The most important issue in American politics. The widely prevailing system of the licensed and legalized sale of alcoholic beverages is so ruinous to individual interests, so inimical to public welfare, so destructive of national wealth, and so subversive of the rights of great masses of our citizenship, that the destruction of the traffic, and for years has been the most important question in American politics.

Patrons of Husbandry.

Hammonton Grange, No. 3, entertained the members of Egg Harbor Grange at their regular meeting on Tuesday evening. Third and fourth degrees were then conferred on eight candidates.

The Grange Hall was filled with members and their visiting friends. After the conferring of degrees, the harvest feast was spread, and was followed by a literary entertainment, consisting of readings, recitations, and speech-making, interspersed with music, winding up with the harvest dance.

The evening was greatly enjoyed by all present. The Grange is deservedly becoming one of the most popular organizations in town.

Building Lots at Auction.

The sale was well attended, last Saturday afternoon, and Messrs. Dobbs & Frazier are doubtless pleased with the success of their first public effort to boom their attractive tract.

The following is a list of the sales, caught on the wing by a REPUBLICAN reporter:

Lots 7, 9, 13, 15 and 17, in block 1, were bought by Henry Measley, for $165, $170 and $175 each. They are on Washington St., east of John Prach's residence. Mr. M. has ordered two houses built on his lots.
Kirk Spear bought lots 5 and 6, in block 3, just east of St. Mark's church, for $155 each.

Fred Rock paid $130 for lot 16, block 7, on Passmore Ave.
Lot 18, block 7, brought $105.—Mrs. McLaughlin the purchaser.

Ben. Foglietta paid $90 each for lots 3, 4, and 5, block 10, on the east side of Passmore Ave.

Lots 30 and 31, block 11, on Monroe Ave., were taken by Henry Nicolai, at $90 each.

Thos. B. Decker bid in lots 23 and 24, block 11, for $105 and $130.
Block 9, lots 22 and 23, each $130; lots 6 and 7, block 12, $90 each; lots 20 and 21, block 13, $120 each, were bought (we understood) by Mr. Dietz. It is said that he will build.

We hear that four more lots were sold, but our representative did not get location or name.

That public drinking fountain was set up, Wednesday afternoon, being located almost in front of the REPUBLICAN office entrance. It is made of cast iron, paneled and decorated, and is surmounted by female figure holding a dove on her fingers, measuring nine feet over all. It has a faucet and two dippers for the refreshment of humanity, on the inside; a generous horse-trough on the street side. Altogether, it weighs over one thousand pounds, and is admired by all. There should be an inscription, somewhere, giving credit to the W. C. T. U., to whom the town is indebted for this latest improvement. It is reported that water will not be turned on until next Spring.

DO IT TO-DAY!

...had escaped through the country. The thief had been discovered two hours after he might have been committed, and so the thief had probably a very good start of his pursuers.

After telegraphing a description of the man to all the large cities, Morgan went to interview the agent at the Central Depot. A good luck would have it, he remembered seeing a ticket to Philadelphia, to a dark-visaged man with a scar on his face.

This was sufficient for Morgan. He too, bought a ticket for Philadelphia. After the train left the station, he suddenly remembered that some one had said—some one on the street, who evidently didn't know much about it—that Pearsall (or Castiglioni, as he was called by the circus-going public) had relatives in—oh, what was the town she had mentioned? Union? Mt. Holly? Princeton? Burlington? Jamesburgh? None of them sounded like the name he had heard her mention. Well, any way, the fellow may have gone on to Philadelphia sure enough.

Morgan leaned back in his seat, planning his course after he should reach Philadelphia, but always keeping eyes and ears open for anything that would change his decision. Over half an hour had passed, when the porter called "Union! Next station Rabway!"

Morgan almost jumped out of his seat. Rabway! That was it! He was impatient for the station to come into sight. A freight flashed across his view. As it passed rapidly on he caught a glimpse of a face. The man was just crouching down in an empty coal car, and the face was the face of Castiglioni!

