,000 members. Let the year 1917 rouse us to greater effort. Let us keep pace with other organizations of later growth, and announce with the trumpet and loud cymbal this call to service.

"This is a circular letter, and will go to some Branches which have not heeded the call of the National President, to form an Emergency Committee, ready to act for our Country's call in name of the Needlework Guild. The letter would be incomplete, however, and unfair to you all, if I did not mention the results for this Guild of those who did hear and obey the call. Let us rejoice one and all that we have given in the name of the Guild more than two million garments and hospital supplies, mostly through our foreign branches, Paris and Lyons.

"Our affiliation with the Red Cross, so heartily appreciated at the headquarters of both organizations, I wish to emphasize at your meetings. I believe that many more of our Branches will decide to do something for war relief, in the name of the Guild, henceforth. Emergency work is as truly our legitimate work and duty as the two garments a year."

Vacuum Cleaning

There is now an opportunity for everyone to use an electric vacuum cleaner without going to the expense incidental to purchasing one outright.

We have arranged for the rental, at a nominal sum, of a

FRANTZ PREMIER CLEANER to any of our customers who wish to avail themselves of this privilege. We deliver the machine, and call for it when you are through with it. When the sum of all the rentals has equalled the price of the machine, the name of one of our customers who has used the machine is drawn by lot, and the winner is presented with the cleaner, free of cost.