Morgan jumped to his feet and ran to the platform. He could not jump off the passenger and hope to catch the freight. Before he could recover himself the freight would be gone. He paused an instant to quiet his nerves, and then leaped toward the moving freight cars. He jumped toward the forward end of the freight, opposing the momentum of the swift passenger, lest he should be dashed into a lifeless thing against the side of the freight. He had measured for a hold on the forward end of a car, but the rod passed him and he grasped that on the back end instead. Here he hung by one hand, until the passenger had passed, then with a great effort, for the cars were at full speed, he swung himself to the ladder and mounted to the top. Here he sat down for an instant to think. Had Castiglioni seen him on No. 9? If so, had he seen him jump? He would be prepared for the worst.

He walked down the line of cars toward the engine, pistol in hand and ready for use. He came in plain sight of the coal car, but could see no sign of the quarry. Perhaps he had left some trace, however.

When he stood upon the nearest end of the next car, he looked down into the empty coal car. Lying upon his face, as if asleep, or dead, was Castiglioni, in the end of the car next him.

Morgan spring down into the car, and in one minute more Castiglioni was his prisoner.

Castiglioni was sent to the State prison for thirty years, and Costelli, who had not been heard of since his accident, reappeared to take his old place on the trapeze. It came out that Castiglioni, or Pearsall, had taken Costelli's place three years before, the name Castiglioni having been given him on account of its likeness to "Costelli."

So much of the story of these two men had come to my knowledge, mostly from newspaper reports, the first incident only being strictly my own property. This part of the story was told me by my two small cousins, the two boy spectators mentioned. How I found out more of it, you shall hear.

I had been retained as lawyer for Charles Edgar, a young man who was at first accused of the diamond theft already mentioned, and in that way became acquainted with Les Morgan, detective. He was not very communicative to a mere acquaintance, but after a while we became quite confidential friends. Morgan related a great deal of past experience, but I noticed that he never mentioned any occurrence as happening after his eighteenth year unless it was something in connection with the diamond case, or one other, a forgery case in which he had been interested.

I did not see him the day that he captured Castiglioni, nor at all afterward until two years had passed away.

On evening in June, 1895, however, he walked into my room at the hotel without knocking. Of course I was glad to see him again and we soon began to talk of what had taken place since we last met.

"There's one thing, Morgan, I'd like to know more about, and that's the circus robbery case. Do you happen to know any more than was published?"

Morgan gave a short laugh.

"Well, yes, I guess I do. In the first place, I am Costelli!" Then, waiting to see me look completely thunderstruck and ready to ask any number of questions—"In the second place, Castiglioni is my deadly enemy—or was until now. I guess he isn't very deadly now."

"The connection between us began a long time ago when Pearsall's father—let's not call him Castiglioni any more just now—it's such a jaw-breaker—when Pearsall's father and my father were working together on a ranch in Texas. They were fast friends. Mr.

Pearsall married a Spanish-Mexican girl and moved to New Jersey. Father married a French Creole and moved to Georgia. Then they lost sight of each other. And it just happened that Pearsall's son and yours truly joined the same circus. Pearsall ran away to join the company—didn't like farm life—I joined because there wasn't work enough for me at home, and I guess most folks thought I was a head-then and my mother was, too, for letting me go. But I always liked the life—and always shall; I guess, as long as it likes me.

"Somehow or other, I always got along better than Pearsall, and was liked better by the men, and I think that's one reason why he hated me so. But, see here, Sanford, Pearsall always was a mean sneak, and I wouldn't blame anybody for disliking him.

"You see, it was this way," leaning forward, "he had run away from home to shirk and wanted to shirk here, too. There was one thing he always did take to, though, and that was the trapeze. I didn't naturally like the work; but they expected Boro, the trapeze they had with them then, to quit work soon. He was getting rather too old for it. And the work carried a good salary with it. I was determined to have the place, if I possibly could get it, and there Pearsall and I were at cross-purposes certainly. But I won! And he was given unimportant work. Trapeze was all he ever was really good for.

"I noticed his face once or twice after that. Somehow it reminded me of the books of a tiger just ready to spring, and that day at Wilbur—I guess nobody but Pearsall and I have ever really known what made me fall. The fellow flashed a mirror right up into my face just as I made that last spring and—well, I ought to have been killed. I never could really understand why I wasn't. I'm sure I felt as if I was falling to my doom when that light flashed and I knew I had lost my nerve. I thought it was lost forever. That was why I didn't go back. I didn't dare trust myself on the trapeze again, though my muscles were as firm as ever.

"Have Pearsall hung for it? Well, I guess I could have had—something done, but I had an idea he'd never try to injure anybody but me. I was at ready out of his way, though not seriously injured—nothing but a shoulder and a knee broken. Then he got my place and was called 'Castiglioni' because it sounded something like Costelli, and when that forgery case came up I just appeared under my true name, Lee Morgan, and offered my services as private detective merely. When that robbery case came up—the ten thousand I mean—after I was established as a government detective—well, with a little laugh, 'I couldn't help feeling that I had hurt the company by not getting my nerve back, because I knew Castiglioni wasn't half as good as I was. Besides it was so dog-mean of him to steal from them. After I managed to jump from one moving train to another, I decided I had got my nerve back, and—leaning back with his hands behind his head—"It's all right now, I guess. I'm on vacation, Sanford, at home, Jersey Heights. Here's the address. Come and see me."

CHECKS YOUR CIGARS.

Strange Custom in a New York Department Store.

Every one knows that you can check a trunk, even if it be to San Francisco. You also receive a check to your hansom cab when you drive up to a restaurant, or for your $20,000 motor car at the country club. Even the good housewife when she goes to the up-to-date department store may check her baby while she makes her round of the counters. It is known to very few, however, that in a certain wholesale dry goods house in this city you can and must check your lighted cigar before entering the building.

This dry goods house is the largest in this country, if not in the world. It covers an entire city block, a few minutes' walk from Broadway. And everyone, no matter whether he be a big buyer with a carload order, or a diminutive messenger-boy with a telegram, must leave at the door his cigar, cigarette, or pipe. It is the most stringent rule of this great firm that no one, from the $50,000 a year salaried president down to the $3 a week office boy, may smoke when inside the building.

At the entrance stands a neatly uniformed man, who is big enough to make one think twice about argument. As you enter he politely touches you on the arm and says: "Pardon me, are you smoking?" and should that be the case, he will say, "I must ask you to leave your cigar here."

He will then hand you a check and with gloved fingers carefully deposit the perfect or pipe on a small brass rack provided for the purpose, and which bears the same number as the check you have received. When you leave the building you present your check and receive your cigar or pipe and a match to light it with and go on your way.

Even when arrayed in a dress with a long train a woman will make a sweeping denial if accused of extravagance.

LITTLE STORIES AND INCIDENTS

That Will Interest and Entertain Young Readers.

The Orphan Turtle.

There once was a poor little turtle. Whose father and mother both died; She hadn't a penny, And how to get any She found it was hard to decide.

"If I were a bird," said the turtle, "What lessons in song I could give! But without any voice There is plainly no choice, And it's dreadfully damp where I live.

"If I were a little brown squirrel I might teach the caper and prance.

But my legs are so short, Dancing isn't my forte, So in that line I haven't a chance.

"I know what I'll do," said the turtle, "I'll rent an immense muddy pool; And there every day Little fishes will pay To attend my Select Swimming School.

"The tadpoles will not be admitted; But a frog may sit near on the bank. To take in the dollars From all of the scholars, And show them the way to the tank." —The Holiday Magazine.

Jimmy Fish-Hook.

Jimmy Fish-Hook is a pure Maltese cat. All day long he suns himself on the stone steps of the entrance to the City Hospital. Jimmy lives there with eight doctors and forty nurses.

He has made friends with "Aunt Katy," the old colored woman who cooks for the doctors. When the bells ring for "meals" he walks down the steps as if he were a major-general, and puffs loudly at the kitchen door. Aunt Katy will say, "Go away, you hoodoo!" Soon she will laugh a queer laugh as she fills a deep tin pan with good things for Jimmy Fish-Hook, who has been patiently waiting, knowing well that he will be rewarded. Besides scraps of meat and chicken, he gets sweet potatoes and pudding, and for his dessert a bowl of milk. Then Aunt Katy will repeat, "Go way, you hoodoo!" and Jimmy Fish-Hook walks slowly back to the red settee on the front steps.

He rests on that after eating, unless a doctor comes out with a newspaper or a book, and then he moves at once. No one has to tell him. Jimmy Fish-Hook knows his manners, and he uses them.

The City Hospital is near a river, where many men and boys fish. One

NEGRO SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES

Careful Watch Kept by Their Teachers Over the Graduates.

There are 185 universities, colleges, institutes, and schools in the United States devoted to the higher and technical or industrial education of the negro. Of the older institutions for negro education Fisk University, at Nashville, Tenn., was founded in 1866, Atlanta University in 1868, and Wilberforce University, in Ohio, in 1856.

Fisk University secured principal endowment from the gift of its own students, the Jubilee Singers, and it now has property (including thirty-five acres of land on the site of old Fort Gilliam in the northern part of Nashville) valued at $1,000,000. It has 100 students in its college department, and has sent out 500 graduates from its normal and college classes. This reads like a paragraph from the ordinary college catalogue, but it forms the basis for a very significant statement as to the policy pursued at Fisk and Atlanta Universities, and Hampton and Tuskegee Institutes—the president in each case keep track of his graduates. This plan was adopted when it was a common remark that money spent on the education of the negro was money thrown away. Those interested in the education of the negro answered the sneers of his critics by pointing to the standing and work of the graduates of negro colleges.

For example, Fisk University has 113 graduates in educational, professional, and business employments in Tennessee, 61 in Alabama, 52 in Texas, 29 in Georgia, 21 in Arkansas, 15 in Mississippi, 20 in Kentucky, 10 in Illinois, 12 in Missouri, 13 in Florida, and has representatives in nearly every State.

President Merrill, of Fisk, knows not only where his graduates are, but what

Pulling Powers.

Interesting tests were made recently in the Madison Square Garden, New York, to determine the respective pulling power of horses, men, and elephants. Two horses, weighing 1,000 pounds each, together pulled 3,750 pounds, or 1,750 pounds more than their combined weight. One elephant, weighing 12,000 pounds, pulled 3,700 pounds, or 3,250 pounds less than its weight. Fifty men, aggregating 37,500 pounds in weight, pulled 3,750 pounds, or just as much as the single elephant. But, like the horses, they pulled more than their own weight. One hundred men pulled 12,000 pounds.

Courtdrama.

Which bird can lift the heaviest weights? The crane. Which is the ugliest hood ever worn? Falsehood. How far is it from February to April? A March of thirty-one days. Who is the most popular man of letters in the country? The postman. If I were in the sun and you out of it, what would the sun become? Sun. What land is like a merry dog wagging his tail? America (a merry cur).

day a half-grown Maltese kitten, minding andly and with a fish-hook fastened in its jaw, came up the hospital steps. Where kitty came from no one knew. "What a strange patient!" said Dr. Clary, who had a little girl who loved cats and had been begging for one.

Then Dr. Clary gave kitty some medicine to smell that put him to sleep as "quick as a cat can wink its eye," and cut the fish-hook out. Next he put on some salve and a bandage, gave kitty a drink of warm milk, and very soon the sore jaw was as well as ever.

One of the young doctors named kitty "Jimmy Fish-Hook."

A very funny but a true thing is that Jimmy Fish-Hook will not eat fish or eat out of the pan, if it has scraps of fish in it. He will go hungry first.—Youth's Companion.

Seven Modern Wonders.

The seven world wonders of antiquity were the pyramids, Babylon's gardens, Mausolus' tomb, the Temple of Diana, the Colossus of Rhodes, Jupiter's statue by Phidias and the Pharos of Egypt, or, as some substitute, the Palace of Cydus.

The seven wonders of the middle ages were the Coliseum of Rome, the catacombs of Alexandria, the great wall of China, Stonehenge, the leaning tower of Pisa, the porcelain tower of Nankin and the Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople.

How will these compare with the seven wonders of the modern world? asks the Kansas City Independent. Perhaps there may be a difference of opinion as regards the latter-day wonders, but the following are substituted: The steam railway, the telegraph, the telephone, the wireless telegraph, the ocean steamship, the submarine man-of-war and the air ship.

Waste leather is no longer thrown away. Manufacturers use it in a compressed form, instead of iron, to make car-wheels.

The Aztecs operated bellows for the forging in the old Mexican copper mines by opening them with the hands and pushing them together with their feet.

Japan, have long used the Longman &
Martinez Paints for painting churches.
Liberal contributions of L. & M. paint will be given for such purpose wherever a church is located.
F. M. Soiffer, Harris Springs, B. O.,
writes: "I had our old homestead with L. & M. paint six years ago. Not painted since. It looks better than houses painted with other brands."
W. J. Charlton, West Va.,
writes: "I had Frankburg Block with L. & M. paint. It shows better than any building I have ever done; stands out as though finished, and actual cost of paint was less than $1.20 per gallon.
Wears and out like gold."
These celebrated paints are sold by

[Not red as second class matter.]
SATURDAY, NOV. 26, 1904

Thanksgiving Day.

We might have chosen a pleasanter day for the annual feast, it being one of the muggy, foggy kind. Those who did not go church either kept at work, tinkered around home, or endeavored to shoot birds or rabbits through a fog thick enough to cut.

There were about one hundred, or a few over, in the M. E. Church, to hear an excellent sermon by Rev. H. M.
Thurlow, and appropriate music. The speaker said that for the many blessings of Providence we should give our gratitude and praise for God's perpetual goodness. Reading a few verses from the sixth chapter of John, also the last verse of Psalm 150, he took up several lines: God's mercy; he longs for the response of gratitude, rather than the attitude of ingratitude. Reasons for thanking him,—for Jesus Christ; for our government and our country; for prosperity. Perils of our country: union of Church and State;
crime; liquor; inferior immigration;
the trust question; the liquor vice;
commercialism,—greed, all for money;
lack of appreciation for higher art—painting and poetry; and the sin of licentiousness.

In closing, the speaker saw better days ahead for those who are faithful.
A closing thought was the well-known Scriptural question and answer,—
"What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits unto me? I will take the cup of salvation, and call upon his name."

Pastors Williams and Middleton took part in the service, the former reading the President's and Governor's proclamations.
The offering was, as usual, sent to the New Jersey Children's Home Society.

Miss Elvira G. Middleton was five years old last Monday, Nov. 21st, and she entertained a few of her friends in the afternoon, from four until six o'clock. Miss Elvira received many beautiful gifts. Those invited were,— Miss Roberta Steel, Edna Trafford,
Emma Gestel, Miriam Elvira, Marion Crowell, Bernice Frauch, Lola and Annie Cunoobughan, Myrtle Green, Mildred Tilton, Elsie Chambers, and Masters Hubbert and Thomas Elvira, Bert Guellet, Charles Jacobs, Robert Frauch, Miss Gertrude Russell, and Earl Knecht, of Woodbury, Misses Minerva Jackson and Ethel Calloway, and Master Lew Weeks, of Camden.

Volunteer Fire Company had an interesting meeting last Monday eve'g.
Besides admitting active and honorary members, the trustees were authorized to subscribe for shares in each Loan Association, to start a fund for paying off their mortgage; also to devise some means by which the lower story can be heated. The company are very grateful to Mr. Stockwell for allowing the apparatus storage room in his building.

Baptist sale next Friday and Saturday, in J. L. O'Donnell's office.
Steel's "harvest" window was very attractive.

tomorrow will be temperance day, all over the city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. D. Gelger, of Woodbury, are visiting their daughter, Mrs. J. H. Hamilton, at the Methodist Parsonage.

Golden Lodge, Shield of Honor, announces a "smoker" in their hall, next Friday evening. Refreshments are on the program. All invited.

As a result of a bad fall down the steps at her home, Thursday, Mrs. Geo. E. Chalfant came near not being able to appear to "Mrs. Wiggs."

DRESSMAKING. I am ready to do dressmaking in all its branches. Mrs. W. G. WILKINS, Valley Ave., east of Bellevue.

Several of our prominent men made a hasty exit from Union Hall, during Thanksgiving night's entertainment, when the fire bell (a piece of gas pipe) rang.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Newcomb had as Thanksgiving guests their brother William, from New York, their son Dr. Samuel G. and family, and daughter Miss Phoebe.

The Baptists had a very entertaining thanksgiving service on Thursday evening. A special program had been prepared, including solos, choruses, addresses, etc.

Edw. Cathcart has purchased from J. Dilworth's blacksmith business, and took possession on Tuesday. Mr. D. will remain, and several changes may be made in the place.

A Thanksgiving eve wedding took place at the M. E. Parsonage. Rev. G. E. Middleton uniting Mr. Howard Shields, of Nesco, and Miss Maggie Adams, of Pleasant Mills.

On Thursday, Charlie Bruno and Tony Romeo were out gunning. In some disputed manner, Bruno was shot in the leg, making a bad wound. Dr. Bart took him to Cooper Hospital.

CARD. We are very grateful for the many kind words of sympathy and for the commiserate kindness of many friends expressed in words and deeds in our bereavement.

CHAS. E. SMALL AND FAMILY. ALL Persons are Forbidden to remove any leaves from my place on Central Ave. It will be paid for information leading to the arrest and binding of anyone doing so. J. S. PATTERSON.

Annual meeting of the Hamamton Loan and Building Association next Thursday evening, Dec. 1st, in Firemen's Hall, promptly at 7 o'clock. Reading of the annual report, and election of officers. They will also issue their fifty-sixth series of stock.

At the foot-ball game, Saturday afternoon, Edwin Crowell attempted to run around the end, but was tackled, and in the scuffle his collar-bone was fractured. He was taken home in the Smith "ambulance," where his father (the doctor) attended him. He is doing well.

HUMANITY'S Weak Spot. There are more deaths directly due to weak lungs than to all other diseases combined. They are humanity's weak spot—the breeding place of consumption. When the slightest symptom of trouble is felt in the lungs you should begin the use of Dr. Ross's German Syrup at once. It is made especially to soothe, heal and strengthen the lungs, throat and bronchial tubes. German Syrup is a never-failing remedy for consumption. Trial bottle, 25c. Big bottle, 75c. At W. J. Leib's.

The Overseer of Highways is indignant at the action of some who persistently dump ashes and waste of all sorts in the public streets. Of course the law provides punishment for such offenses, and it ought to be enforced. But, worse than this, he says that sand for building purposes is being carted from the centre of certain streets in the suburbs.

Mr. Emil Miller, of Folsom, left home on Sunday to raise the flood gates at the Braddock cranberry meadows. Not returning when expected, some of the family went in search of him. His pipe and cane were found near the gate, but the man was not in sight. Fearing that he had fallen into the water, the creek was dragged, and on Monday the searchers found his body a short distance down stream. Mr. Miller was quite well known here, having carried the mails between Hamamton and Folsom, several years ago.

Mrs. Wiggs.

Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, on Thanksgiving night was a grand success in every way. Florence Cottrell and Lillian Smith, as the two young Wiggs girls, Elliot Davis, as Billy Wiggs, Lyle Crowell, as Chris Hazy, Helen Smith, as Tommy, George Greis, as the Sheriff, Mr. Thomas Skinner, as Mr. Elchorn and Mr. H. Watkins, as Mr. Schultz, are all new players and all did well. Mr. Harvey King, as the marriage broker was all right. Mrs. Conley, as Mrs. Schultz, "beat the Dutch." Miss Emily Morrill, as Asia Wiggs, was great. Mr. Samuel Drake, as Mr. Wiggs, looked and played the part fine. Miss Mildred Chapman, as Lucy and Mr. Morton Crowell, as Mr. Bob, played their parts very sweetly and dressed them in a way that nothing more could be desired. Miss Maud Peet, as Mrs. Elchorn, was played as near as amateurs get to perfection. Miss Lullie Whitmore, as Lovey Mary, had a fine conception of the part and left nothing undone. A great deal is always expected of A. H. Whitmore, and as Mr. Stubbins he did not disappoint his many friends. Miss Moore, as Miss Hazy, did as fine a piece of character acting as has ever been seen on our local stage. She is one of the new players and was a very pleasant surprise to our theatre-goers. Mrs. Chalfant, in the title role played the part in her old time style and vigor, and though a long part, one kept wishing for more. The play is to be repeated to night, and you will make no mistake by attending.

Next Wednesday evening is the date set for Dr. H. W. Sears' lecture, in Union Hall. Having been here before, and his lectures enjoyed by a full house, he needs no introduction. His topic will be "Grumblers, and their cure." Don't miss it.

Mrs. Eliza A. Hoyt, widow of the late Lewis Hoyt, died on Tuesday, Nov. 22nd, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. A. J. Smith in Ocean City, aged 74 years. It was the writer's privilege to call her "mother" for many years, and we learned to love her for her kindness of heart, her consistent every-day Christianity. For more than thirty years a resident of Hamamton, there are many who mourn with her family. Funeral services were held at her late residence, on Thursday afternoon, also at the residence of Mr. Wm. A. Hood, in Hamamton, on Friday morning. Her remains were laid beside those of her husband, in Greenmount Cemetery.

William Small, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Small, died early on Saturday morning, Nov. 19th, aged 24 years. He had been suffering with lung fever for some days, but the physician thought him enough better to walk out on Friday afternoon. This was evidently an error, for he was taken worse, and passed away just after midnight. Will was well known, was one of our steady-going young men; has been for several years assistant in the W. J. & S. freight office at this station. Only a little over a year ago he married Miss Mabel Adlington, who, with the parents and other relatives, have the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends. Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon (at Greenmount Cemetery, because of the delicate condition of the young wife and mother) conducted by Rev. W. W. Williams. The Shield of Honor, of which deceased was a member, attended the funeral.

The Booklets.

Ten thousand booklets of the Town of Hammonton, beautifully illustrated, have been issued by the Board of Trade. Every citizen is entitled to a copy, free of charge, which may be procured by calling on the Secretary, Dr. Charles Cunningham, at his residence, Second Street.

Additional copies may be obtained by paying the following prices: eight for 25 cents; three for 10 cents; or 5 cents each. These prices include envelopes for mailing, when desired. They can be purchased of the Secretary, from F. H. Jacobs, Chairman of Printing Committee, and at Henson's news room.

The cost of these booklets largely exceeds the above prices, and all money obtained from their sale will be kept separate from the general funds of the Board of Trade, and be used exclusively for advertising the Town in other ways.
